PARIS, July 6.—Down in the Antarctic regions there lies an area larger than the United States which has never been explored. It is difficult to realize that there still remains on the face of the earth such an area about which practically nothing is known.

Those hundreds of thousands of square miles of which the South Pole is the centre have for years held my imagination. What might one find there? That is a question to which we shall seek a response, for the map of the world will be incomplete so long as that region remains uncharted, and man will not be satisfied until he knows what is there.

May Stay There for a Year.

I plan to lead an Antarctic expedition to explore that region. This will not be merely to the South Pole; far from it. We shall stay there for months, perhaps for more than a year, in an effort to procure more scientific information than now exists about that unknown continent which lies on the south end of the earth.

We expect to take with us about ten ologists—biologists, zoologists, ornithologists, meteorologists, and so on, as well as experts to study magnetic forces and fields around the South Pole.

It is my theory that in the Antarctic region there lies a great area of land not covered by snow.

In the Antarctic Summer, which is our Winter, the Antarctic Continent is closer to the sun than is the Arctic during its Summer. On the lowlands of the Antarctic it would be slightly warmer than on the lowlands of the Arctic. In the Arctic when the sun strikes the lowlands it melts the snow, and this would be the case at the North Pole itself if it were lowland. It is only in the higher areas that there is perpetual snow. As yet such areas have not been discovered in the Antarctic Continent.

South Pole More Inaccessible.

As a matter of fact, there has been little exploration down there. This is true perhaps for two reasons: first, because the eyes of man have not turned toward the South Pole as they have turned toward the North and, secondly, because of the ice which surrounds it the South Pole is somewhat more inaccessible.

The South Pole itself is 10,000 feet high and there have been two lines of march toward it, one made by Amundsen from one end of the great ice barrier and the other made by Scott from the other side of this barrier.

Now this ice barrier lies in the Ross Sea, south of New Zealand, and it is the best approach which has been discovered to the South Pole itself, which lies quite a thousand miles away. It is either solid ice or snow, and has a great many crevasses. Scott and his companions on their return from the Pole got within fifteen miles of their depot, where there was food, and a raging storm came up and held them to their portable tent until they starved

Byrd Inspires French War Ace, Helpless Since War, Who Walks With Americans to Tomb of Napoleon

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 6.—One of the ceremonies in which Commander Byrd and his companions on the transatlantic flight of the America took part today seems likely to have provided the ground for a new legend of miracles to grow up around them.

After Premier Poincaré had decorated Commander Byrd with the rosette of the Legion of Honor, making him an officer in that famous body at a brief ceremony in the office of the Minister of Finance, the American airmen, at the special request of Rodman Wanamaker, went to the Invalides to see and talk to the aviators wounded in the war. These invalided fliers are known as "Les Ailes Brisees"—"The Broken Wings."

Of all the receptions the four Americans have so far attended, this was the most moving. In the court of the old hospital, founded by Napoleon, several score men were gathered, some with crutches, some sightless or near it, some armless and some so mutilated that they were pushed about in little chairs.

Among these last was Captain Henri Legendre, an ace who was shot down at Verdun in June, 1918. For nine years he has lain in the hospital or lived a prisoner in his invalid chair, never able to take more than a few steps in his room. His legs have been almost completely paralyzed as the result of a spinal wound.

But today, in the middle of the reception, moved by a strength he had never felt since that day when he was shot down, he rose from his chair and walked not only some score of yards across the court of the Invalides, but up the steps leading to Napoleon's tomb.

"I have been here for seven years," he told Commander Byrd, "and have never yet had the strength to visit the tomb. That strength you have given me."

Arm in arm with the Commander, he stood and gazed down silently for some minutes at the great catafalque where rest the ashes of the Emperor "among those peoples whom he so much loved."

LEVINE ANNOUNCES HE WILL FLY BACK

He Asks for a French Pilot When Chamberlin Says He Must Hurry Home.

PARIS, July 6.—Charles A. Levine is going to fly back across the Atlantic with a French pilot on the Bellanca plane if he can get one willing to undertake the flight and can get the plane ready in time to make the start before any one else.

Levine's representative, Samuel I. Hartmann, made the announcement at a luncheon given today to the crews of the Columbia and the America by the English and American newspaper men in Paris. Mrs. Levine has consented, or perhaps it would be nearer the truth to say has accepted her husband's decision.

When he reached the decision to attempt the return trip, Mr. Levine invited Clarence D. Chamberlin to pilot the Bellanca plane home, but Mr. Chamberlin has other engagements in the United States and could not wait for the necessary preparation of the plane. He has booked passage on the Leviathan Tuesday and before leaving will spend a few days in London, traveling there with his wife by an ordinary air mail route tomorrow.

"If I had time to prepare for the flight in my own way," Chamberlin said today, "I would be delighted to make it. With the Bellanca plane I am confident we could fly for fifty hours and make a much longer record than we did. My engagements in the United States, however, prevent me making the return flight with Mr. Levine, and all I can say is to wish him and the French pilot whom he may select every kind of good luck."

Three Frenchmen Volunteer.

Who the French pilot will be is yet undecided. Levine has carefully kept his announcement back until today when he knew definitely that Chamberlin could not go with him and has left it open for a French airman to volunteer. Three have already indicated their desire to make the attempt, but final choice will not be made before tomorrow at the earliest.

Two days ago Levine cabled to New York for a new engine, a new propeller and for John Carisi, his mechanic, and just as soon as all three get here and the new engine can be installed the start will be made.

Levine's announcement of his plans, as made today at the newspaper men's luncheon, was as follows:

"A short time after his arrival in Europe, Charles A. Levine resolved to make the return flight to America, particularly if no one had flown the Atlantic from east to west before he was able to conclude proper arrangements for the attempt.

"He has every confidence and belief it can be done, and in the interest of aviation believes that it should be done. He communicated his desire to Clarence D. Chamberlin, and, of course, invited him to wield the stick. It will take some time to prepare and await the arrival of parts which already have been cabled for, and since he had made definite arrangements to return to the United States Chamberlin has been constrained to decline.

"Accordingly Levine took the mat-

2 NEW YORK FLIERS KILLED IN WAR GAME

Capt. Wheeler and Lieut. Sack Crash at the Great Bend National Guard Camp.

FATAL PLANE LONG BUILT

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 6.—Captain Curtis Wheeler, 36, of 55 East Seventy-sixth Street, New York City, associate editor of the Sunday magazine section of The New York Herald Tribune, and Lieutenant Carl J. Sack, 26, of New York City, chemical engineer for the Pennsylvania Railroad, met death at 11:05 this morning when their Curtis J N-4 army biplane crashed on Pine Plains here while on observation during field artillery and infantry manoeuvres.

Captain Wheeler was killed instantly, it is believed. Lieutenant Sack died in an army ambulance while being brought to a Watertown hospital. Each suffered a fractured skull, fractures of both arms and many cuts and bruises about the head and shoulders.

A Watertown undertaker took charge of the bodies pending communicating with New York relatives and removal to that city.

Brig. Gen. Ransom H. Gillette, commanding the National Guard camp on Pine Plains, has created a board of inquiry in an endeavor to ascertain cause of the fatality. This investigation is expected to reveal some one among the 4,000 troops at the camp who witnessed the fall of the plane and may shed light on the reason for the accident.

Engine failure or jammed controls are believed responsible for the crash, but so completely was the machine wrecked that inspection of its broken parts will be of little value.

First Missed by Companion Plane.

A companion machine, piloted by Captain Larry Brower, also of the 102d Observation Squadron, Twenty-seventh Air Service, was in the air. The two planes went up at the same time with observers for the infantry. Although some distance away, Captain Brower said he noticed Wheeler's machine from time to time. Suddenly he missed the other, and promptly turned in the direction he last had seen it.

Scanning the terrain, he saw the wreck near the Hogsback, a high elevation at the south extremity of

Anglicans Approve New Prayer Book; Passage on Woman's Origin Is Deleted

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—The Anglican Church Assembly approved tonight, by 517 votes to 133, a Prayer Book measure permitting the optional usage of the old and the new versions of the ritual, despite threats voiced by "die-hards" that the Assembly's action would lead to the secession of some groups, and strife within the Church for years.

The debate was interrupted by laughter and applause from the galleries, causing several clergymen to protest and plead that the venerable Archbishop of Canterbury request that no demonstration be made when the result was known.

The vote, as taken by houses, follows: Bishops, 34 for, 4 against; clergy, 253 for, 37 against; laity, 230 for, 93 against, majority for, 354.

The words in the old marriage service, "out of man woman should take her beginning," are deleted in the new version. This caused a lively debate.

The debate in its final stages swung away from the points of doctrine said to be involved and turned on supporting or overruling the Bishops who supported the revised book.

"You must either support the Bishops or throw them overboard," Lord Hugh Cecil said, speaking for the measure. "If you throw them overboard you have no Government at all."

The Archbishop of York ended the debate, which was restricted to five-minute speeches because of the number seeking the floor. He denied that the revised version in any way violated or altered the fundamental basis of doctrine expressed in the old book.

FALL AND DOHENYS MUST STAND TRIAL ON BRIBERY CHARGE

FINDS FALL'S ACT 'OFFICIAL'

Issue Involves $100,000 'Gift' to Ex-Secretary, on Which Jury Found No Conspiracy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior; Edward L. Doheny and Edward L. Doheny Jr. will have to stand trial under the indictments charging Mr. Fall with accepting a bribe of $100,000, and the elder Doheny with giving it, in connection with the leasing of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve in California.

Justice William Hitz of the Criminal Division of the District of Columbia Supreme Court today overruled demurrers to the indictments filed by the defendants. The latter had attacked the indictments on the ground that President Harding's order of May 31, 1921, transferring the naval oil reserves in California and Wyoming from control of the Navy Department to the Interior Department was invalid, and that Mr. Fall had no legal authority to do anything whatever with the reserves, and thus could not be bribed in the matter.

Justice Hitz held that, whether or not Mr. Fall did not actually have full legal power to handle and lease the reserves, Fall believed that he did, "and the Doheny defendants were evidently of the same opinion." Therefore Justice Hitz held that the acts complained of in the indictment were just as reprehensible and punishable in law as though Mr. Fall had been authorized by Congress to act, "and that his action, alleged to have been corruptly influenced, was official action."

The invalidity of the order of President Harding has been definitely settled by the courts in the civil cases involving the Elk Hills lease and the Teapot Dome lease, which were decided in favor of the Government. It was conceded by both counsel for the Government and the defendants in these cases that the order was invalid.

Previous Jury Saw Bona Fide Loan.

With reference to the claim of authority in Mr. Fall to handle and lease these reserves, another branch of the court, in the person of Justice Wendell P. Stafford, decided that because Mr. Fall acted under color of authority and that as he and the defendants believed he had the authority, the conspiracy indictment concerning the Elk Hills reserve was good and the defendants were placed on trial. In this conspiracy case, however, the defendants were acquitted, the jury having decided that the alleged bribe of $100,000, which figures in both the conspiracy and bribery indictments, was a bona fide loan.

It is unlikely that the new cases of Mr. Fall and the Dohenys will be tried this year. The case of Mr. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, charged by the Government with conspiracy of the lease of the Teapot Dome naval reserves to Sinclair, is set for Oct. 17.

The Standard Oil Company of California filed a brief in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals today in connection with an act of former Secretary Fall concerning the right of the Government to oust the Standard Company from oil lands in Section 36 of Kern County, California, adjoining Naval Reserve No. 1.

Mr. Fall dismissed proceedings by the General Land Office to investigate the Standard Oil title, but later Hubert Work, present Secretary of the Interior, sought to set aside this order. The lower court granted the Standard Company an injunction against Mr. Work, who appealed. The Standard Oil brief answers the appeal, arguing that the Fall action was valid.

Opinion Against Fall and Dohenys.

The opinion of Justice Hitz in the matter of the Fall and Doheny demurrers, in full, follows:

INDICTS ORIGINATOR OF 'DOUBLE ENTRIES' IN TICKET TAX FRAUD

ERLANGER AIDE ON STAND

Admits 'Gratuities' Were $350 a Week From Brokers—Tuttle Calls It Graft.

While United States Attorney Tuttle was examining Leonard E. Bergman, general manager of the A. L. Erlanger Amusement Enterprises, in a resumption of his investigation of the Broadway brokerage business, yesterday, the Federal Grand Jury, acting on evidence brought out by Mr. Tuttle at earlier hearings, indicted Samuel Bloom, an accountant of 1,482 Broadway. He is charged with counseling and assisting ticket agencies in the preparation of "false and fraudulent" income tax returns.

Bloom, according to the testimony of a number of witnesses, devised the "double entry" system of bookkeeping by which surcharges of more than fifty cents on ticket sales were separately entered in special ledgers or columns as "service and delivery" charges and omitted from income tax returns. He acted as an advisory or supervising bookkeeper for a number of agencies and actually kept the books of the Leo Newman agency himself.

His indictment is based on his alleged aid and advice to the Newman and Cohn agencies. Some weeks ago he was called to the stand to testify but refused to waive immunity and Mr. Tuttle would not hear him. The maximum penalties for conviction on the indictment are a fine of $10,000, five years' imprisonment or both.

Theatrical Man on Stand.

For the first time since the hearings before United States Commissioner Cotter began Mr. Tuttle had, in Mr. Bergman, a representative of the theatres in the witness chair. All others have represented the agencies. Mr. Bergman, who waived immunity after some preliminary hesitation, told about the ticket business from the producer's point of view. He spoke, however, only for the Erlanger organization, which, he said, includes the New Amsterdam, Liberty, Frolic, Knickerbocker and Gaiety theatres in New York, part interest in other theatres here, and whole or part interest in various theatres throughout the country.

Before the opening of an Erlanger production, he said, the agencies with which his company does business are asked how many tickets they want. They put in their applications and Mr. Bergman then makes allotments to each somewhat in the manner of the Government or a banker allotting bonds. If the applications in the aggregate are for more seats than there are in the house, they are proportionately cut down.

The producer's object, he said, is to sell out the first fourteen or fifteen rows of a theatre to the agencies for four or eight weeks in advance of the opening of the show. The seats thus disposed of are never offered to the public through the box office.

Got "Gratuities" From Agencies.

They are sold to the agents for cash at the box office prices, but, Mr. Bergman admitted, both he and the box office men in the theatres receive added money from the agencies. He said this money could be called "gratuity," "consideration" or "concession." Mr. Tuttle called it "graft."

It was never a fixed amount demanded by the theatre men, Mr. Bergman insisted, but was freely contributed by the agencies. In his own case, he said, the contributions from six agencies amounted on an average to $350 a week. His salary as general manager of the Erlanger enterprises varies from $200 to $300 a week, according to the number of productions he has charge of. The six agencies from which he receives gratuities in cash units of $50, $100 and $300 at a time are McBride's Theatre Ticket Offices, Tyson & Bro. United, Tyson & Co., Louis Cohn, the Theatre Ticket Library and the Broadway Theatre Ticket Company.

The agencies to which Mr. Bergman sells tickets as Mr. Erlanger's representative are these six and also Leo Newman's, the Arrow, Ball-

JAPAN INTERVENES IN GENEVA DEADLOCK, URGING OUR 250,000-TON CRUISER LIMIT; FIGURE IMPOSSIBLE, BRIDGEMAN RETORTS

Unheralded Kellogg-Howard Conference in Capital Begets Theory Envoy Came to Save Naval Parley

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—An unheralded conference at the State Department today between Secretary Kellogg and Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, prompted speculation as to the connection of his conversation with the critical status of the three-party naval limitation discussion in Geneva.

State Department officials refused to make any comment on the Ambassador's visit beyond the statement that he had come from the Summer embassy in New England on his own motion and not in response to a request from Secretary Kellogg at the department. Sir Esme was said to have planned an immediate return to Manchester, N. H., on the conclusion of his talk with Mr. Kellogg.

Government spokesmen would not discuss in detail the situation that has arisen at Geneva owing to conflicting views of the American and British experts on the cruiser tonnage.

Despite the official reticence there was reason to believe that 400,000 tons was virtually the American outside limit, and regarded in Washington as much in excess of the actual cruiser needs of either country.

Japan's reported need for sharp curtailment of naval expenditures, due to her economic situation, is generally recognized as a factor in the naval limitation problem. For that reason it was expected by some diplomats that the Japanese delegation would offer strenuous objection to the enlarged cruiser program which the British experts have outlined.

JEWISH INTERNES DROP ASSAULT CASE

MAYOR PRESSES DR. JONES

Hospital Head Explains Altered Record in Fatal Case—Denies Neglect Caused a Death.

The criminal charge made by three Jewish internes against six of their Christian colleagues at Kings County Hospital are to be withdrawn today. An application to drop the complaint of assault will be made when the case comes up for hearing in Flatbush Court.

Announcement of this was made yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Louis D. Gross, Brooklyn rabbi, when Mayor Walker resumed his investigation of alleged anti-Semitism at Kings County and other city operated institutions. Dr. Gross said that the decision to discontinue the court proceedings followed an order by the accused doctors to write a letter expressing regret over the treatment accorded the three internes.

"Well," said the Mayor, "isn't that a confession?"

Dr. Gross said that it could not call it that, adding that it "was an admission but was not direct. They expressed abhorrance that such a thing should have occurred at the hospital."

The letter will be made public this afternoon and, according to Peter P. Smith, attorney for the defendants, is in no sense a confession that they were members of the band of twenty men who seized, bound, gagged and ducked Drs. Hyman Soloway, Louis Barow and Edward Katzkee at the Brooklyn hospital on June 20.

Dr. Jones Denies All Charges.

The Mayor's hearing continued after Dr. Gross had disclosed the contemplated dismissal of the criminal charges, and, if anything, will be "more intensive" as a result of it. Dr. Mortimer D. Jones, Superintendent of the hospital, was a witness. He denied in toto the charges made by the internes and used records to explain episodes cited by the Jewish physicians as showing the prejudice against them.

The charge that a death chart of a child patient had been altered so that the cause of mortality read "natural causes" instead of "faulty technique" was the first thing explained by Dr. Jones. He said that a physician in a moment of indignation had written the chart to make it appear as if the child had died from a "hospital accident," but that a post-mortem had shown that the peritonitis, which was the direct cause of death, had antedated the operation that immediately preceded death.

Dr. Irving Zweiffler, a Jewish interne, had testified that the chart had been changed after it had been made clear that he had not performed the operation, a minor one to relieve empyema.

Other points made against the hospital were met and denied by Dr. Jones with emphasis, despite a scorching questioning by the Mayor, who frequently cut short the Superintendent's explanations. But when he came to the alleged discrimination in the dining hall, something to which all the Jewish internes had testified, he did not make direct denial. The internes had complained that their fellows had shunned them and that a table, referred to as the "kosher table," had been set apart for them.

They tell a rather convincing tale, said Dr. Jones, when asked about that, "and while I knew that they had their own table I never knew the reason for it."

FIRE IN ROCKAWAY SWEEPS 3 BLOCKS

SUBDUED AFTER HARD FIGHT

Fire that started shortly after midnight this morning swept across three blocks fronting on the ocean between Beach Ninety-third and Beach Ninety-sixth Street, Rockaway Beach, within about two hours, when it was brought under control.

With sparks being carried by a stiff inshore wind, the flames swept on, routing scores of families from hotels, tents and boarding houses.

Men, women and children, awakened from their sleep by the crackling of the flames, fled in night clothing to the smoky streets. They ran along the Boardwalk, their arms filled with the few belongings they had time to snatch hastily.

The magnitude of the fire which lighted the sky for miles caused many residents of districts not directly threatened by the flames to become alarmed and to leave their homes.

Police Reserves on Duty.

The frightened and excited throngs surged this way and that through the streets while the first fire companies answering a borough call subdued the flames. All available police reserves were put on duty and in a short time arrangements were made to house the refugees in the Rockaway Beach postoffice and in the police station there. No one was injured.

Old residents who gathered at the fire lines to watch the fire feared for a time it might become as serious as that which swept through Arverne near by in 1922, destroyed 300 buildings and did damage estimated at $2,500,000.

Just where and how the fire started was not learned definitely. One report was that the origin of the flames was in the Waverly Baths, at Beach Ninety-fifth Street and the Boardwalk. From that vicinity the sparks were carried to neighboring frame buildings and in quick order many of them were ablaze. The Beach House near by was soon attacked and its occupants were forced to flee.

What was known as "Tent City," a lot near Ninety-fifth Street occupied by about fifty tents, all of which were filled, was laid waste rapidly. Two blocks of the Boardwalk between Ninety-fourth and Ninety-fifth Street caught fire and were destroyed.

Bungalows in Track of Flames.

Not all the buildings in the three blocks were badly damaged, the flames in some of them being put out in time by firemen. Several bungalows and half a dozen shops were ruined, however. Firemen who got the fire under control about 2:15 o'clock also saved other houses by wetting down the roofs to prevent flying sparks from igniting them.

Fire Chief John Kenker took charge of the fire fighting forces, which included all the Queens companies and many of the Brooklyn companies. Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy started an investigation when the flames were finally put under control.

SAITO MAKES MOVE AT TEA

EXPERTS TO RENEW STUDY

They Had Adjourned Sine Die After Failing to Come to Any Agreement.

RECRIMINATION HAD BEGUN

Some See British Reluctance to Yield Mastery of Seas as Real Heart of Drama.

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 6.—The latest night bulletin from the "sick room" of the tri-power conference for the limitation of naval armament is that, after a consultation of the specialists and administration of a Japanese elixir, the patient revived slightly, although it is still very ill.

In other words, Admiral Saito, at a meeting of the full delegations, declared in effect that "it might be impossible for us to go home with a treaty agreeing to such cruiser figures as the British have submitted."

Then he said that he preferred the minimum instead of the maximum figures proposed by the United States, that is, 250,000 tons instead of 300,000 for Great Britain and the United States, as a basis of discussion.

Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation and Chairman of the conference, saw the correspondents and said he felt more hopeful than he had all day. He said also that it had been agreed that the experts would now get back on their discussions and would begin work again tonight.

The British were described as receiving Admiral Saito's statement "like persons suddenly struck" by a missile. After the meeting W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty and head of the British delegation, called for his car and said he needed a long drive in the fresh air to think things over. Viscount Cecil went moodily to his villa and refused to answer questions.

Experts Had Adjourned Sine Die.

The health bulletins from the conference during the day indicated that it was in an extremely dangerous state, with the final crisis near at hand. The specialists all lugubriously admitted that any further relapse would be fatal.

Certainly unless there were marked improvement soon, apparently there would be nothing more to be done but announce the funeral. Some scalpel wielders were anticipating death and figuratively performing autopsies with the idea of fixing the blame.

The three delegations met late this afternoon in what amounted to a secret plenary session in the hope of finding a new formula for conference procedure after the experts' committee, admitting a hopeless deadlock, had adjourned sine die.

The conference malady has always been the cruiser figures submitted by Great Britain as "necessary for her needs." As already reported in these dispatches the original British figure was scaled down to about 470,000 tons. But this was unacceptable not only to the United States but to the Japanese delegates, who informed Mr. Gibson that they would prefer, in the interests of economy, to go even lower than the original American figures of 300,000 tons.

Japan in the Key Position.

Japan, at the present moment, holds the key position inasmuch as the principal difference lies between Britain and the United States. For the last two days the British have been politely arguing about in circles, always harking back to the same figures.

Now that the Japanese have kept the promises they made to Mr. Gibson and openly allied themselves with the United States against Great Britain, the latter may yet decide upon actual further limitation of naval armament rather than be the first refusal to challenge the United States to a competitive building program. Otherwise all the delegations may be packing their trunks before the week-end.

The British, according to the best American opinion, are now banking upon what they term "America's lost art of shipbuilding." In other words, judging from today's determined British manner, it is evident that they consider that all that Mr. Gibson has been telling them in the past few days on the subject of what the United States really may be persuaded to do in the way of building a big navy has been a bluff.

Further Hope Evidenced.

Meanwhile the Americans today are producing more evidence to show that by 1933 when the Washington compact expires the United States will be quite able to produce the most formidable of all navies. The British take much comfort from the statements of Senator Borah and quote him to Mr. Gibson on every possible occasion.

The American Chairman, while admitting Senator Borah's position in the Senate, today undertook to explain the differences of character between Britons and Americans. He said the former did not make up their minds before long study and planning, while Americans were quite likely to get excited over night and go to extremes. He also pointed out that in the event the conference fails, Anglo-American relations may suffer a blow from which perhaps it will take long to recover.

During the press conference today, when the British correspondents persisted in using the phrase "We have granted you parity in naval strength," Admiral Jones impatiently interrupted to say, "I prefer you to say that you have accepted parity."

Needs Relative, Gibson Contends.

It was declared that apparently the British idea of cruiser parity, judged from their figures, was that America should either accept a ratio of about five to three or immediately spend millions to build up to five-five.

Mr. Gibson, in response to the constant British repetition of the declaration that they must build "according to our absolute needs," said:

"There is no such thing as absolute needs. If needs were absolute then there would have been no need for a conference. Each nation would merely have stated its own needs and let it go at that.

"We maintain that naval needs are relative. So far in this conference, aside from what we consider minor details, Great Britain has not offered to give up one single thing."

If the conference should fail, the grounds upon which the British may try to place the blame upon the Americans are not yet entirely clear. They may again talk about economy and their own willingness now to scrap the Washington treaty in order to save expenditure on capital ships—this while they keep the Rodney and the Nelson listed at 35,000 tons but actually 37,000, with a gun range of 40,000 yards and a speed of twenty-three knots, as against the American best of 31,000 tons, 33,000 yards and twenty-one knots.

Mr. Gibson will answer any such claim by a citation of the grotesque cruiser claims, acceptance of which, rather than limiting naval armament, would merely be legalizing a huge building program.

Japan's Move Stuns British.

GENEVA, July 6 (AP).—Suddenly intervening in the Anglo-American difficulty over cruiser tonnage, Japan tonight not only supported the American contention for a low limitation, but insisted that world interests would best be served by adhering to the original minimum figures of the United States of 250,000 tons.

Even British self-control was shaken by this unexpected, wholehearted advocacy of the American position, which was made at a late informal meeting. The British plenipotentiaries seemed to be stunned for a moment; then W. C. Bridgeman is understood to have declared:

"These figures are impossible as a basis of discussion."

This development has in a dramatic way given a new angle to the Tripartite Naval Conference and means that Great Britain now must convince Japan and the United States that a high cruiser tonnage—around 600,000 tons—is justifiable.

It may mean increasing chances of failure of the conference, for any treaty at Geneva must have Great Britain's approval, and the British are understood to be determined to maintain powerful cruiser fleets.

Admiral Saito of the Japanese delegation invited all the plenipotentiaries to tea this evening. Those present included Viscount Ishii, W. C. Bridgeman, Lord Cecil, Vice Admiral Sir Frederick L. Field, Hugh S. Gibson, Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones and Allen W. Dulles.

Saito Suggests Modifications.

Although Admiral Saito suggested certain modifications of the projected treaty to meet special Japanese needs, it was thought that none of these requests would present difficulties for solution.

Japan's stand has removed from American circles any feeling of disappointment created by her advocacy last week of a discussion of the question of capital ships.

Japan's interests are served in a way by her insistence on low tonnage, because the more the tonnage is kept down the slighter will be the difference in effective offensive strength as between the Japanese navy and the navies of the United States and Great Britain.

After the meeting Mr. Bridgeman refused to comment other than to remark that there were three parties to the conference and two of them were finding it difficult to understand the peculiar situation of one of them — "meaning ourselves," he added.

As the American delegation, in an endeavor to meet the British requirements, has expressed willingness to go as high as 400,000 tons in cruisers, Japan's announcement tonight immensely complicates the situation, but strengthens the hands of the Americans in the struggle for limitation which will meet the approval of Congress and American public opinion.

"Something Wrong at Geneva."

"Something is wrong at Geneva," observers said earlier in the evening when the crisis in the negotiations seemed to be already, if anything, in a more accentuated form than it had been.

"Either the Americans or the Englishmen are not talking the same language or their positions regarding cruisers are so remote, one from another, that it appears exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to put a finger on a compromise which will satisfy equally the people and Governments of the United States and Great Britain," these observers said.

If a faithful account of the Geneva negotiations is ever written, some students of the situation feel, it will reveal to the world that a great Anglo-American tragedy has been enacted. The thread of the play, judged from reliable accounts, is this—that Great Britain, which has held the mastery of the seas for centuries, intends to maintain this mastery and can see neither justice nor wisdom in a youthful nation across the seas, the United States, wishing to lay down fleets equaling those of Great Britain.

Great Britain contends that a high cruiser strength is an essential and vital to the needs of her country, especially to give assurance that Great Britain shall not starve because of the cutting off of her food supplies at distant points.

The United States apparently gives recognition to Great Britain's peculiar economic position, but insists that America, like Britain, must maintain communications with the outlying points of the earth for those broad economic reasons connected with the position of the United States as a great world power.

Private Meetings Disappointing.

Today's private meetings between the American and British delegates proved disappointing, because the British, it is understood, expressed complete dissatisfaction with the new American suggestion for a maximum cruiser tonnage of 400,000 tons.

It was even reported on good authority that there was talk during the lively conversation as to who would be responsible before world opinion if the conference should collapse, and that the British delegates more than hinted that responsibility would fall upon the shoulders of the United States.

The British maintained that some fault lay with the Americans because they failed to perceive what the British regard as the wisdom of cutting down the sizes of individual warships.

The American delegates insisted that the United States could not be expected to build warcraft poorly suited to American national needs, and pointed to the immensity of the building program which would be involved for the United States in accepting the British program of about 600,000 tons in cruisers.

The situation, from the American viewpoint, was that the American delegation either would have to subscribe to a treaty which would give Great Britain about double the cruiser strength of the United States, or to a treaty which would establish parity on the basis of 600,000 tons. Apparently the American delegates believe that neither solution would be approved by the American people.

Difficulties Foreseen.

It is felt here that even if the Americans agreed to the 600,000 tons limitation, the greatest difficulty would be encountered by the American Government, first, in obtaining the permission of Congress to appropriate the stupendous sums necessary for the essential building, and second, even if an agreement by Congress were obtained, in building the ships themselves, since many American shipbuilding yards have now been diverted to other uses.

Mr. Gibson and Admiral Jones therefore appear to have a problem of the first magnitude on their hands, but seem groping in an endeavor to discover some solution to prevent a breakdown of the conference, which should be regarded as a possibility.

The British apparently are basing their cruiser demand on what ships will be built up to 1942, and some formula may be found which will merely carry the Geneva agreement up to 1936, when it is probable that another general naval conference will be convoked in view of the likelihood of some nation denouncing the Washington Treaty by that time.

Japan is solidly behind the United States in the contention that from 250,000 to 300,000 tons are ample for the total tonnage in the cruiser class. Increasing that figure, the Japanese delegates said, would be exceedingly unpopular in Japan.

WASHINGTON IS OPTIMISTIC.

No Nation Can Afford Not to Make Naval Accord, Kellogg Holds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—An optimistic view of the Geneva Conference was taken by officials today, although indications were that the United States would not agree to a cruiser tonnage limitation in excess of 400,000.

Secretary Kellogg asserted his confidence that some agreement would be reached at Geneva and that none of the participating countries could afford not to make an agreement.

The discussions on cruisers were looked upon here as preliminary, the question first being taken up by the technical representatives before being passed to the chief delegates for diplomatic treatment.

The time had apparently not yet come, it was said at the State Department, for an acute issue over the cruiser problem being referred to the home Governments, and it was considered quite possible that that time would never come.

No request for instructions or for any direct action on the part of Washington had been received from Ambassador Gibson, but he has transmitted confidential reports on yesterday's meeting of the technical representatives. Mr. Gibson and his associates were described as having detailed instructions within which they have broad authority to act.

Doubt was expressed by officials that the American delegation had actually "proposed" a maximum cruiser tonnage of 400,000 or done more than to indicate informally but definitely that, while the United States stood on its original proposal of from 250,000 to 300,000 tons for this type of craft, if it should consent to a larger figure it could not go beyond 400,000 tons.

Officials still consider the 400,000 maximum to be beyond the needs of any power.

BACKS JONES'S NAVY SPEECH.

Chairman Porter of House Committee Is for Sea Power Parity.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—The Fourth of July speech of Admiral Hilary P. Jones at Geneva, in which the one-time commander of the United States Fleet declared America was entitled to a navy equal to that "of the strongest," was endorsed today by Chairman Porter of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Congratulating the Admiral, who is a member of the American delegation to the tripartite naval conference, Mr. Porter said that since the United States had voluntarily surrendered control of the sea by scrapping sufficient capital ships to put its first line on a parity with Great Britain, "it does seem strange that there should be any objection to our being placed on a parity with any other nation on all kinds of other naval vessels."

"The maintenance of the principle of equality of sea power as established at the Washington conference," he added, "is of vital importance to peace, as it provides the only practical form of disarmament."

Pirates Release Captain Fisher, Held for Ransom.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The release by Chinese pirates of Captain Fisher, an American citizen and master of the Chi Chuen, a vessel of the American-owned Yangtse Rapids Company, was reported to the State Department today by Consul General Lockhart of Hankow.

Captain Fisher was seized near Ichang, on the Yangtse, and held, with a Chinese compradore, for $20,000 ransom. The Hankow authorities were urged by Mr. Lockhart to effect his release.

Captain Fisher returned to his vessel, which went on the rocks, and is supervising the salvaging of its cargo.

MOTION OF CENSURE ON LORDS DEFEATED

Baldwin, Answering MacDonald, Indicates Reform Proposals Will Not Be Pushed.

PROJECT DIVIDES TORIES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—The House of Commons tonight rejected by 362 votes to 167 a Labor motion of censure on the Government for its proposals to reform the House of Lords. The Conservatives, though divided on the proposal, closed their ranks to defend the Ministry after Premier Baldwin in a conciliatory speech declared that the Government had no intention of bringing in a concrete measure for reform of the House of Lords without first consulting members of all political parties inside and outside of Parliament.

In making this statement it is thought that the Premier may have been influenced by the Opposition, voiced not only by Liberals and Laborites, but many among his own supporters.

Ramsay MacDonald the Labor leader who was warmly welcomed on all sides on his first appearance in the Commons since his illness, started the debate by moving a resolution which declared that it would be an outrage on the Constitution if the Government's proposals, as outlined in the House of Lords, were forced through a Parliament without such a mandate from the people. He condemned the Government's tactics in making the project known in the House of Lords instead of in the Commons, which he said had induced revolt and unrest among many of the Government's supporters and had brought down on the heads of the Ministers this vote of censure.

If the Government's proposals were put in operation elections would no longer matter, he declared, since a handful of hereditary peers would be able to dismiss Governments just as Kings used to do. It was a revolutionary act for a temporary House of Commons majority to make permanent changes in the Constitution, he argued.

Premier Baldwin in replying agreed that no second chamber should be able to overthrow Governments nor rival the popular chamber's rights over finance. This, he said, ruled out the elective principle, which would inevitably give an equal mandate and ultimately equal rights.

The Prime Minister again declared that the Government's present proposals were offered only for criticism and ventilation inside and outside the Commons. He added that in the light of what might be learned from this debate, of what they had learned from the debate in the House of Lords and of what they had learned from friends in the country, the Government hoped to be able to produce that greatest Commons measure in a form practicable for legislation.

"If we fail," he concluded, "I doubt very much whether further attempts will be made in the near future."

A feature of the debate was the brilliant and impressive maiden speech by the novelist Colonel John Buchan, who was one of the Conservative critics of the Government. Many who heard it compared Colonel Buchan's speech to Lord Birkenhead's triumph in 1906.

LONDON, July 6 (AP).—Announcement in the House of Commons today by Premier Baldwin that the Government's scheme for the reform of the House of Lords, which has created something of a political furore, was merely "a basis for discussion and criticism" is taken by political observers to indicate that the reform of the Lords may be dropped completely for the time being.

During the debate, which aroused Parliamentary interest only as a discussion of the fate of Great Britain's upper chamber can arouse it, there was no affirmation of Lord Birkenhead's recent assertion in the House of Lords that the reform would be rushed through in the life of the present Parliament.

Mr. Lloyd George, the Liberal leader, declared that in the past the Liberal Government, in considering reform of the House of Lords, had decided to leave "the ramshackle thing where it was."

Discussing the hereditary aspects of the reform proposals, Mr. Lloyd George questioned whether there were 300 peers who by training, experience or mental qualities had the necessary qualifications for revising British legislation. He thought there might be fifty such peers at the most.

RAIN OR SHINE, GIBSON CARRIES HIS UMBRELLA

GENEVA, July 6 (AP).—A slim, trim, youthful-appearing man, whose black hair is only just beginning to become gray at the temples, steps jauntily out of a Geneva hotel or the League of Nations Secretariat, and, accompanied by his faithful umbrella alone, sets forth on foot to regain his own abiding place.

For while Hugh Gibson, President of the Conference on Limitation of Naval Armaments and American Ambassador to Belgium, may be an "incorrigible optimist," as he says, about the parley's ultimate success, his years in Berne and Geneva as Minister and Special Envoy have made him somewhat of a pessimist as regards Swiss weather.

Diplomats of the old school are astounded at the way Mr. Gibson saunters about Geneva alone and unprotected save for the umbrella, albeit his popularity is such that it is a bit vague as to just what he should be protected from. Perhaps it may be from newspaper men, but Mr. Gibson has a quick reply and an even quicker smile to disarm them. If they are of French-speaking nations, Mr. Gibson responds glibly in their own tongue.

Light grays and navy blues are Ambassador Gibson's favorite shades in ordinary street attire. When he is attired in formal morning or afternoon dress, there is no representative of the ultra-correct British Foreign Office within hailing distance of him in distinction of style.

Honor Scout to Swear In Three Governors; Resounding Voice Helped Him to Fame

Armin Georgi of 180 East Thirty-first Street, Brooklyn, a Boy Scout who weighs 85 pounds, most of it above the shoulders, will swear into the organization tomorrow fifty intellectual heavyweights, including three Governors, several Army Generals and a whole platoon of business men.

The occasion will be the annual inspection of Bear Mountain Camp by supporters of the organization. Governor Smith, who was made Chief Good Scout of the camp three years ago, will head the party, which will make the trip from New York on Barron Collier's yacht Florida.

Armin was chosen to swear in the visitors not merely because he has been an exceedingly good Scout but also, it was whispered, because his voice excels the voices of all other Scouts in volume.

Georgi is a camp telephone operator, and his friends say his voice will carry a message further than a postage stamp. One of his other camp duties is to call the Scouts to "chow." Several other Scouts were tried out for this job, but when their voices were heard only a mile or so and Scouts missed their meals, Armin got a trial and made good.

HEARS 500 MARINES LANDED IN TSING-TAO

Shanghai Gets Report They Went to Protect Americans, but Washington Has No Word.

JAPAN WILL HOLD RAILWAY

Tokio Will Occupy Shantung Line to Guard Nationals in Onrush of Chinese Nationalists.

SHANGHAI, July 6 (AP).—An unconfirmed telegram from Japanese sources in the Port of Tsing-tao, Shantung Province, says 500 United States marines have been landed there for the protection of Americans.

Washington Thinks Report in Error.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—Reports in Shanghai that American marines had been landed in Shantung Province to protect American lives lacked confirmation in Government advices today, although interruption of rail traffic between Peking and Tsing-tao, due to a revolt in the Northern Chinese forces, may have created some concern.

The revolting forces, numbering some 10,000, was said in one message to be headed toward Tsing-tao. The revolters formerly were part of the army of General Sun Chuan-fang, who is allied with Marshal Chang Tso-lin.

Since the State Department had received no word of alarming conditions at Tsing-tao up to a late hour, officials were inclined to believe that the reported landing of American marines in Shantung was an error growing out of the Japanese protective military movements in that area.

Tokio Acts to Shield Nationals.

TOKIO, July 6.—Premier Tanaka obtained today Imperial authorization for moving Japanese troops from Tsing-tao, seaport in the Chinese Province of Shantung, to Tsinan-fu, the capital, and for sending 2,000 men as reinforcements from Dairen, Manchuria, to Tsing-tao.

The Cabinet had decided on these steps after receiving reports that the Shantung Railway had been cut between Weihsien and Kaomi. The Government issued a statement tonight explaining its action.

"In May," says the statement, "Japan dispatched troops to Tsing-tao as a precautionary measure for the safety of 2,000 Japanese residents of Tsinan-fu.

"We are now informed that there is fear of Chinese troops opening hostilities along the railway between Tsinan-fu and Tsing-tao. Unless troops are sent immediately to Tsinan-fu it may become impossible for them to proceed there owing to cutting of the railway, thereby rendering futile the plan for protection of our numerous Nationals in the Tsinan-fu district.

"The Japanese Government, therefore, in accordance with its statement made when troops were first dispatched to Tsing-tao, has decided to send troops to Tsinan-fu at once. It is needless to reiterate that this is an emergency measure of self-defense for the security of Japanese residents, and that it implies no intention other than protection of our nationals."

Lieut. Gen. Hasegawa in Command.

The Japanese forces in Shantung, which will total 40,000 after the reinforcements now ordered reach Tsing-tao, are placed under Lieut. Gen. Hasegawa.

The troops at Dairen are ready to move, a force of 2,000 having been held there in readiness to reinforce the Tientsin and Peking international garrisons. Their dispatch to Tsing-tao instead, is due to the development of this new situation in Shantung.

The Southern advance against Chang Tso-lin is proceeding along the Pukow Railroad and through Shantung along the coast from Haichow, which the Nationalists occupied recently.

Retreating Northerners, pursued by Nationalists, have reached the railway between Weihsien and Kaomi, and the Southerners are apparently aiming at Tsing-tao. This threatens to cut off the Japanese nationals in Shantung from the Japanese troops on the coast; hence Japan proposes to occupy the railway.

Tanaka's Position Embarrassing.

Premier Tanaka's chief embarrassment in this matter is the fear that his protective measures will be interpreted as concealed support to Chang Tso-lin, the Northern dictator. The Foreign Office emphatically denies that there is any such intention and recalls the pledge of neutrality which Baron Tanaka made when the expeditionary force was sent to Tsing-tao in May.

If Nationalist troops capture Tsing-tao or Tsinan-fu, or both, the Japanese will not hinder them, it is declared in official circles. They will follow the precedent of Shanghai, where the presence of British troops and Japanese and American marines was no obstacle to the Nationalists' capture of that city.

As the Chinese approach towns where Japanese are stationed, the Japanese propose to concentrate their nationals in selected districts, which they will guard, but they will not interfere with Chinese military movements.

Obviously the situation is delicate, and if the Nationalists do not succeed it will be declared that Japanese troops stood between them and victory. Nevertheless, the Japanese would not be sorry to see a Nationalist victory, it is said here.

The Nationalist forces approaching the Shantung railway are estimated at 20,000 and those on the Pukow railroad at 50,000.

Owing to these developments and the need of meeting the situation promptly, the Foreign Office conference on China, which Premier Tanaka, intended to address today has been postponed.

Military Railway Men on Way

TOKIO, July 6 (AP).—One hundred military railway men and telegraphers are proceeding to Tsing-tao from Japan, and the Government is reported to be prepared to dispatch more troops for the protection of Japanese residents if necessary.

Animosity Against Japan Grows.

Copyright, 1927, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SHANGHAI, July 6.—The Chinese are rapidly forgetting their anti-Britishism and turning their attention to anti-Japaneseism, owing to Japan's landing of troops in Shantung Province, which the Nationalists consider a scheme for the reoccupation of Chinese territory which Japan was forced to evacuate as a result of the Washington conference.

The boycott movement is strongly reminiscent of the anti-Japaneseism which followed the Versailles conference and is becoming widespread. It is especially severe in Canton, where Japanese cargoes of cotton, cloth, yarn, paper, coal and other merchandise are being confiscated, while the Chinese stevedores refuse to handle Japanese cargoes.

Owing to the Chinese animosity, Japanese ships are ceasing to call at Swatow and Amoy. The agitation is also growing in Shanghai despite the official prohibition.

Japanese reports, unconfirmed from other sources, state that 500 American marines were landed at Tsing-tao today for the purpose of protecting the American residents.

An early evacuation of all Shantung Province by the Northern troops is indicated in General Chang's decision to fortify the town of Tehchow, on the Northern Shantung border in order to safeguard Tientsin, which apparently is the next Nationalist objective.

BRATIANO EXPECTED TO WIN ELECTIONS

Liberals Sure of Big Urban Majority to Overcome Country Opposition.

BUCHAREST, July 6.—The national elections begin here tomorrow with every indication that the Government of Premier Bratiano will overwhelm the other parties. The only campaign has been made by the Bratiano Liberal Party and is certain to carry a majority of the urban votes, which are expected to overcome the country, which is to be polled next week.

The country is exceptionally quiet today. No disturbances have been reported nor is there very great enthusiasm displayed. Bratiano and his Cabinet colleagues have taken no part in the campaign. The Peasant Party leaders have left Bucharest for Transylvania, where they expect this poll to show its greatest strength, particularly from Germans, Hungarians and farmers.

The party of General Averescu has only a few candidates in the field and there seems little chance of any of them being elected, as Averescu and his colleagues have taken no part whatever in the election preparations.

SHAKESPEARE IN AMERICA.

Professor Thorndike Tells British Academy of Poet's Influence Here.

LONDON, July 6.—Shakespeare's influence on America was the subject of this year's annual Shakespeare lecture delivered today by Professor Ashley Thorndike of Columbia University before the British Academy.

The lecturer said that there was no certain evidence that a copy of Shakespeare had reached America during the seventeenth century, but that during the eighteenth century his plays were read widely and acted in cities along the American seacoast. George Washington saw many of his plays performed, and Thomas Jefferson exempted Shakespeare from the warning that too much poetry should not be indulged in.

As the frontier pushed westward it took Shakespeare with it and he became a symbol of unity, the mark of culture that united the frontiersman with Emerson and Lowell. Shakespeare began to be a factor in popular education about the same time in the United States as in England, the early nineteenth century.

The basis of education in the humanities was in the study of English language and literature. Of this study of the mother tongue, Shakespeare was the head and front. Washington, Lincoln and Shakespeare were three whom Americans universally worshipped, Professor Thorndike concluded.

BOLSHEVIKI ADMIT CHINESE REDS FAIL

CALLS LEADERS TRAITORS

Tacitly Acknowledges Mistakes in Communist Party's Policy as Charged by Trotsky.

By WALTER DURANTY.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, July 6.—The danger of a collapse of the Chinese "revolution" is frankly acknowledged in a leading editorial of the Pravda today. In the terminology of the official organ of the Bolshevist Party, "revolution" means a general social upheaval with a Communist slant, not the Chinese Nationalist movement, which is obviously gaining strength and probably will hold power over all China south of the Great Wall before Winter.

But that is no comfort to Pravda, which is forced to recite a list of "traitors" to the Chinese "revolutionary ideals"—Chiang Kai-shek, then Feng Yu-siang, then Feng's adherents, then Fang Shen-tse, then members of the Hankow Government itself.

Actually, a prominent Chinese Communist, Tan Pin-san, Hankow Minister of Agriculture, resigned his position "for reasons of health." The Pravda editorial writer, who has much to learn about the subtleties of the Chinese character and genuineness of the Chinese "revolution," calls this most uncommunistic behavior and asks whether it doesn't raise the question of the exit of Chinese Communists from the Nationalist Government.

And that—from the Russian angle—is the crux and keynote of the whole matter. Because the Leon Trotsky-Gregory Zinovieff-Karl Radek opposition has been crying loudly and steadily that in its Chinese policy the party administration is wrong in advocating and maintaining cooperation of the Chinese Communist Party with the non-Communist Nationalist elements.

Leading editorials in the Pravda are generally written by M. Bukharin, who may be considered the Administration spokesman. That he "raises the question of the exit of the Chinese Communists from the Nationalist Government" is an admission that M. Radek and company were so far right. Which is a mighty remarkable admission if one considers the bitterness of Bukharin's recent attacks upon the Opposition.

Two weeks hence a mixed plenary session of the Central Committee of the party and the Central Control—that is, disciplinary—Committee of the party will meet to decide whether the Opposition should be dealt a body blow in the shape of the expulsion of M.M. Trotsky and Zinovieff from the Central Committee—whence M. Radek already was expelled some time ago.

STARVATION HOVERS OVER FLOODED AREA

In Land of Desolation Farmers Are Battling for Life in Soggy Fields.

MOST OF THEM PENNILESS

FEAR OF COMING WINTER

Sufferers in Disaster Ask If Their Plight and Its Cause Have Been Forgotten.

By L. C. SPEERS,
Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 5.—The curtain is yet to fall on the final act in the flood tragedy of 1927. Flood waters still cover thousands on thousands of fertile acres; thousands of farm homes are in ruins; in vast spaces all prospects for a paying crop of any kind are nil; the threat of starvation faces a multitude in the months that are to come.

Whether these facts are realized in the country at large is the question asked by nearly everybody in the flood country. The impression seems general that the more than 600,000 sufferers in the greatest peace-time disaster in history have been largely forgotten; that even flood control, so live an issue a few weeks ago, may be relegated to second place if some officials prominent in public affairs have their way.

Yet the effects of the deluge are still here, and heartrending as was the flood story when the crests of the Mississippi and its main tributaries were at their peak, when every sundown meant more thousands of acres inundated, more homes lost and more thousands to feed, shelter and clothe, it was not one whit less pathetic than is the story of the aftermath.

The waters are at last definitely receding, and the story of what happened can now be told. It is a picture which, however, one must see really to understand—the devastation of so many millions of acres, the desolation of the country, the misery of the sufferers and the outlook for the future.

Pray for Prolonged Summer.

Today in these fertile cotton, cane and rice lands of the lower Mississippi Valley from which the water has gone farmers who have seen practically everything they possessed swept away are trying to make a crop of some sort, praying for a prolonged Summer, one that will last until September. Otherwise, in extensive sections of the flood country there will be no crop.

Cotton that should be waist high and hanging heavy with squares and bolls is only inches out of the ground, and corn, the tops of which should under normal conditions be from five to six feet high, is less than a foot. With it all is dire poverty, and in some districts thousands are face to face with a future that spells starvation. This is the solemn word of men of the highest standing in their various communities.

Not all of the flood country is included in this picture. Some of it came out of the water weeks ago, and in those parts there is hope that a crop will be reaped. But what is to follow in this and subsequent articles will not relate to those more happily situated localities. It is to the land still under water or just emerging that most of what will follow relates, and to the problem of credit than which, with the exception of actual physical suffering, there is no more important phase involved in the heartbreaking aftermath of the deluge of 1927.

The first of the trio of States to receive the full impact of the flood was Arkansas, and before the crests of the Mississippi, the Arkansas, the St. Francis, the White, the Ouachita and other rivers whose waters rose to record-breaking altitudes had passed, entire counties were submerged and more than 200,000 persons, 90 per cent. of them farmers., had lost their homes, seen their growing crops blotted out and their credit destroyed.

There was just one bright spot. Only comparatively few persons lost their lives. What will be the case if malaria and fever gain a foothold only the future can tell.

Extent of Arkansas Flood.

A flood map of Arkansas looks like a picture of a giant cactus of the candelabra species, the trunk in Southeastern Arkansas and the great spikes extending in the east to the Missouri line and in the west almost to the Oklahoma border at Van Buren. Another branch zigzags its way through the southern central counties, while a fourth is in the extreme southwestern edge, where the Red River leaves Texas for a short spin through Arkansas on its way to Louisiana and the Mississippi.

The first of the flood zones in the lower valley of the Mississippi is this valley of the Arkansas River. Pine Bluff is the eastern and Van Buren the western terminal. There are no richer farm lands in America than those of the Arkansas Valley, hundreds of thousands of acres of which were swept by the deluge, in some places the land going under water three times. There are thousands of farmers in Arkansas who lost just that many crops, and who for a fourth time are bravely facing the future, trying to make a money crop of some kind—soy beans, potatoes, cabbages, hay. It is too late now for cotton, and only a miracle of weather will make any sort of a corn harvest possible.

Weeks would be required to cover any one of the flood zones, and so it was that THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent selected the flood areas in certain counties which were typical of the general situation along the Arkansas, Conway, Faulkner, Pulaski, Sebastian and Jefferson counties.

Lone Farmer in Desolate Land.

From Morrilton, in Conway County, one can drive a winding, gullied course of miles through one of the finest standard staple cotton-growing sections of the State. That trip the writer made. In four hours in the river zone there was found just one house in which there was a family. With his wife and children a lone farmer had braved the mosquito-infested desolation to battle for a harvest. The ground was still soggy, but he was in the field. He had a stand of "baby" cotton, and he was planting something he knew nothing about, something that was as strange to him as Broadway would be to an Eskimo, namely, soy beans.

The evidences of the titanic force with which the currents of the Arkansas surged over these farms was on every hand. No matter in what direction one looked, there was sure to be one or more wrecked houses, little cabins in which tenant farmers had lived. One, more pretentious than its neighbors, a house, had been lifted from its foundations, and when it settled the roof and not the basement was in the big hole the river had gouged out.

What had been human habitations, in some instances, were just piles of wreckage, hanging like balanced rocks over the edges of canyons 20 and 30 feet deep carved out by the currents. Sometimes an old trunk, a piece of furniture, a child's plaything, sticking up out of the débris was pathetic evidence of the home that was.

Farms Turned Into Gulches.

Not all the houses were destroyed. Some stood the fury of the onslaught, but none escaped damage. Nearly all were doorless and windowless. Most of them were without chimneys. Some were overturned, and inside the shell the slime was from one to three feet deep.

Very often the odors were foul. The mosquito infestation is approaching serious proportions. Snakes were seen now and then, basking in the sunlight, stretched out on a log the river had left as it went back to its banks or in the wreckage of some cabin or outhouse.

Erosions were striking features of the landscape. On one farm there were several of these great gulches, each covering many acres of land and in appearance reminding one of the dry beds of the dead rivers in the El Paso country of Texas.

Near one of these big erosions stands a two-story building known as the Miller House, the only two-story habitation in that part of the Arkansas River zone. Just one person remained with the flood along this particular stretch of the Arkansas, and his haven was that house on the edge of the water line. His name was Willis Edmundson. He is a typical old "darky" of the plantation type. He was asked to stay to save the animals and fowls belonging to his neighbors. He accepted the commission.

After the water receded they found Willis. He was on the roof knitting a fish net. In the upper floor of the house were the mules, the cows, the hogs, a couple of dogs, a big flock of chickens, ten or more turkeys, a calf and some guinea-hens. The mules and cows shared one bedroom; the chickens and turkeys another; the hogs were in the hall.

Referring to his charges, Willis said that "we" had managed to be quite comfortable, even when the waters were lapping at the floor of the second story.

"It wasn't no time for foolin'," he said, "and us mules and things sho did know it and we ain't forgot it yit."

Has Withstood Three Floods.

On another farm in another part of the Arkansas Valley zone, where wrecked houses and great gaping erosions were the order, there was another house, one that survived not only the great flood of this year, but had weathered the floods of 1833 and 1844—that of 1844 being, so far as the records go, the worst in history previous to the disaster of the present year.

That house was built 102 years ago by an Arkansas pioneer whose name was Howard. They knew how to build houses in those days, commented James E. Moose, President of the People's Bank and Trust Company of Morrilton, who accompanied the writer on the trip through this sector of the flood area.

There is still another grave feature of the damage done in the Arkansas Valley, and that is the extensive "sanding" of large areas of farm lands, in some places the sand being piled in dunes, in others spreading out uniformly in all directions. Crops will not grow in sand, and this means the possible loss, so far as productivity is concerned, of these lands for years to come, if not permanently.

Plight of Tenant Farmers.

Practically all the land in the upper Arkansas Valley is now free of water. The farmers have gritted their teeth and are bravely facing the future, a future the darkness of which every one of them fully appreciates. Thousands, in particular the tenant farmers, are practically penniless and without credit, for the only security they have is a phantom crop few believe will materialize into a money crop of any considerable value.

These poor farmers lost about all they had in the way of household effects and in many instances their live stock and farming implements. They are poorly clad, they have little to eat, and but for the Red Cross and kind-hearted land owners they would, in large numbers, be face to face with actual starvation.

Just now, with Summer weather, the suffering is not so intense as would otherwise be the case. The big problem will be when cold weather comes. That is the side of the picture now worrying so many thinking citizens these days. These farmers will have to be carried over the cold months, and the question is, Who is going to shoulder the burden? Many believe the Government itself should undertake the solution of the problem. The people in the flood zones are not able to do so. The land owners are as hard hit almost as the tenants and their credit has received a stunning blow.

No Security for Loans.

Furthermore, every merchant, every bank, holds the paper of hundreds of farmers whose assets have been lost. There are numerous outstanding farmers, as well as persons in other lines of business, who declare that the recently organized farm loan organizations cannot solve the problem. To get money the farmer must give security, and in the case of those who need it most the security is either in or on the way to the Gulf of Mexico.

About the first week in October Secretary Hoover is coming back into Arkansas to look the situation in the face again. In the meantime, his representatives are making a survey of the flood areas in the southern part of the valley to ascertain the full extent of the damage, and work out, if it is possible, some solution of the problem which must be solved if thousands of farmers are to saved to agriculture.

Mr. Hoover is an optimist, and he believes that in some way the situation will be met and conquered. That is also the conviction of scores of leading citizens of the State who can still see rainbows in the blackness of the desolation.

From Governor John E. Martineau to the humblest citizen outside the flood zones all Arkansas is standing shoulder to shoulder. Day and night the Governor and his aides are laboring to ease the burdens of thousands of their less fortunate fellow-citizens. They are not asking charity. What they do ask is a fair deal, a new chance, for every man, woman and child who, through no fault of theirs, lost home, crops and credit in the deluge, yet who continue, in the face of fearful odds, to battle for a crop of some kind.

COOLIDGE RIDES HIS HORSE.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 6 (AP).—Apparently imbued by the spirit of the roundup he saw yesterday at Belle Fourche, President Coolidge today mounted a horse for the first time since he has come here and took a two-hour ride over the hills.

Mr. Coolidge rode Kit, the bay mare given him on his birthday Monday by the mounted troop of Boy Scouts from Custer, S. D.

Wearing a felt hat and his regular business clothes, the President also used the boots and spurs given him by the Scouts. He had little difficulty in managing Kit, who appeared quite proud of her mount.

Mr. Coolidge swung into the saddle carefully, and before starting had the stirrups readjusted. Accompanied by Cecil Gideon, who has been his guide about here, and George Brescher, one of the Secret Service men who has shown some prowess on horses here, the President set out on a trail leading back of the lodge.

A large number of tourists awaited eagerly with cameras in hand for him to ride down the road, but Mr. Coolidge, upon starting, headed toward a trail which leads up a steep hill to the rear of the lodge. At the summit of this hill is a promontory known as "lovers' leap." From this point he could look to the south and west as far as the States of Nebraska and Wyoming. He started the ride at 3 o'clock and a bright sun beat down upon the party as it made its way carefully up and down the rocky slope.

This is one of the few times since he has become President that Mr. Coolidge has ridden a horse, although he makes frequent use of an iron horse for exercise at the White House.

BLACKMAILED, SAYS BROKER

Three Men Seized in Atlantic City on Jacob Factor's Complaint.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 6.—Three men were arrested here today at the Shelburne Hotel in the room of Jacob Factor, who said he was a broker living at the Cardinal Hotel, West End Avenue, New York, and who charged the men with blackmail.

They said they were Seymour Orgel, 21 years old; James Walsh, 31, and George Usmer, 30. Factor had told detectives that the men had threatened him unless he gave them money. He said he had previously given them $1,500. The detectives said they heard threats while hidden in Factor's room and made the arrests. The men gave $500 bond and were released.

SHEFFIELD REACHES COOLIDGE'S LODGE

Ambassador Will Report on Mexico and Discuss His Desire to Resign.

SOME ISSUES UNSETTLED

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 6.—James R. Sheffield, American Ambassador to Mexico, arrived at the Summer White House late tonight to report on conditions there and learn if the President is agreeable to his retirement before the Mexican Presidential elections.

It is expected that announcement of the decision will be made while Ambassador Sheffield is a guest here. In official circles it has been reported that the resignation will be accepted, although nothing definite has been vouchsafed by the President.

Mr. Sheffield returned to his post last Fall upon the condition that he should be allowed to retire when American relations improved. The relations have improved, but the question as to carrying out the Mineral and Land laws has not been settled.

Since the United States gave notice of the end of the treaty and placed itself in a position of permitting arms shipments to be made to Mexico without notifying the Mexican Government of such exports the situation has clarified, but the threatened confiscation of lands owned by American citizens remains a perplexing problem.

See Hope in General Obregon.

Alvaro Obregon's candidacy for President is accepted by this Government as forecasting better relations if General Obregon is elected. All reports coming to President Coolidge while here show that sentiment in Mexico favors the carrying out of the pledges made and that if the elections are peaceful and free from riots and revolution General Obregon will be elected.

President Coolidge desires to see the Mexican question settled finally before another year. He is hopeful that our relations with that republic will be composed without resorting to pressure. It is pointed out if this Government should consent to the exportation of arms to Mexico it could bring about the election of any faction, and such a course would assure the settlement of the long standing disputes between the two countries. Such steps are not now contemplated.

The drift has been toward adjustment and perhaps President Coolidge may request Ambassador Sheffield to continue in his post until after the elections and some of the questions he has negotiated are closed.

President Coolidge has insisted that the promises made by General Obregon, when he was President, to our representatives, Charles Beecher Warren and John Barton Payne, shall be kept. The pledges which were precedent to recognition mean, it is held, that the constitutional sections on land and mineral laws should not be enforced against the United States.

Early Rising Secret Is Out.

President Coolidge again surprised his clerical force today by reaching his office, after a thirty-two-mile drive, before most of them had their eggs and coffee. Only an operator and doorman were on the job when Mr. Coolidge arrived at 8:15.

The secret of his early rising is out. He has not set back his watch to Mountain Time since coming to the Black Hills. The kitchen clock is also running two hours ahead. He goes to bed about 10 o'clock Mountain Time and gets up at 7 o'clock Washington time or 5 o'clock (Black Hills time). This he has been doing since his vacation started.

It appears that he does not sleep as long here in this rarefied air, and seven hours' sleep is enough for him. However, he makes up for any loss by a nap of an hour or so after luncheon, following his home practice in this.

As the result of his early rising the Secret Service men and the clerical force at Rapid City have been keeping good hours. Most of the White House subordinates go to bed about the same hour as the President.

Everett Sanders, Secretary to the President, has been forced to keep early hours. His bedtime is 8:30, and orders have been issued that he shall not be disturbed except on urgent business. The result is that the news end of the White House closes early but opens with the rise of the sun.

May Make Visit to Wyoming.

The President may not accept any invitations to leave the State he has selected for his Summer vacation. So many have come from neighboring States as to make it advisable for him to refuse to accept any. He would like, however, to go to Wyoming and may do so if the Senators and Wyoming committee will come here on July 12 and present their united invitation for the Frontier Days celebration at Cheyenne, the last of this month.

A company of Boy Scouts from Sioux City, Iowa, was received by the President today. Charles W. Barton also invited him to visit Sheridan, Wyo. Ex-Mayor E. V. Babcock of Pittsburgh called today and invited him and Mrs. Coolidge to visit a large ranch in the north of this State.

"God is helping Coolidge by this good weather, which is producing good crops," he said. "Good crops make satisfied farmers and satisfied farmers good Republicans."

DEMAND LIGHT ON SHEFFIELD.

Americans in Mexico Feel Reasons for Resigning Are Hidden.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 6.—In the American colony here, where it is taken for granted that Ambassador Sheffield will resign, there is a feeling that the real reason for his expected retirement is not his health and that an effort is being made by American officials to conceal the real causes.

Americans here say that Mr. Sheffield returned to Mexico from his vacation in the United States last year with positive assurances that he would have the complete backing of the State Department and ask why he now finds it impossible to continue as Ambassador.

It is recalled that Mr. Sheffield told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent before he left for home that his health "was never better. You may put it as strong as you want. My health is magnificent."

Now is the time to give the American public a full and detailed account of Mr. Sheffield's activity, the work he accomplished here and the annoyances to which he was subjected during the past year, Americans here say. His resignation, without a full account of the work he accomplished, would leave a feeling that something was being hidden which supposedly the directors of American policy did not want the public to learn, it is said.

Although Mr. Sheffield returned to Mexico last year with promises of the hearty support of the Government along lines which had been discussed when the Ambassador was in Washington, yet scarcely had he returned here, it is stated, when certain groups, including ten-day visitors and religious bodies, started to bring pressure to bear on the State Department which prevented Mr. Sheffield from receiving full support, it is asserted.

CONGRESSMEN DINE ON IMMIGRANT FARE

Committee Members, Visiting Ellis Island, Pronounce Conditions Good There.

SMUGGLING MAIN PROBLEM

They Will Study That Aspect of Subject More Exhaustively in Canada and Mexico.

A six-weeks survey of immigration problems to be made at the suggestion of President Coolidge by a subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee of Congress was started here yesterday. The committee spent the day at Ellis Island and will proceed on Saturday to Boston, thence to the Canadian border and to Mexico and California, where the smuggling of aliens, a condition resulting largely from the quota arrangement, has created a new situation.

Immigration Commissioner Benjamin M. Day conferred yesterday with the committee, which consists of Congressman Milton Shreve, of Pennsylvania, Chairman, and Congressman William B. Oliver of Alabama and Anthony J. Griffin of the Bronx. They are accompanied by Robe Carl White, Assistant Secretary of Labor, and Major Melvin Jones, assistant to the Director of the Budget.

Mr. Shreve called conditions at the island "very satisfactory" and said the single need that had come to the committee's attention was additional inspectors for ships carrying immigrants. The buildings appeared to be in good condition, he said, and the meal served in the immigrants' dining room to the committee was "very good."

Mr. Day placed the data gathered by his office at the disposal of the visitors. It was shown that 4,000 of the 12,000 deportations last year were from New York and that much of the work of detecting aliens illegally in the country was done in New York. Much of the work of inspecting immigrants for health purposes has been transferred to offices abroad. Ellis Island was found to be self-supporting from income derived from the head tax. Mr. Day will continue to sit with the committee today and tomorrow.

"The smuggling of aliens is largely a problem of the land borders," said Mr. Shreve. "In the last two years Congress increased by $1,500,000 the appropriation for the border patrol and we understand that additional funds will be sought. Appropriation of moneys will be recommended by the Director of the Budget about Dec. 1 and the committee feels that it should know the facts of the border situation if an increased appropriation is asked. That has prompted this survey.

"While the border patrol is an important problem it is only one of many in the immigration field. We know that in Cuba, Mexico and Canada there are probably 200,000 persons waiting for the chance to be smuggled in and we also know that in prisons in our country there are about 150,000 aliens who should be returned to their native lands when their sentences expire. The smuggling of aliens must be handled as well as the smuggling of liquor. The effectiveness of the international bridges at Buffalo and Detroit and the problem of our citizens who are employed in Canada must be studied."

The fact that the survey is not an investigation as the word is generally used, and that no report of inefficiency had come to the committee's attention, was emphasized. It was said, however, that if overlapping of administrative work was found changes would be recommended.

POINCARE PINS ROSETTE ON BYRD

COMMANDER KISSES GIRL

American Fliers Visit Wounded French Airmen and Attend Luncheon and Ball.

By P. J. PHILIP.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 6.—There is still no respite for Commander Byrd and his companions. Today new honors were piled on them and new entertainments planned in eager effort to satisfy every one's ambition to see them and shake them by the hand.

At 9:15, which is late in the day for him, Premier Poincaré received the four air heroes and in an interview, which is described as unusually cordial for the much harassed Finance Minister of France, congratulated them all officially on behalf of the Government on their wonderful feat in crossing safely to France and miraculously escaping "despite the inhospitable weather with which France welcomed them."

In the name of the Government, Premier Poincaré himself presented to Commander Byrd the rosette of the Legion of Honor making him an officer of that order, a distinction which is very high indeed. In conferring it the Premier referred also to the Commander's North Pole trip.

Luncheon With Newspaper Men.

Following a visit to The Invalides, where they greeted the war wounded aviators of France, the adventurers of the air with Chamberlin and Levine were guests of the Anglo-American Newspaper Men's Association in Paris. Over seventy newspaper men, representing all the important newspapers of the Anglo-Saxon countries, presided over by George Slocombe of The London Daily Herald, this year's President, gave to the airmen a rousing welcome. In the street a strong force of police with difficulty kept the crowd back and the speeches were all made to the accompaniment of cheering from outside the windows.

In his speech Commander Byrd grew eloquent about "those other fellows."

"I had come, scared as I was, because before Lindbergh took off I had announced I would come," he said. "But these three, Noville, Acosta and Balchen, came out of pure interest in science and the love of flying. They all did their jobs in a manner that deserved complete success.

"George Noville doesn't claim to be an expert radio man, but he somehow managed to keep talking on that radio whenever he got a chance, and it was mighty comforting when we were two miles up in the air to get messages from the Paris and other ships down below and hear how nice and warm they were.

"Noville had another job. He was the ship's engineer and he had it fixed so that our fuel supply worked without the slightest hitch throughout all those forty-odd hours we were in the air.

Turning then to Bert Acosta, the Commander made this public acknowledgement of that pilot's worth.

"We didn't choose him for his good looks, whatever the Paris girls may think. We chose him because we thought he was one of the best pilots in the country and he justified our choice. It was remarkable the way he kept his course."

"Balchen deserved to go. He has been with me in the ice and I knew he was just the sort of flier to depend on in an emergency. And that's just what we found him. He landed the plane in the ocean by the light of one little flare and the quick flash of a lighthouse in a way which still amazes me. These fellows pulled the flight through and to them the credit should go."

Chamberlin, Levine and all the members of the America's crew in little speeches threw flowers at each other which were sincerely spoken and sincerely meant.

"There must be an executive head for every expedition," said Lieutenant Noville, "and I think none of us could want a better, cooler, finer executive head than Byrd has shown himself."

A reception at the Crillon Hotel, given by the American Naval Attaché, Captain Drace White and Mrs. White and a ball in the evening at Claridge's Hotel given by the International League of Aviators completed one more full day's activity.

It is now definitely fixed that most of the party will go to Le Touquet for the week-end. Lieutenant Balchen, however, will fly to Amsterdam to discuss with Fokker engineers his future projects.

Poincare Lauds Flight.

PARIS, July 6 (AP).—Public interest in America's transatlantic aviators continued to rise today. It spread to aviation in general and there were stories of whole flotillas of airplanes coming to Europe; of a 4,000-mile non-stop flight from Brussels to the Belgian Congo across the heart of the Sahara and further plans of Commander Byrd for exploring the region around the South Pole.

Commander Byrd and his companions spent most of today and the night attending receptions in their honor. The day began at the office of Premier Poincaré, who conferred on the Commander the insignia of Officer of the Legion of Honor.

In congratulating the commander of the America and his crew, M. Poincaré told them they had given a splendid example of discipline and patriotism in thinking less of saving their lives when their ship dropped into the sea than they had of saving the precious flag they were bringing to President Doumergue and the bag of mail. The French people considered that their voyage had been perfectly successful and that the landing had been accomplished with precision and exactness under particularly difficult circumstances.

The Premier spoke of having received Charles Lindbergh in the same office, and added that they, too, had bound closer the ties between the two republics.

The Commander thanked him simply and expressed in behalf of his comrades and himself deep appreciation of the warm-hearted welcome that had been accorded to them in France and the sympathetic interest with which the French people had followed the flight, especially the last few hours of the early morning battle with the fog.

Pay Tribute to "Broken Wings."

Following the presentation of the decoration, the American fliers went to the Invalides at the invitation of the Ailes Brisées—"Broken Wings"—French aviators wounded in the war, to whom Rodman Wanamaker had sent a warm letter of sympathy in Commander Byrd's care.

They were received by General Mariaux, director of the Invalides, and M. Raffalovitch of the Ailé's Brisées, who told them simply but feelingly how happy their success had made their broken comrades of the air and how keenly they appreciated the fact that the Americans were willing to steal an hour from the busy day for men who were "left only husks of themselves."

"Even these old walls are happy to receive you," General Mariaux said.

Commander Byrd, speaking for his party, told General Mariaux it was one of the greatest privileges of all to be received by "the aviators who were hurt for France in the greatest war of all time."

Girl Gets Byrd Kisses.

From the visit to the Invalides the American fliers went to a luncheon given by the Anglo-American Press Association, where Commander Byrd gave a moving account of his voyage and asked that the newspaper men writing about it remember that most of the credit belonged not to himself but to the three men who flew with him.

A French girl of about twenty who presented a bunch of violets to Commander Byrd at the luncheon was rewarded with two kisses.

The girl, who was in the great crowd that gathered near the restaurant, made her way up the stairway and announced that she had a bouquet to present to the Commander.

The ushers demurred, but the girl insisted and finally succeeded in carrying the violets to Commander Byrd, who already was seated at the table of honor. The Commander rose, blushed, took the bouquet hesitatingly and then on a sudden impulse kissed the girl on both cheeks amid the vociferous applause of the guests.

May Fly to England.

In his speech Commander Byrd said:

"As far as flying to England is concerned, I have been talking the last couple of days to Gibbons about it [H. A. Gibbons, personal representative of Rodman Wanamaker], and I want to go, and hope that we will be able to fix it so we can go over there."

Referring to Chamberlin's flight, Commander Byrd said:

"I watched it carefully from beginning to the end, when we were back there in the United States. They were wonderful sports in every way. When they started out we were everywhere a little apprehensive, but one cannot always tell about a transatlantic flight. He is one of the best men in the world and his was one of the greatest flights ever accomplished. I want to say this, gentlemen, I wish him the very best luck in future undertakings, and I know that he is going to do other great things."

Chamberlin, who was present, when called on for a speech, said:

"Our flight was similar to that of the others, but we didn't have it quite so bad. The credit is not all ours. Part of it goes to the designers of the planes and the engine, and part of it is Levine's, not only for the money he put into it, but for the help he gave me. I was practically exhausted at one time and I said to Levine: 'Take it and see what you can do with it.' This was over Germany at 21,000 feet altitude.

"We had heard that the French people were not particularly enthusiastic about us, but we received here, perhaps, the most sincere reception that we got anywhere."

Commander Byrd received another medal tonight, that of the International League of Aviators, which was presented to him just before the gala ball opened.

Commander Byrd and his companions, and Chamberlin and Levine got a tremendous reception from the 2,000 guests, most of whom wanted their programs signed.

Greets French Boy Scout.

Commander Byrd paid high praise to the Boy Scouts of the world in a greeting to the members of the organization in France, transmitted today through Captain Rene L'Hopital, aide to Marshal Foch and leader of the movement here.

In his letter, the transatlantic flyer, who was himself a Scout, wrote:

"I am tremendously interested in your movement, and want to send through Captain L'Hopital, greetings from the Boy Scouts of America. Scouts get the kind of training that makes good aviators and great fellows for aviation. I would not hesitate to take with me on an Arctic flight a boy who has made a good Scout."

M. Lebrix, who is to be navigator for Maurice Drouhin, the French aviator who hopes to be the first to fly from Paris to New York, visited Commander Byrd this morning and obtained all possible information on routes, air currents and phenomena observed on the recent ocean flight. At the end of the conference, Commander Byrd presented to M. Lebrix his charts and a copy of his log, voicing the hope that they would assist in the flight from Paris to New York.

Tomorrow, for the first time since their arrival, the Byrd party will be temporarily separated. Lieutenant Balchen expects to fly to Amsterdam to interview officials of the Fokker Company regarding the south polar flight. He will go by plane from Le Bourget and expects to return to Paris by air before nightfall.

CITY RECEPTION TODAY.

PARIS, July 6.—Tomorrow the crews of the Columbia and the America will be received at the Hotel de Ville at a big reception given by the Municipality of Paris. The National Aeronautic Association of the United States will also give a reception during the day.

On Saturday, when the party leaves Paris, Commander Byrd and his companions will motor to Dunkirk where he will be made a freeman of that ancient Channel town and receive the gold medal of the city, his companions receiving the silver medal. All intend to cross the Channel to London Sunday and return to the United States on the Leviathan Tuesday.

GRACE TO FLY IN DOLE RACE.

Hawaii-California Flier Who Crashed to Enter Competition.

HONOLULU, July 6 (AP).—Announcement was made today that the plane in which Richard Grace, movie stunt aviator, crashed on the Island of Kauai July 4 shortly after taking off for a flight to California will be entered for the Dole prizes of $35,000 offered for the first and second fliers to reach Hawaii from the American mainland after Aug. 12.

Elston B. Koger, mechanic for Grace, said that the plane would be shipped to Los Angeles and repaired in time for the Dole competition. Grace and Carl C. Spangenberger, rigger of his machine, are expected to return to California on the first steamer. Koger may remain in Honolulu.

"When I return to Hawaii by air in the Dole Competition," said Grace today, "I will land at Honolulu and then fly to Kauai to take off from the runway at Mana for a return flight to the mainland.

"I plan to cut the wing span to increase the speed of the plane, which is already 140 miles an hour.

"The pup (Grace's mascot) will accompany me both ways. It will be hard to separate that pup from me since we have been in a crack-up together."

PLAN WORLD AIR REGISTRY.

Nations to Classify Aircraft as They Do Seagoing Craft.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—An international air register, whose object will be to classify the aircraft of the world in the same manner as its ships is being formed by ship classification societies in the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Norway and Japan. The new organization, which probably will become popularly known by its initials as "A. I. R.," will be composed of the American Bureau of Shipping, the British Corporation, the Germanischer Lloyd, the Norske Veritas of Norway, the Register Italiano, the Bureau Veritas of France and the Imperial Japanese Corporation.

GERMAN GIRL PILOT MAY FLY ATLANTIC

NOT AFRAID OF LONG STRAIN

Sailing With Chamberlins on Leviathan—She Will Perform Here Before Selecting Plane for Hop.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 6.—The broad Atlantic and the thirty-three odd hours required to cross it by air have no terrors for Fraulein Thea Rasche, the twenty-seven-year-old German girl pilot who to date has never flown longer than the two and a half hours her stunt plane's gasoline tanks permit.

"I have a very robust constitution and I have had sufficient experience in flying to feel certain that I am capable of accomplishing such an undertaking," she declared today, explaining that her present plans were to make the flight from America to Europe alone, although she might take a mechanic on the trip.

Fraulein Rasche is the daughter of a wealthy Essen brewer and has been assured plenty of funds for her expedition. She arrived yesterday in Paris in a pretty little sport model Siemens plane with a hundred horsepower Flamingo motor. She first decided to attempt the transatlantic flight after meeting Chamberlin and Levine in Berlin, and will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Levine aboard the Leviathan to New York when they sail July 12.

"My father greatly opposed my ambition to become a flier when I first started to study aviation, in 1924," she admitted. "But when I got my diploma and became a stunt flier he became confident of my ability and is now my most enthusiastic admirer. I flew from Hamburg to Essen to see my parents before leaving for America, and then yesterday flew from Essen to Paris. It is my plan to fly to London and give an exhibition of stunt flying there, and then have my plane taken aboard the Leviathan and join Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlin, who have been kind enough to invite me to accompany them. Mr. Levine, when he arrives in America, will assist me in making my arrangements."

The girl pilot is tall, blond and bobbed, with a bright complexion, sturdy but not plump, and is said by those who have watched her fly to be a past master at stunt flying.

"I do loops and all kinds of turns; in fact, any kind of acrobatic stunts the other pilots do," she said, without any tone of boastfulness, out any tone of boastfulness.

She said she planned to remain some time in the United States, traveling about doing stunt-flying in various places, even possibly going to South America before making her transatlantic attempt.

"I have not yet decided on the details of this flight, and though I would like to be the first woman to fly it, that is not my object," she stated. "My plane will be built in America. I don't know what type it will be, and I intend to visit the plane factories and inspect the engines with a view to picking the best equipment for the flight. I think perhaps the motor will be a Wright Whirlwind. Mr. Levine has talked to me about taking a larger plane with three motors, but I prefer to fly alone, or with a mechanician only. I have never taken a long flight because my small-stunt plane holds only sufficient gasoline for two and a half hours, but before I attempt the Atlantic I shall make several long test flights so as to feel sure that I am strong enough to withstand the strain."

Prophesys Milan-New York Flights.

MILAN, Italy, July 6 (AP).—Gianni Caproni, famous Italian airplane designer and constructor, today joined the ranks of those prophesying regular transatlantic aerial service. "It will soon be easy to fly from Milan to New York in twenty-four hours,"

LINDBERGH'S PLANE TUNED FOR AIR TOUR

Flier Will Start Trip as Soon as Book Is Completed—Friend Says He Is Rewriting All of It.

While Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh worked in seclusion yesterday on his book, "We," at the home of friends on Long Island, mechanics at the Wright Aeronautical Corporation were at work on the engine of the Spirit of St. Louis. The Ryan monoplane, which Colonel Lindbergh flew to Teterboro Airdrome at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., last Monday, was placed in the Wright hangar, where the motor was removed and taken to the Wright factory in Paterson. This particular Wright Whirlwind has had about ninety hours in the air and has flown about 10,000 miles, according to Colonel Lindbergh. He said yesterday morning that it was "in perfect shape." Nevertheless the builders of the engine want to inspect it before the Colonel starts on his tour under the auspices of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics.

News that the silver gray monoplane was in a hangar at Teterboro drew crowds to the field all day. A special guard of Hackensack policemen has been assigned to look after the ship.

As soon as the motor has been remounted an engineer from the Pioneer Instrument Company will test the instruments and "swing the compass" to make sure that everything is ready for the tour. By Monday the ship would be ready, and the start will be made as soon after that as Colonel Lindbergh is finished with his book.

While the flier's book is fairly well along, a friend said yesterday that the Colonel had decided to rewrite all of it and this he is now doing. Until he completes it he plans to see no one and even to give up all flying.

LINDBERGH'S ESCORT BURIED

Lieutenant Johnson Is Seventh Flier Mourned by Fenton, Mich.

FENTON, Mich, July 6 (AP).—An aviator's town this afternoon paid its last honors to an adopted son, when the funeral of Lieutenant J. Thad Johnson, Selfridge Field flier killed in Ottawa while acting as an escort to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, was held here, the home of his widow.

This little town of 2,500 population has perhaps paid the highest toll to aviation of any town of its size in the country, as Fenton to-day mourned for the seventh time within fourteen years the tragic end of a man who gave his life in pursuing the business of aviation.

Only a part of the public was able to find seats this afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church where the funeral was held. The seating capacity is 350, and half of the auditorium was reserved for members of the Masonic Order, Selfridge Field men, intimate friends and the family.

Pallbearers were selected from a group of Selfridge Field men and Fenton Masons, all close friends of the dead flier. A group of planes from Selfridge Field flew over the village during the rites. The Rev. John Kitching officiated at the funeral and Monsignor Patrick R. Dunnigan, pastor of St. Michael's Catholic Church in Flint, a World War chaplin, represented the army at the service.

PLANE TURNS OVER, 6 HURT.

Pleasure Flight Marred When Ship Makes Bad Landing in Michigan.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 6 (AP).—Six of eight passengers in a three-motor airplane belonging to Ross W. Judson, President of the Continental Motors Corporation, received severe bruises and other minor injuries when the machine, in making a landing at the local flying field, turned upside down.

The passengers, guests of Mr. Judson, were en route from Muskegon to Detroit and Cleveland. Judson was only slightly hurt, but five others required hospital treatment. They included Mrs. Evelyn Bentley of Sheridan, Wyo., and Lieutenant George R. Pond of New York City, pilot of the machine.

BYRD ANNOUNCES SOUTH POLE PLANS

and froze to death. As I shall explain, we are making plans which we believe will protect us from such a fate.

There is one great difference with respect to explorations in the north polar and south polar regions. In Summer there is unlikely to be storms around the North Pole, but in the south polar regions these storms spring up frequently and sometimes with terrific violence. Therefore, aviators who attempt to conquer the South Pole should have knowledge of meteorology themselves and should take along the best meteorologists available.

Vast Area of Solid Ice.

The great ice barrier to which I have referred ranks as one of the natural wonders of the world. It is 400 miles wide, 400 miles deep toward the Pole and 200 feet thick, a solid hunk of ice which some scientists, including Amundsen, think rests upon ground.

We hope to accomplish our mission in two trips. The first one will be a preliminary expedition. I am not yet ready to announce definitely when we will leave, but probably the earliest date at which the barrier could be reached would be the first part of September.

The expedition will leave the United States some time in the Fall, going by way of New Zealand to the ice which lies north of the Ross Sea at that time of the year. Then we would have to drive through the ice in which many ships have gone down.

We expect to have a personnel comparable to that of the Arctic expedition, about half a hundred men. We hope to take two planes, one of which will be a three-engine plane and the other a one-engine plane. Both of them can be equipped with pontoons necessary to fly from the water over snow, where the pontoons can be changed to skiis.

The smaller airplane will be used for reconnaissance work and notably for finding landing places for the larger plane. I am very glad to have had the experience I got on our two expeditions into the Arctic regions, because that enabled me to learn something about flying from the snow with skiis.

Will Carry Dogs and Sleds.

We also expect to take with us some dog-team drivers and half a hundred or so dogs, with sleds. These will be utilized to haul supplies from the edge of the ice up to our main base, to help put down bases along the route to the Pole and to allow scientists to go off on subexpeditions of their own in different directions.

It is thought that the attack on the South Polar region would not be so hazardous if bases were put down every hundred miles, because in case of the forced landing of the planes we could walk from base to base and thus get back to safety.

So far as known, there is no food whatever in the Antarctic Continent, whereas there are some seal and polar bear in parts of the Polar Sea. Also there is considerable game in the North Polar region. But it is only on the fringe of the Antarctic Continent that food can be procured. There are to be found birds, seal and whale, but no polar bear.

Will Go First in Whaling Ship.

On this preliminary expedition we will probably go down to the ice barrier on a whaling ship. On our first trip to Etah, the northernmost Eskimo village in the world, the base which Peary used to attack the North Pole, which lies only about 1,760 miles away, we had to buck considerable ice as late as July, and did not reach Etah until Aug. 1.

This meant that we had less than a month for operations, as before September open water began to freeze around the steamer. If we reach the ice barrier the first part o September, as we expect to do, we will have until the first of March for operations.

We should then be able to get enough information and put down enough bases to be able to penetrate far into the Antarctic Continent the following Summer season. In this case, and I cannot be at all certain about it, we may not have to spend down there the great Antarctic night, which lasts about six months. We will, however, go prepared to stay about a year and a half.

This means that we shall require the warmest of fur clothing for the personnel, such as reindeer parkas, polar bear or reindeer skin pants, sealskin and reindeer skin boots and sealskin or reindeer skin mittens. We will also have to be sure to have the proper kind of food, which will avoid giving us scurvy, the great enemy of Arctic explorers.

More than 1,000 men have lost their lives in trying to reach the North Pole and a considerable percentage of these died from scurvy. Now that aviation is available for explorers, I believe the South Pole and the Antarctic Continent will be conquered with very much smaller toll of life.

We believe it is advisable to combine airplanes with foot and dog team exploration in the Antarctic region. These two should work very well together.

Wishes to Reach Pole in Plane.

Of course, during our exploring we hope to reach the South Pole with our planes. This may be a little difficult, because at that altitude in that region the air is so rarefied that it makes landings more difficult. And since the South Pole is land, we hope to stay there a day or two for scientific observation.

From the bases for dog teams and planes, which we plan to lay down every 100 miles or so on the route to the Pole, we will work out to the right and left.

Our exploration by plane ought to be thrilling, for as soon as we get a few thousand feet in the air we will be able to look down on regions never before seen by a human being, and that is where the explorer gets his big kick.

What will we find? That is hard to answer. What did those who explored the United States find? Of course, much of the region there is probably covered with snow, but my theory is that some of it is not.

As for personnel, there will be with me many of my shipmates of the North Pole expedition—Floyd Bennett, my coleader; then Noville and Balchen, who are with me now; Mulroy and Demas, who helped us prepare this present expedition, and who were with us in the Arctic; Sorensen, who was with us on our first expedition, and Pedersen, who was with us on our second, and others.

The planes for this trip are now nearing completion and plans have been completed for the ship we will use. The expedition will be in many respects one of the most novel expeditions which ever nosed its way into the regions of ice.

AIR MAIL STAMPS MISSING.

Disappeared From Letters Carried by America After Landing.

PARIS, July 6 (AP).—Maurice Bokanowski, Minister of Public Works, has ordered a thorough investigation by the Postoffice Department to learn what became of the stamps on the majority of the letters carried by the transatlantic plane America.

The Minister seeks to establish whether the stamps were washed off in the immersion of the mail pouch when the America dropped into the sea off Ver-sur-Mer or whether they were subsequently removed as souvenirs before delivery.

Thus far only a few of those who received letters have found the stamps intact. One, addressed to a member of The Associated Press staff, arrived minus the stamp but with the Ver-sur-Mer postmark.

The only satisfaction of the recipients, from a collectors' viewpoint, is that the postmarks are very plain, owing to the care of the clerks who handled the letters.

The mail pouch was first taken to Caen, but later, at the request of the Prefect of the Department of Calvados and the American Consulate at Cherbourg, it was sent back to Ver-sur-Mer and opened there in the presence of the Mayor. Each letter was canceled and sent forward through the usual channels by train.

The letters were thoroughly wet, but in no case thus far reported was any destroyed or illegible.

FLIER FALLS IN BAY IN HAWAII FAREWELL

Lieutenant Williams Drowns as Maitland and Hegenberger Sail From Honolulu.

THOUSANDS SEE ACCIDENT

Two Transpacific Aviators to Call on Coolidge on Way to Washington Welcome.

HONOLULU, July 6 (AP).—First Lieutenant Charles Linton Williams was drowned to-day during an aerial demonstration by army planes in farewell to Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger, who flew here from Oakland, Cal., June 29.

Williams's plane dived into the water near the liner Maui off Fort De Russy, carrying him down with it. Efforts to rescue Williams failed, and attempts were made to recover his body.

Williams was born in Arizona in 1898. He was appointed to West Point from Tennessee, graduating in 1918. He was unmarried.

Maitland and Hegenberger sailed for San Francisco on the Maui after a week's celebration of their nonstop flight of 2,400 miles over the Pacific. Thousands gathered at the docks to cheer them, and they were laden with flower leis when they went aboard the steamer.

Meanwhile, a dozen airplanes performed evolutions overhead in honor of their comrades of the Army Air Service. Suddenly the one driven by Williams was seen to be out of control and a few moments later it plunged into the sea and disappeared.

The Maui was stopped and a lifeboat was sent out, but neither it nor the navy seaplane which alighted on the water was able to find trace of Williams or his plane.

The Star-Bulletin said it understood Williams was engaged to marry the former wife of Horace Dodge, member of the wealthy Detroit family formerly engaged in the manufacture of automobiles. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dodge recently were in Hawaii and were divorced after their return to the mainland.

Army friends of Williams said Mrs. Dodge expected to return to Honolulu this month. Meanwhile, they asserted, Williams was seeking a house and planning for the marriage. Mrs. Dodge was reported to be in Los Angeles.

Fliers to Hawaii to Visit Coolidge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Preliminary plans have been made for the reception to continental United States of Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland ar Albert F. Hegenberger for their non-stop flight to Hawaii and assure an enthusiastic greeting from the West to the East Coast.

The aviators are expected in San Francisco from Hawaii by steamer on July 13, leaving their tri-motored monoplane in the islands for regular army service.

After the West Coast has shown its esteem, it is planned for the aviators to go by train to North Platte, Neb., and from that point to fly an army plane to the Black Hills Summer home of President Coolidge to receive his congratulations in the name of the nation.

The next stop will be Milwaukee, the home of Lieutenant Maitland, and there the Hawaiian fliers will attend the dedication of a new flying field, for which the name Maitland Airport has been selected.

The fliers will stop at Dayton, Ohio, the station from which they departed for the Pacific Coast to undertake their overseas flight, and will leave there by plane for Washington to be greeted by Secretary of War Davis, Assistant Secretary Davison, in charge of army aviation; Major Gen. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Corps, and other officials. Their welcome here will include a reception or dinner by the Naval Aeronautic Association.

After leaves of absence for rest, Lieutenant Maitland will return to his duties in the office of Assistant Secretary Davison and Lieutenant Hegenberger will resume the direction of the instrument division of the Air Corps at Dayton. It is a foregone conclusion that both fliers will be awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses.

the reservation. Turning about, Captain Brower raced to camp and reported. An ambulance was dispatched and Dr. Von Lockum, an army surgeon, was carried to the scene in another plane. He found Captain Wheeler dead in the wreckage and Lieutenant Sack unconscious.

The plane, officers assert, was constructed in 1915 by the Curtiss Aviation Company and was similar to machines employed for training during the war. Originally these were equipped with Curtiss 4 type motors of 90 horsepower, giving the machines a speed of 80 miles an hour. It is said that the planes were to be discarded at the end of this season.

Captain Wheeler was a Yale graduate, class of 1912. He was unmarried. His parents are dead. His father formerly was editor of World's Work. He served with the field artillery on the Mexican border in 1915 and was transferred to the Air Service in 1917. He served in the air corps in France, bringing down three German planes and winning the Distinguished Service Cross, the French Croix de Guerre with nine palms, and the Belgian Order of Leopold.

Lieutenant Sack was a graduate of Columbia University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His parents and several brothers and sisters survive. He joined the air corps about two years ago.

Apparently Fell in Nose Dive.

The wrecked plane was flying comparatively low, having volplaned to drop messages to the 105th Infantry, New York National Guard, for which it was observing. From the position of the plane, which had buried its blunt nose some two feet in the sand, it fell in a nose dive. Although there are dwarf oak and small trees near the spot, which was occupied by the camp of Major Gen. Frederick Grant in the first manoeuvres on the reservation in 1908, the plane struck on open ground, where landing might have been possible.

The weather at the time was slightly cloudy, but with good visibility, the air being slightly bumpy, according to officers.

This afternoon General Gillette appointed the following on the Board of Inquiry: Colonel William R. Pooley, 174th Infantry; Colonel R. K. Robertson, 105th Infantry; Colonel Charles G. Blakeslee, 104th Field Artillery; Major James G. Tebbut, executive officer to the commander, and Captain Lawrence Brower, Twenty-seventh Division Air Service. The court convened at 5 o'clock at Pine Camp.

The planes arrived late Saturday, flying from Miller Field, to engage in two weeks' training here. The accident, General Gillette stated, would in no way affect the manoeuvres.

High National Guard officials, including Major Gen. William Haskell, commanding the State Militia, and Brig. Gen. Franklin H. Ward, Adjutant General, are expected tomorrow to witness the sham battle and night attack, climax of the manoeuvres.

Military Funeral at Camp Today.

Military services for Captain Wheeler and Lieutenant Sacks will be held at Pine Camp at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. All troops will be paraded in a hollow square, the coffins being borne within on gun caissons. Chaplain Ford of the 105th Artillery will conduct services and a plane, flown by brother officers of the dead airmen, will soar above the field, dropping wreaths.

After the service the bodies will be taken from the field on caissons, escorted by field and staff officers led by General Gillette, the 104th Field Artillery Band playing a dead march. As the caissons leave the camp buglers will sound taps. The bodies will be returned to this city and sent with escort on the 10:30 A. M. train to New York.

First sitting of the inquiry board late today revealed a number of infantrymen who witnessed the fall of the plane. General Gillette also saw the machine drop. Its height just before the crash was estimated at from 150 to 200 feet.

None of the observers or those who inspected the wreck could assign a cause for the accident supported by evidence, and General Gillette tonight voiced doubt that the cause would be established. He stated that there was no known defect in the plane, which was in good order when it took off.

Denies It Was an 1915 Plane.

PINE CAMP, Great Bend, N. Y., July 6 (AP).—Captain William G. Rector, Adjutant of the Twenty-seventh Division Air Service, denied that Captain Wheeler and Lieutenant Sack met their death in a 1915 plane. Captain Rector said the plane was built in 1918, was completely rebuilt in 1925, and had been thoroughly inspected just prior to its last flight and was in excellent condition.

It was learned late tonight that the board of inquiry found that the accident had occurred in the line of duty and that it was not brought about by the fault or neglect of any person or persons concerned. General Gillett stated that it was an unaccountable accident, the exact cause of which never will be known.

Wheeler Native of Philadelphia.

Captain Curtis Wheeler was born at Philadelphia, Aug. 18, 1889. His father was the late Edward J. Wheeler, an editor and publisher with the Current Literature Publishing Company of New York, and was at one time the editor of Current Opinion and The Literary Digest.

Captain Wheeler prepared for college at Phillips Andover, class of 1907. While at Yale, he took part in many extracurriculum activities, including debating, publications, track and rowing. He was a member of Zeta Psi Fraternity.

After his graduation, Captain Wheeler spent four years in the publishing business in New York, mainly with the Crowell Publishing Company. He then went to Chicago as Western manager for Current Opinion, returning to this city in 1916 as assistant general manager of the Current Literature Publishing Company.

After the war, he re-entered the publishing business on the editorial staff of the Literary Digest and later became the assistant editor of Everybody's, before going to The New York Herald Tribune.

He was a leader of the Boys' Club for many years, at one time acting as director and recently being a member of the Board of Trustees. He was also interested in various civic movements, and was closely identified with the Republican organization in the Fifteenth Assembly District. His clubs were the Yale, City, Army and Navy and the Pelham Country Club.

His nearest relatives are two aunts, Miss Mary L. Wheeler and Miss Mabel Wheeler of Wellesley, Mass.

Sack to Have Been Married Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, July 6.—Lieutenant Carl Sack, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Sack of Hamilton, Md., who was killed today in an airplane crash at Watertown, N. Y., was to have been married in two weeks to Marion Hunter of New York City, his father said.

Lieutenant Sack was a native of Baltimore and was graduated from the Polytechnic Institute. He went to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology after his graduation here and took a course in electrical engineering. He later went to New York and joined the National Guard there.

TWO GO DOWN IN OHIO RIVER.

West Virginia Youths Are Drowned as Plane Crashes.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 6 (AP).—Walter Shepherd and John P. Morgan were drowned this afternoon when their airplane dropped into the Ohio River at Cox's Landing, near here.

Shepherd, aged 18 years, was an automobile salesman here and an amateur air pilot. Morgan, 18, of Pliny, W. Va., was attending Marshall College.

Shepherd had rented planes several times from a Huntington airship company. He had made no arrangements to go up today, and apparently the flight was not authorized by the company.

According to eye-witnesses, the plane appeared to be "bumping" as it neared Cox's Landing. It finally nosed over into a dive and struck the water 200 feet from shore, sinking immediately.

The bodies were recovered tonight in the cockpit of the plane.

BERTAUD NOW PLANS OCEAN FLIGHT TO ROME

New Plane Is Being Built at Hasbrouck Heights—Venture Set for Next Month.

Plans for another transatlantic flight, the start to be from Roosevelt Field and the objective Rome, were announced yesterday, the plane to be a single motored Fokker monoplane and the pilot Lloyd W. Bertaud, who was originally chosen to accompany Chamberlin in the Bellanca, but after a quarrel with Charles A. Levine lost his chance.

Bertaud left Cleveland yesterday to come to New York to perfect plans for the flight.

The airplane is under construction at the Atlantic Aircraft Company's plant at Hasbrouck Heights and is expected to be ready for its first test flights within three weeks. It was purchased by William Randolph Hearst some time ago for his own use but has now been diverted to a transatlantic flight project.

The plane will be equipped with a Bristol Jupiter air-cooled radial engine which develops 480 horsepower in flight, and is rated at 450 horsepower. The motor was made in England and is now en route to this country. The plane will have a wing spread of 64 feet and its lift surface totals 630 square feet. The America's wing spread was over 70 feet. The total weight of the plane loaded will be above 12,000 pounds, according to the estimates.

The second man in the crew has not yet been named. The flight is expected to take place some time in August.

URGES OCEAN FLIGHT FROM EAST TO WEST

Scarr Says That Is First Preliminary of Transatlantic Air Service.

James H. Scarr, senior meteorologist of the Weather Bureau here, told The Associated Press yesterday that he believed there would be some sort of regulation of transatlantic air service within five years but that by far the most difficult preliminary step was still to be taken.

That preliminary is the first pioneering flight along the ocean air course from east to west, which he sees as "at least 50 per cent. more difficult" than the now thrice-traveled eastward course.

Scientific data gathered by Commander Richard E. Byrd during the flight of the America, believes Mr. Scarr, may very likely prove to be of the greatest importance in paving the way for a successful western flight, as well as for all long-distance flying, and so for speeding the day when there will be regular two-way service.

"You can't have an airline that travels only one way," he said. "There would be no purpose in flying to Europe and then having to ship your plane back by steamer for another flight to Europe. The western course also must be shown to be possible, and it will be, but the difficulties are great."

What was needed now, he said, was the development of means for gathering atmospheric data over the ocean so that regular weather charts might be printed, similar to the weather charts for the land.

"At the coming session of the Legislature," he said, "steps should be taken to appropriate money, and the expense would not be great, so that we can set up a regular machinery for gathering ocean observations.

"Once we get authorization to go ahead, we will arrange with officers of commercial vessels to send us regular weather reports, and we will have our own men on several ships to report both surface conditions and upper air conditions probably obtained by kites or captive balloons. When that system is under way we shall be able to chart the ocean air conditions accurately and a long step will have been taken toward improving transoceanic flying."

He advocated a conference this year of the meteorological services of America, France and England to arrange cooperation in the gathering and transmission of ocean weather data to aid in ocean flying.

2,059 CIVILIAN PILOTS SEEK FLYING LICENSES

Applications Have Greatly Increased Since the Atlantic and Pacific Flights.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—The speed with which America is taking to the air was illustrated today by a Commerce Department estimate that 2,059 civilian pilots are seeking licenses to operate, while in addition, 1,579 applications to license planes and 1,925 applications to license air mechanics, are either pending or have been granted.

So great has been the pressure upon the new division of the Commerce Department since the transatlantic and transpacific flights that W. P. MacCracken Jr., Assistant Secretary in Charge of Aeronautics, has had to issue a general order allowing applications to come into force as licenses until such time as the overworked inspecting staff of sixteen officials is able to pass upon them.

Major C. M. Young, in charge of registration, expressed the opinion today that even with the total of nearly 5,000 applications for pilot, plane or mechanic license on hand, the department had not yet heard from all operators. Approximately 300 airplanes already are operated under the department's identification licenses, but not in interstate travel.

No figures are available to demonstrate the increase in aeronautical activities during the last year, since the Government took charge of civilian flying only in February.

LEVINE ANNOUNCES HE WILL FLY BACK

ter of another pilot into consideration and has discussed his plan with several in Paris. Mindful of the warmth and cordiality shown by France to Colonel Lindbergh in demonstrations which indicated their intense and traditional love toward his country, and deeply appreciative of her hospitality toward Chamberlin and himself, he has determined to select and fly back with one of her sons as pilot and expects to make a definite choice and announcement within a few days.

"Naturally, it is his wish to be the first to negotiate the trip. To that end every effort consistant with safety will be made to speed up and expedite the plan. Beyond giving out the name of the pilot there will be no reason for further announcements."

Levine's announcement has roused the keenest interest among French airmen and the French public. His decision to confide his own life and his plane to a French pilot is regarded as a sincere compliment. Since its arrival at Le Bourget the Bellanca plane has been the centre of constant interest and admiration of French pilots, and there is likely to be many applicants for the honor of piloting it home.

During the morning Chamberlin and Levine were welcomed at the headquarters of the International League of Aviators. For Chamberlin's feat in keeping his plane aloft for fifteen hours at a height which reached sometimes 21,000 feet and so outriding the storm on the night of his arrival in Europe French airmen have more admiration than for any other accomplishment of the transatlantic fliers. To them Chamberlin is the ace of all.

His welcome was very sincere. In introducing the airman and his passenger, Clifford Harmon, President of the league, announced that he had just received from Mr. Levine a check for 100,000 francs to help in the construction of a clubhouse for airmen at Le Bourget, which will be built by the International League.

BIRGER TRIAL OPENS FOR ADAMS SLAYING

Illinois Gang Leader Seeks to Separate Case of Former Lieutenant.

SPECTATORS CROWD COURT

They Witness Affectionate Scene Between the Prisoner and His Two Children.

Special to The New York Times.

BENTON, Ill., July 6.—Charles Birger, gangster, went to trial here today for murder, with his two little daughters, Charlene, aged 5, and Minnie, 9 years, crawling all over him and hugging and kissing him, their childish voices carrying endearments that sometimes could be heard over the hum of the crowded courtroom. Beside Birger sat his 19-year-old second wife, Bernice.

His trial opened with his lawyers, headed by R. E. Smith of Benton, charging that the jury that indicted him for the murder of Joe Adams, saloonkeeper-Mayor of West City, was handpicked by Sheriff Pritchard of Franklin County.

This opening gun of the defense indicated the kind of a fight that Birger is going to make for his life. His lawyers' argument was on a motion to quash the indictment. Judge Charles H. Miller overruled them, denying the motion. But the facts and arguments remained in the record, which was, apparently, what the lawyers wanted, for they may have to take the case to the Supreme Court.

Birger's counsel next made a motion for a separate trial from Art Newman. Newman made a motion to be separated in trial from Birger. Ray Hyland elected to stay with Birger and added his motion to Birger's.

Newman was formerly one of Birger's first lieutenants. Lately he has made a confession to the authorities charging that Birger last Fall murdered Lory Price, Williamson County highway policeman, and caused to be killed Price's young wife, Ethel.

Birger and Hyland in their affidavits supporting their request for a severance from Newman, charged he had made statements and admissions extremely prejudicial to their case. Newman, in his petition, made the same charge against Birger and Hyland.

Franklin County's half century old dapple gray court house, standing in its typical Southern Illinois town plaza, fairly groaned under the crowd that today filled it. Men and women, youths and young girls and even children crowded to get a look at the gang leader.

Inside the court room there was expectancy and impatient waiting. Suddenly there was a commotion at the door and everybody turned.

"At last," they whispered, but they were wrong; it was not Birger; only Newman between two deputies, a little, dark, square faced man in a neat blue suit. Hyland came next, walked in and sat down. He was smiling and untroubled as he took his seat.

Another noise at the door and Birger came in escorted by Sheriff Pritchard and a number of guards with guns strapped on. Once within the rail Birger stooped over the back of the little girls' chair and kissed them. He leaned over and kissed his wife. Then he went around and sat in his chair, the children crawling on his lap.

Judge Miller adjourned court immediately after the motion for separate trials, indicating that he will rule on the motions tomorrow.

In the formal arraignment of the prisoners, the State's Atorney, Roy C. Martin, announced that he would seek the death penalty in all three cases.

Three Gwinnett Signatures Found in Britain; Gabriel Wells Buys Them in School Records

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—Three newly discovered autographs of Button Gwinnett, one of the signatories of the American Declaration of Independence, have been bought by Gabriel Wells, New York book dealer, from the trustees of the Wolverhampton Bluecoat Charity School.

C. F. Jenkins, author of a monograph on Gwinnett, suggested that there might be many of his autographs "lurking in various archives in Bristol and Wolverhampton." It is known that Gwinnett was in business in Wolverhampton until about 1765, when he emigrated to Savannah.

The suggestion of Mr. Jenkins had a remarkable sequel. Gerald Mander, son of Sir Charles Mander, while searching the records of the Wolverhampton Bluecoat School, examined a folio volume of minutes extending from 1716 onward, and within the compass of a few pages discovered no fewer than three fine signatures of Gwinnett, dated, respectively Aug. 6, Nov. 5 and Dec. 3, 1761.

Those minutes concerned ordinary events in the history of the school and were signed in one column by the school trustees and in the other by subscribers. Gwinnett's signatures appear as those of a subscriber.

In view of the high value of Gwinnett's signatures, owing to their extreme rarity, the present trustees decided they should be sold and the proceeds used for the benefit of the Bluecoat School. Negotiations were opened with Mr. Wells and the sale was concluded yesterday.

The price is not mentioned, but it is understood to involve a considerable sum. It is pointed out that last November, at a sale at the Anderson Galleries, $28,500 was paid for a document signed by Gwinnett in full, which was the highest price ever paid for such a paper.

An original manuscript score for orchestral parts of the American hymn, "To Thee, O Country," by Julius Eichberg, was sold at an auction in London today for $175.

DR. HOWELL LEAVES EGYPT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, July 6.—Dr. Morton Howell, the retiring American Minister, received a hearty send-off today when he boarded the President Monroe at Alexandria on his way to the United States. The gathering at the quay side consisted principally of Egyptians, mostly members of the Egyptian Temperance League, the President of which, Prince Omart Toussoun, delivered a speech lauding Dr. Howell's work in Egypt and expressing gratitude for his manifold marks of sympathy toward the Egyptians.

Several other speeches were delivered by Egyptians, but no Americans spoke. The number of Americans present was small. Dr. Howell, showing emotion, replied briefly, remarking that his farewell speech was already delivered. Probably bearing in mind the fact that his other speeches were not popular, he showed more restraint on this occasion.

Among the crowd present was Senator Chalmers of Ohio. At the conclusion of the ceremony cheers were given for the United States, President Coolidge and Omar Toussoun.

treatment for diabetic coma for two hours, was attacked by Dr. Jones. The interne said that the telephone call summoning him to treat the woman had been withheld from him by Christian internes, and that the patient died an hour after he had reached the bedside.

Dr. Jones produced a record of a diabetic coma case, which he said was the only one of its kind treated in December last. This showed that Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan had died from diabetic coma thirty hours after being admitted, and that prompt treatment had been given her by Dr. C. C. Adams. Dr. Adams is one of the six accused internes. The Mayor asked Dr. Katskee, who was at the hearing, if he had not confused this case with another one.

Although the chart of Mrs. Ryan's case had been written up by Dr. Katskee, he denied that her case was the one he had testified about.

"I do not wish to change my testimony," he said, "as this case is not the one I mentioned. In this case cited by Dr. Jones the ambulance surgeon who brought her in gave improper treatment. The man who brought the case in gave the patient morphine when the woman was already in coma."

"All other cases of diabetes handled by Dr. Katskee died within five days," snapped Dr. Jones.

Questioned on Anti-Semitism.

The Mayor pressed the witness on whether religious prejudice existed at the hospital.

"Let us settle that question," said the Mayor, "do you believe that religious discrimination is practiced at the Kings County Hospital?"

"As a policy or as an individual matter?" asked Dr. Jones, leaning forward.

"Do you believe," said the Mayor, raising his voice, "as Superintendent of the institution that this discrimination exists?"

"As a policy I do not and as an individual matter I have no knowledge of it. Jewish doctors, Jewish employes, the rabbi who has been with us ten years and all others I have questioned have said they had seen no evidence of it. The first time I heard of it was when the rabbinical committee, of which Rabbi Gross is a member, called on me. Then they gave nothing concrete and their charges were generalizations."

Dr. Jones seemed particularly desirous of refuting Dr. Zweiffler's testimony on the death of the child. He said that the doctor who had attended the child at the last had been of "the opinion that some one had been careless and that some one's child was going to die because of it."

"In his indignation," the superintendent added, "he dictated a note saying that the needle used in the operation had caused an infection."

The autopsy, he said, had been determined upon because of the seriousness of the charge. After the post-mortem had cleared the operating physician, the task of writing a new chart on the case was assigned to Dr. William Wills. In reply to a question by the Mayor, the superintendent admitted that Dr. Wills was one of the doctors accused by the Jewish internes as a hazer.

Chart Not Forged, He Says.

"There was no forgery in the matter," said Dr. Jones, "because the chief physician was responsible for the correctness of the charts and he had the right to assign any one to alter a chart."

He denied that Dr. Zweiffler had been under a cloud at any time in connection with the child's death and said that the post-mortem had been made "because it might have been a hospital accident." The superintendent questioned the testimony of Dr. Borow, given last week, that he and others of his faith had been hampered in post-mortem work.

Dr. Borow had testified he had received only five post-mortems out of a monthly total of 200 at Kings County. Dr. Jones submitted records to show that fewer than 200 post-mortems a year were performed at the institution, "and if Dr. Borow got five he got more than his share, because internes are not required or expected to perform these operations, which are frequently of the utmost importance."

The Mayor displayed a great deal of interest in the system whereby Dr. Jones kept tabs on whether internes were on duty. At one point the Mayor suggested that the check-up systems whereby big hotels knew where bellhops were and why might be a good thing for city hospitals.

Hospital Orderly Testifies.

John McKernon, chief orderly at the hospital, was a witness. He was called in connection with the Jewish internes' charges that telephone calls from nurses seeking to have them attend patients during crises had not been delivered promptly. McKernon said he had always relayed such calls promptly, but admitted that he had no way of knowing whether the night orderly did so. He also testified that he found eggs and other débris on the floor of Dr. Solovay's room. Dr. Solovay has said that part of his persecution at the hospital consisted of the dumping of foul-smelling drugs in his quarters.

Dr. Henry Shannon was another witness. He is an assistant physician at the hospital and is an assistant to Dr. Jones. He testified that he was paid by the hospital but that he was seeking appointment to an internship, which pays no salary. He said he wanted the internship in order to enlarge his experience.

"Did the Commissioner of Accounts, James A. Huggins, visit the hospital on Friday night, July 1?" asked the Mayor.

"Yes," said Dr. Shannon.

"Is that the night you were practically in charge of the hospital?"

"As to that I can't say," replied the young doctor, hesitating, "I can't say whether Dr. Jones was in his home."

"As a matter of fact," persisted the Mayor, "you were in sole charge that night and you were an applicant for an internship."

The Mayor asked Dr. Shannon how many internes had been on duty that night. The witness said he had consulted the "in-and-out book," and believed that six had been available. Dr. Jones, in earlier testimony in the hearings, had testified that the "in-and-out" book, supposed to be a record of the whereabouts of the internes, was generally neglected.

"As a matter of fact," continued the Mayor, "you were in charge and didn't know what doctors were on duty."

Dr. Shannon's reply was indefinite.

At the end of the hearing the Mayor announced an adjournment until next Tuesday. He said he had asked Commissioner Higgins to assign six investigators to ascertain the methods employed in other city hospitals.

NEW CHARGES TO BE MADE.

More Serious Than Those Now Under Inquiry, Rabbi Levinthal Says.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 6.—Evidence that an anti-Semitic policy has prevailed in New York municipal hospitals for eleven or twelve years is in the hands of the investigating committee of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers, Rabbi Israel H. Levinthal of the Brooklyn Jewish Centre said here today. Rabbi Levinthal is here attending the convention of the Rabbinical Assembly of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. He is a member of the committee.

Rabbi Levinthal, in discussing the Kings County Hospital investigation, said that more serious charges than those now under inquiry would be presented to Mayor Walker in a few days. He declined to disclose the nature of those charges.

"The charges are not in the least exaggerated," he said. "We have records in our possession dating eleven and twelve years back, showing conclusively that this situation prevailed then. These records come from patients at the various hospitals."

Rabbi Max Drob of New York, President of the Rabbinical Assembly, deplored "the injection of racial antagonism" in public institutions in New York City.

"This hatred ought to be blotted out," he said. "Certainly a city-owned hospital is the last place for displaying such bigotry, for there it will result in the loss of human life."

AGAIN HUNT TRAIL OF KLAN IN INDIANA

Prosecutors Declare Stephenson, Former Ruler, Has Revealed Corruption in High Places.

SEARCH FOR 'BLACK BOX'

Ex-Grand Dragon, in Prison, Says He Told All He Knew About Indianapolis Mayor.

'GOING TO HAVE COMPANY'

He Is Reported to Have Described How Hooded Order Ruled Politics of the State.

Special to The New York Times.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., July 6.—D. C. Stephenson, one-time ruler of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, from behind his prison walls has again stirred up the Hoosier State with a new tale of intrigue.

This time, it appears, the former Grand Dragon has told of the corruption that attended his rule and has linked his old Klan associates and the officials who once bowed to his will in a great conspiracy.

Stephenson has been slaving away for two years at his task of winding wicker around wooden chairs and he has wearied, he says, of the prospect of serving all of his life sentence for the murder of an Indianapolis girl. He is lonely, he has said, a bit grimly, for some of his old playmates.

"There are vacant stools in the old chair factory," he told his chief counsel, Robert M. Moore, today. "I'm going to have company soon. I'll give them the evidence to send me a buch of playmates."

Many tales have been bandied about and many printed in the Indiana press about just what Stephenson said on Tuesday to Prosecuting Attorney William H. Remy of Indianapolis and his three special assistants in their three-hour interview.

Says He "Told All."

Indianapolis newspapers carry stories that Stephenson "told all"; that he hit high and low officials; that he revealed how he managed and paid for the campaign of Governor Jackson; that he told of ruling the Legislature, dictating which bills should pass and which should die; that he played a stellar rôle in the election of Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis; that he dabbled in the election of a United States Senator and much more along that line.

Moore, on the other hand, coming today from an interview with his client, said positively that Stephenson's only charges had to do with the pending prosecution of Mayor Duvall. Stephenson, concerned about the publication of what he is supposed to have told Prosecutor Remy, dictated the following statement, issued for him by Moore:

"I have been called a four-flusher, been ridiculed and abused, but I intend to give every bit of evidence I have. The people of Indiana know I'm not a bluffer and they'll know some day how I've been railroaded into the penitentiary.

"Prosecutor Remy treated me with the greatest courtesy. I gave him all the evidence I possess with relation to John L. Duvall. I will not take the witness stand against him because that will not be necessary. I have arranged for all documentary evidence that exists to be placed in Remy's hands.

"There's a little seat in the chair shop next to me that is vacant and I expect to have company before long.

"I have not blown the entire lid off the Indiana situation. Remy did not insist that I do so. The rest will come later and I promise that when the entire truth is told there will be a clean-up in this State that will startle the country and will benefit the State immeasurably."

Moore, when asked about the latter part of the statement, said it was his impression that Stephenson's information covered many transactions, political and otherwise, between Indiana politicians and leaders of the Ku Klux Klan. He said Stephenson could test the sincerity of the prosecutors by their use of the evidence he has given to them already, and if they failed other means of bringing out the truth would be brought to bear.

Hunt for the 'Black Box.'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 6 (AP).—Somewhere in Northern Indiana William H. Remy, Prosecutor of Marion County, today apparently was on the trail of the elusive "black box" which D. C. Stephenson says contains documentary evidence of political corruption in Indiana.

At the end of a conference yesterday with Stephenson, Remy and William H. Shaeffer, Deputy Prosecutor, departed on an unannounced mission toward South Bend. John W. Holtzman and Emsley W. Johns, Special Prosecutors, returned to Indianapolis this afternoon. The "black box," which has figured in the Stephenson charges for several months, is supposed to contain "evidence" to verify the former Klan leader's story.

It was thought that Mr. Remy might return here late tonight or tomorrow morning and immediately take up the matter of corroborating the story of Stephenson in which the former Dragon, according to report, pictured himself as a political dictator, told of the alleged purchase of election support for candidates, of pre-election deals and his alleged autocratic rule of the 1925 Legislature.

"Stephenson talked freely and frankly," said Mr. Remy before leaving Michigan City. "We are more than satisfied our investigation of the next few days will prove the truth or falsity of his statements."

Whether the evidence again will be laid before the Marion County Grand Jury was not determined. Two previous Grand Juries have delved into the charges let loose last September by Thomas H. Adams, publisher of The Vincennes (Ind.) Commercial.

The first inquisitorial body spent eleven weeks amassing a pile of testimony, but returning no indictments. The second Grand Jury was dismissed after one of the jurors made an affidavit that an attempt had been made to bribe him not to return an indictment against Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis. Then Prosecutor Remy and his aide took up the burden and recently returned indictments against Mayor Duvall and W. C. Buser, City Controller.

Newspapermen were not admitted to the hearing because of objections by Stephenson, but it is understood he freely discussed the Reed Senatorial Commission in St. Louis and Indianapolis and went into detail concerning alleged gifts to campaign funds by utilities. He told of the part he played in the last municipal election in Indianapolis and is said to have touched somewhat on the Senatorial elections.

Even while in jail, following his indictment for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, an Indianapolis girl, Stephenson is said to have declared that he sent messages and messengers to certain State House persons. He mentioned particularly sending messengers to the State House in a controversy over the personnel of the State Board of Health, the prosecutors said.

Try to Dynamite Club's Dam To Fish for Its Guarded Trout

SANDYSTON, N. J., July 6.—Two men were arrested today for attempting to dynamite the dam at the Flatbrook Valley Club to release the trout from the lake to the brook below, so that they could fish.

The men are George Heator of Branchville and Albert Hurkerton of Sandyston. They pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Simpson to an attempt to destroy private property, and were released in $500 bail each for the action of the Grand Jury.

The Flatbrook Valley Club is an organization of wealthy New York sportsmen. The club constructed the dam and recently stocked the lake with trout. The lake itself is guarded, and fishing by non-members of the club is prohibited.

Heator and Hurkerton, according to State Troopers Masky and Dennis Walsh, who arrested them, had been working all weekend boring holes into the dam, and had dynamite ready to blow it up.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 6.—Two Main Street stores were robbed last night, one by men who went over roofs to enter through a barred window, a clothing store where they got several hundred dollars worth of goods.

The clothing store is run by Benjamin Pinto at 141 Main Street. A short distance away on the same side the Metropolitan Shoe Repairing Company was robbed.

The pair were brought to the Atlantic City jail charged with operating a whisky still. The agents said they found about 1,250 gallons of mash and ninety gallons of the finished product in a hollow of the ground near the tree.

York Harbor (Me.) Plans Airport.

Special to The New York Times.

YORK HARBOR, Me., July 6.—A group of local residents are to develop a community aviation field for army, air mail and commercial purposes. A large tract of land along the York River has been taken over and an army air officer of the Boston airport is to arrive here Thursday to make a survey of the field to determine if it is suitable for the requirements of the Government. Airplanes have used the site in the past as an emergency landing place.

Daily delivery by our own motors is extended on the Long Island South Shore as far as Amagansett.

TAFT PREFERS BENCH TO THE PRESIDENCY

LIKES DETECTIVE STORIES

Summer Home in Canada Offers Respite in Which He Reads Much and Walks Little.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 6. — Untroubled by the swirl of politics, William Howard Taft is rounding out his seventieth year happier in his daily work than he ever has been before, in or out of office.

As he looks back over the two-score years of public service, the only man who has been both President and Chief Justice says quite frankly that he does not consider that he was "fitted" for the political arena and that he would rather be where he is today than in the White House.

He is so well satisfied and so greatly encouraged over the recent improvement in his health that he has no intention of leaving the bench when he becomes eligible for retirement. He will be 70 years old in September and if he chose could retire on full pay in 1931, when he completes ten years' service as Chief Justice. But he prefers to remain in harness.

These disclosures were made to The Associated Press by Mr. Taft in a friendly and intimate talk just before he left Washington recently for his Summer home in Canada. He now has consented to publication of this talk, in which he touched on many personal subjects and discussed, with a knowledge no other man ever possessed, the comparative requirements of the Presidency and the Chief Justiceship.

The talk took place in the study which he fitted out for himself some years ago in his home on Wyoming Avenue. It is a third-floor room, jutting out from the main structure of the house. Formerly a sleeping porch, it has windows on three sides and provides what the Chief Justice described, with his infectious chuckle, as "a commanding view." In the centre of the room stands a large desk. Between the windows rise stacks of law books. On the fourth side is an open fireplace and above it hangs a large portrait of the Chief Justice's father, who once was Secretary of War and later Attorney General. Near by are pictures of Abraham Lincoln and of various personal friends, including Elihu Root and President Lowell of Harvard.

Refuse Roosevelt's Offer.

As he approached his comparison of the two great offices he has held Mr. Taft made a passing reference to Theodore Roosevelt. Although he has near him no memento of the years of his association with Roosevelt the Chief Justice mentioned without a ruffle in his customary good nature the man who was his stanchest political friend and then his bitter opponent. He related how Roosevelt had offered him a place on the Supreme Court bench. At that time Justice Taft was Governor General of the Philippines, and he refused the offer.

"I declined because it was not deemed wise at that time, from a Philippine standpoint, to have a change in the office of Governor," he said. "The people wanted me to stay, and I yielded, although it had always been my ambition to serve on the bench. I do not care for politics."

With a smile that rippled into a hearty laugh, he added:

"Not that I have no interest in such matters, but I am not fitted for the hustings and controversy."

He enlarged upon this theme by pointing out that with him elevation to the highest judicial office in the country had not, as with some of his predecessors, broken personal contacts with friends or with the people generally. He retains a keen interest in current events and reads much, and he does not find himself lonesome for the society of office-seekers and politicians.

"I do not mind what is sometimes called the monastic life of the bench," he continued. "I have most delightful associates in the court and very pleasant relations with members of the bar.

More Isolated as President.

"These are, it should be noted, exactly defined, but the truth is you are more isolated in the Presidency. While a President sees a great many people, he cannot avoid defending himself against too great familiarity. He has got to be reserved and careful.

"The responsibilities of the Presidency are nerve-racking. If one is constituted like an ordinary man, life in the Presidency, while not requiring the same mental and intellectual labor that attaches to the Chief Justiceship, does enormously consume nervous energy, and is more trying than work on the bench.

"The difference between the exactions of the two offices is that in work on the bench you have the assistance of your colleagues, who share in the responsibility of the conclusions; the benefit of oral arguments by counsel and of briefs submitted on both sides of the controversy.

"And you have control of your time for careful study. In the Presidency you often have to make a decision on a question on the instant or overnight, or in so short a time that the risk of mistake is great, and then you have not the benefit of argument on both sides, often no argument on either, and you cannot always consult your Cabinet.

"Of course the Presidency is the office that attracts in the sense of power one is supposed to exercise, and there are those who greatly enjoy its constant exercise. But even in the strongest it takes much out of a man, and the strain is felt long after retirement to private life.

"The character of work on the bench, its steadiness and the regularity with which you can order your life, if you do not overdo the social part, makes it consistent with long life, hard as the work is."

The Chief Justice added that he now can enjoy a "real vacation," something he could not do while President. He puts aside entirely the duties of the court during his Summer recess, and at his place on Murray Cove, Canada, has a genuine respite from work, and makes the most of it. But it is a quiet vacation, for he has been warned by his physician that he must not overtax his heart.

"I gather all the books I can before starting on my vacation," he explained, "and spend most of my time on my porch overlooking the St. Lawrence River, which is nearly thirteen miles across. Free from study and concentration I rest until late in the vacation, when I receive briefs filed during the recess to enable me to catch up a little before starting upon real work of the court when I get back."

He continued that his doctors' advice had led him to give up the golf of his Presidential days, to abandon his practice of writing his court opinions in longhand, and to have an electric elevator installed in his home to obviate the necessity of stair climbing.

"When I had warning about my heart," he said, "I concluded to have an elevator installed. The arrangement puts my office on the same floor with the rooms occupied by my secretary and my law clerk.

"I used to write my opinions out in longhand, but since my illness I find it too confining. Therefore, I dictate and correct and revamp. Writing makes an exact man, as Bacon says; makes one more concise, more economical of space; but it is not as convenient. I work over the opinions so much that, as to conciseness, it makes no difference whether I write or dictate, I change and revise so much.

Studies Every Angle of Each Cast.

"I have a law clerk who goes over the records and the briefs. He makes a statement for me of what is in each, and then with that statement before me I read the briefs and make such references to the records as seem necessary. But I always read the briefs so as to know what the claim on both sides is, and then I read the opinions of the Courts below so I become familiar with the case and know what the issues are. When these petitions for review come before us we know what the cases are about, and whether they present questions we should pass upon.

"I walk every day for about half an hour. While I used to walk a great deal I feel that I am getting enough exercise."

Asked what he selected for his vacation reading and for his moments of quiet recreation during his busy moments, he replied unhesitatingly that autobiography was his favorite literature.

"I do not care particularly about novels, except by certain authors," he said, and then as an afterthought: "I do not mind detective stories, if I can get a good one, and have read many of them."

Now that he has accustomed himself to the regimen of diet and relaxation prescribed by his physician, the Chief Justice expects to benefit greatly by his Summer's sojourn in Canada. But he would be less happy in his vacation respite if he did not know that after it was over he could return to carry on the work of that unparalleled public career which began forty-six years ago when he became a minor county official in Ohio.

RIDES ATOP ELEVATOR, JAMMED AGAINST ROOF

Police reserves, two fire companies and a police rescue squad worked two hours yesterday to rescue from the elevator shaft of an apartment house at 2,140 Broadway the superintendent, James E. Roberts, 55 years old, who had become wedged betwen the car and the top of the shaft when the operator lost control of the elevator.

The elevator had been stopped at the sixth floor and Roberts was greasing the top of the car.

A passenger on the floor above rang and Frank Rees, negro operator, started the car up. At the seventh and top floor the elevator failed to stop but shot upward against the beams that support the lifting cables. Roberts was caught between the car and the beams.

Acetylene torches were used to cut through the iron grating of the elevator car. Even after the grating was removed it was not possible to remove Roberts because the top of the car held him against the beams. Finally he was reached from above and tied with ropes while the elevator cables were severed. The car was lowered on ropes.

John Ghecvito, 20 years old, of 272 Summer Street, Passaic, N. J., was struck yesterday at 14 Murray Street by a descending elevator. He was taken to Beekman Street Hospital, where it was found that his neck had been fractured. He is employed by the Manhattan Electric Company on the fourth floor of the building where the accident occurred.

ARKANSAS TOO BUSY TO TALK POLITICS

CALLS IT GOVERNMENT JOB

He Plans to Visit Olvany and May See Smith—Greets Mayor Walker at City Hall.

Governor John E. Marineau of Arkansas, who is in this city in connection with an issue of $13,000,000 notes for road building, said yesterday that the people of his State were so intent on the situation raised by the Mississippi flood that they had not even begun to turn their attention to the political campaign and that it would scarcely be fair to say at this time that sentiment exists in Arkansas for or against any prospective candidate for the Presidential nomination.

The Governor showed every disposition to ignore politics and to talk of his State's road building program and the flood control problem, upon which he holds very positive views, believing that the job is one for the Federal Governments. He expects, however, to call on George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, and it is possible he may meet Governor Smith.

"I can say truthfully that there is no political news from Arkansas," Governor Martineau said at the Hotel McAlpin. "Every one, of course, has been intensely interested in the flood situation, relief and rehabilitation. I have not heard of any political sentiment expressed even in a conversational way.

State May Back Robinson.

"I think it likely that the Arkansas delegation to the national convention will go instructed for Senator Joseph J. Robinson. That's about all I can say, except, of course, that Arkansas is a Democratic State and will be Democratic next year.

"How about sentiment in Arkansas for Governor Smith?" he was asked.

"As I said, I can't say at this time that there is any sentiment being expressed for any one."

"Is there any sentiment against Governor Smith?"

"No, I can't say I have heard of any. The people down there are simply not talking politics at this time; they have had other things to think of and talk of.

"I am up here solely on account of this issue of $13,000,000 of highway notes that have to be signed. Behind that is a plan for spending $13,000,000 a year for four years, or a total of $52,000,000, for roads. The notes are to be met by taxes on automobiles and on gasoline, so that the cost of road building will not be assessed against the owners of adjacent property. The State is also to pay off existing indebtedness for roads without levying taxes on the property affected.

Intent on Flood Problem.

"We are now vitally interested in what Congress is going to do toward adopting a plan for flood control. The people in the affected areas cannot live on charity and they cannot prosper if they are constantly in danger of great losses. Flood relief and control as we regard it can be divided into two parts, the engineering and the economic. It is not simply the control of the Mississippi that has to be thought of, but control of the tributaries as well. The engineers say they can control these waters if they have money enough. We are hopeful that Congress will take the view that the matter is a Federal one, as we believe it to be, inasmuch as the whole country is affected by such a flood as we have had this year."

As for immediate relief for the areas that suffered from the flood, Governor Martineau held that the best possible aid that could be given would be through the Federal Government assuming the levee obligations of the property owners and communities affected, either meeting these obligations or refunding them as they become due, thus relieving the flood-sufferers of the taxes involved. That, he said, would restore confidence and hope among the people, and would aid in re-establishing credit. He expressed the opinion that this relief could be granted at a cost below $100,000,000.

Governor Martineau and his party, including Tex Rickard, visited the City Hall yesterday and Mayor Walker suspended his hospital inquiry for ten minutes to greet them. The Governor asked how the Mayor of New York met the patronage problem and was surprised to learn from Mayor Walker how few office holders were affected when he took over the city government.

AGAIN ATTACKS DR. STRATON

Soderstrom Says He Suspended 500 —"Pitiful Bleats," Says Pastor.

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, was accused yesterday by Walter E. Soderstrom, his former Secretary, of putting more than 500 church members on the suspension list. Dr. Straton characterized his critic's charges as "pitiful bleats."

At his Summer home at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., Dr. Straton said he would not dignify Mr. Soderstrom's latest statement with a further answer, adding that "suitable action at the proper time" would be taken by the church officials.

At the church offices in West Fifty-seventh Street it was said Dr. Straton was taking a "well-earned rest." It was explained that names on the suspension list of the church were put there as the result of action by the church members and included only those who have not been active in Calvary church work for several years or longer.

One church official said action against Mr. Soderstrom would be taken in the near future.

HEALTH INTERESTS TO WORK TOGETHER

Agreement Is Reached Between State Medical Society and Charities Aid Association.

DOCTORS TO BE ADVISERS

An agreement on methods of co-operation between the medical profession and organized voluntary health agencies in New York State has been reached, according to an announcement yesterday by Dr. George M. Fisher, Chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the State Medical Society, and Homer Folks, Secretary of the State Charities Aid Association, on behalf of their respective organizations. The joint report has been approved unanimously by the House of Delegates of the State Medical Society and the Board of Managers of the State Charities Aid Association.

The program of cooperation is the result of numerous conferences. The joint report is regarded as very significant in that it promises more "harmonious and effective development of public health in New York State," and may prompt similar working agreements between the medical and lay health organizations in other States.

What Is Asked of County Societies.

The things each county medical society is asked to do are outlined as follows:

(a) Accept the invitation from the voluntary health agency to designate certain of its members to serve as members ex-officio on the board of directors or executive committee of the voluntary health agency.

(b) Study and consider any program of activities that may be referred to it by the voluntary health agency for information and suggestions; and, if such program is approved, make a public statement to that effect, and otherwise support the program so approved.

(c) Appoint a special committee on public relations to confer from time to time with similar committees appointed by the voluntary health agency on matters of mutual interest to both agencies.

(d) Report to the State Medical Society any matter as to which an accord has not been reached with the voluntary health agency, in the hope that through conference between the State Medical Society and the parent body of the voluntary health agency any such matter may be negotiated and adjusted to the mutual satisfaction of all concerned.

Procedure for Health Agencies.

It is recommended that the voluntary health agencies include the following steps in their programs:

(a) Invite the County Medical Society to designate a certain number of its members, say two, to become members ex-officio of its board of directors or executive committe, if there be one.

(b) Lay its annual program of activities before the County Medical Society for information and suggestions.

(c) Appoint a special committee to confer with a similar special committee appointed by the County Medical Society about matters that come up from time to time in which both groups are mutually interested.

(d) Report to the parent body of the voluntary health agency any matter as to which an accord has not been reached with the County Medical Society, in the hope that through conference between the parent body of the voluntary health agency and the State Medical Society any such matter may be negotiated and adjusted to the mutual satisfaction of all concerned.

(e) Conduct at least one open meeting each year to which the members of the County Medical Society are specially invited.

Commenting on the report, Mr. Folks said:

"As that report itself intimates, it is not submitted as a final solution of these complicated questions; it is recognized that in so new a subject there must be development in the light of experience and new knowledge.

Predicts Beneficial Results.

"It is regarded, however, as a document in accordance with which voluntary health agencies and medical organizations, State and local, may work for the present in full accord, and the various communities of the State thus receive the benefit of more efficient public health service, joined in heartily by both medical and lay organizations."

The State Medical Society was represented on the Joint Committee by Dr. G. W. Cottis of Jamestown, Chairman; Dr. Wilbur G. Fish, Ithaca; Dr. W. Warren Britt, Tonawanda; Dr. Thomas P. Farmer, Syracuse; Dr. Terry N. Townsend, New York City. Dr. George M. Fisher, then President, and Dr. Joseph S. Lawrence, Executive Officer, were members ex-officio.

The representatives of the State Charities Aid Association were Dr. Livingston Farrand of Ithaca, Chairman; Homer Folks, Yonkers; John A. Kingsbury, Yonkers; Dr. H. G. Weiskotten, Syracuse, and Dr. Linsly R. Williams, New York. George F. Canfield, President, and George J. Nelbach, Executive Secretary of the State Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health, were members ex-officio.

PROVIDES CLINIC FOR CHURCH.

A free medical clinic and dispensary will be established for members of the Community Church, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, and for the public at large with a gift of $75,000 from Dr. Ellis Bonime, 266 West End Avenue, according to an announcement yesterday by John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church. When the clinic and dispensary are opened in the Fall under what is described as "a partnership between religion on the one hand and medicine on the other," Dr. Bonime will be in charge.

Special attention will be given to disease prevention through vaccines. Nominal fees will be charged to those who are able to pay while the service will be gratis to those who are unable to pay.

To house and equip the clinic will require $25,000 of the gift money. The balance of $50,000 will be used to operate the clinic and health service, which will be house temporarily at 630 Second Avenue, to be moved nearer to the Community Church later.

The donor of the fund, a member of the Community Church, is establishing the clinic and health service as a memorial to his father who attended services at the Community Church. Formal incorporation papers were signed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Edward J. McGoldrick, give the name of the corporation as the Abraham Bonime Memorial Dispensary and Health Service.

Beach Employes Must Be Courteous.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 6.—Beach Commissioner James Furey instructed fifty employes of his department today to adopt a "courtesy first" policy. Hereafter all employes are to answer all questions for information in an obliging manner, and in the case of women inquirers, doff their hats.

SAILS TO AID MEMORIAL TO FOUNDER OF NURSING

H. B. Ehler Says Hospital May Honor Florence Nightingale —Mauretania Is Crowded.

The Cunarder Mauretania sailed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton with every cabin taken. Among her passengers was Herbert B. Ehler of 12 East Forty-first Street, who has been invited to London to advise a committee on a world-wide movement to erect an international memorial to Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing. Mr. Ehler said the memorial probably will take the form of an international hospital in London. He added that he has been asked to submit a plan for financing it.

Arthur E. Chew, exporter, of 17 Battery Place, sailed at a few hours notice to attend a business meeting in Paris. He said Europeans were beginning to take to American goods despite the tariff here against foreign manufactures.

Among the deportees going back on the Cunarder was John Harris, 20 years old, who tried to get to New York as a stowaway because he had no money. He made a previous attempt last January on the Cunarder Laconia but was detected and sent back.

Another deportee was Father Ombrosius Chebek, a Syrian monk, who arrived on the Mauretania last Friday. He was ordered deported because his avowed purpose in coming here was to raise funds for Syrian churches. Under a ruling of the Immigration law such activities must be sponsored by American citizens.

NEW TRAFFIC LIGHTS READY.

System on Hillside Avenue, Queens, Will Relieve Dozen Policemen.

Deputy Police Commissioners Philip D. Hoyt and John A. Leach and Inspector Joseph Kuhne and Captain John Butler, in charge of Traffic E, Queens, have made their final inspection of the traffic lights on Hillside Avenue, between Queens and Springfield Boulevards, Queens, and declare them to be in perfect condition. All tree branches and other objects which might have hidden the lights from motorists have been removed.

When placed in operation, at a date to be set by Police Commissioner Warren, the new system will relieve at least a dozen traffic patrolmen for duty at other points of the borough. The lights are the regulation flashing white, green and red signals in use throughout the city.

Evansville College Elects Dr. Harper

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 6 (AP).—Dr. Earl E. Harper, 33-year-olds pastor of the Methodist Church at Auburndale, Mass., has been named to succeed Dr. Alfred F. Hughes as President of Evansville College, the trustees announced today. He will take office in October. Dr. Hughes recently resigned to take the Presidency of Hamline University in Minnesota.

KELBY MAY REPORT ON MILK NEXT WEEK

SURPRISES ARE EXPECTED

One of Them Is Said to Be the Finding of Secret Indictments—Statement by Citizens Union.

The report of former Justice Charles H. Kelby on the milk graft in the Health Department is about ready to be submitted to Mayor Walker. The opinion was expressed yesterday that knowledge of this fact had led to the sudden and otherwise unexplained revival of interest in the subject, which had been dormant for many weeks.

It is understood that the report will be made public some time next week unless there is an unexpected hitch. Ten days is regarded as the limit within which it will be given out. It will disclose, it is said, that a number of indictments have been found as a result of the investigation, but that in several instances the persons indicted have not been apprehended, with the result that the District Attorneys handling the cases have kept the finding of the indictments secret.

Judge Kelby was asked yesterday whether he would make any comment on published criticisms of the delay in making the report. He said he saw no reason to change his policy, which had been to proceed with the case in a lawyer-like fashion and not talk about it. He would say nothing for publication as to when the report might be expected.

It is understood that one reason for the delay was the fact that after the taking of testimony had virtually ended and the work of drafting the report begun it became possible unexpectedly to obtain testimony regarded as of the highest importance. Thus, in a way, the case was reopened. This resulted in considerable delay but, it was held, made the case much more complete.

The Citizens Union issued the following statement yesterday, demanding that some effective action be taken without further delay:

"The Citizens Union renews its demand upon Governor Smith and Mayor Walker that effective action be taken without further delay in the Health Department graft scandal. Their continued complacence has now become more outrageous than the notorious grafting that debauched the Health Department.

"They have professed to believe that the futile Kelby investigation was all that was necessary to detect the grafters and bring them to book. But Mr. Kelby has now been "at work" since last August. Whenever he has been reminded of the task he undertook, he has promised a report within a few weeks. But in nearly a year there has been no published result. Has Mr. Kelby been unable to find anything or has somebody reason to fear the publication of what he has found? The Health Commissioner began as an energetic crusader in this matter. He, too, has been strangely silent for a very long time.

"The Citizens Union demands that there be a speedy end of this conspiracy to suppress the truth about the Health Department graft scandal."

This statement was shown to Mayor Walker, who said that while he had been very busy with other matters recently, he expected to take up the milk question very shortly.

FIRE ROUTS EIGHT FAMILIES.

Incendiary Suspected in Third Avenue Tenement Blaze.

A fire believed to have been started by an incendiary routed eight families from a five-story tenement at 1,339 Third Avenue last night. The flames were discovered about 8 o'clock near the doorway of the fourth-floor apartment of Patrick Kennedy, who was not at home.

When firemen arrived they directed the tenants to leave, and they were forced to seek shelter from the rain in near-by buildings and doorways. After the fire had been put out with small damage, a preliminary investigation by firemen revealed that the fourth-floor hallway and the door of the Kennedy apartment had been sprinkled with kerosene. Detectives of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station and the Fire Marshal's office began an investigation.

Witness Tells of Finding Goldreich and the Then Mrs. Flagler in an Apartment.

Supreme Court Justice Senn and a jury began hearing testimony yesterday in the suit of Mrs. Marie J. Goldreich, a German boarding house keeper living near Berlin, against the former Beatrice F. Flagler, widow of John H. Flagler, capitalist, for $100,000 damages for alienating the affections of Armand Goldreich. The latter, also known as Armand M. Sullivian, is a physical culture expert who was divorced by the plaintiff last year and married Mrs. Flagler soon afterward.

The chief witness yesterday was Ella M. Dumke, a dressmaker, of 236 West 112th Street, who was corespondent in the Goldreich divorce case. She was formerly employed in his Aesculap Health Institute at 667 Madison Avenue, and is now suing Goldreich for breach of contract. She said that in 1923 Sullivian rented an apartment at 67 East Ninety-sixth Street, and that when she returned there in the Fall of that year from her vacation she found a photograph of Mrs. Flagler on the mantelpiece, bearing an affectionate inscription by Mrs. Flagler.

Miss Dumke said she went back to the railroad station and met Sullivan, who scolded her for going to the apartment without him. They returned together and found Mrs. Flagler there, she said.

"Mrs. Flagler was crying and said 'You can have him,' but I replied that I didn't want him as he had been untrue to me before," testified the witness. She left the apartment and did not see Goldreich again, she said.

The witness said that her acquaintance with Goldreich began when he "abducted" her in Berlin in 1914, promising to marry her and giving her an engagement ring. She met Mrs. Goldreich later, she said, but Goldreich agreed to divorce his wife and wed her. When he came here just before the beginning of the war he promised to send for her but she came of her own accord later for fear that she would be unable to leave Germany if she waited until he sent for her.

Nicholas Ladeny, an Austrian employed as physical instructor at the health institute in 1923 and 1924, testified that Goldreich and Mrs. Flagler lived at her apartment at 1,100 Fifth Avenue and that Mrs. Flagler was with Goldreich for two hours every afternoon at the Madison Avenue studio. Ladeny bought their tickets when they took a trip to Hamburg in the Summer of 1924, he said. The trial will be continued today.

Peekskill Troops in Sham Battle.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 6.—A sham battle was fought in the countryside outside of the State Military Camp in Peekskill today by the 1,100 Brooklyn troops of the 106th Infantry, under Colonel Thomas Fairservis. Two battalions were engaged in an attack upon an "enemy" force of one battalion. Troops of the Twenty-seventh Division trains from Long Island were on the rifle ranges today.

PLAN STRIKE TODAY AS SACCO PROTEST

Committee Leaders Say Nearly All Labor Unions Will Be in One-Hour Walkout Here.

24-HOUR STRIKE IN TAMPA

Meanwhile Gov. Fuller's Advisers Hear Counsel for Doomed Men—May Examine Judge Today.

A general strike from 4 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon to be followed by four simultaneous mass meetings is part of the labor demonstration planned today as a protest against the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolmeo Vanzetti, under sentence in Massachusetts for murder in a payroll robbery.

At a meeting of the Sacco and Vanzetti Liberation Committee in the Italian Chamber of Labor, 231 East Fourteenth Street, yesterday afternoon Leonardo Frisina, Executive Secretary of the committee, said the cooperation of almost every labor union in New York and vicinity had been promised in carrying out this afternoon's program. He declared that more than 250,000 organized workers, representing about thirty labor unions and about the same number of non-organized workers, would stop work and walk out for an hour promptly at 4 o'clock and then proceed to the various mass meetings.

Meetings will be held at the north side of Union Square, Cooper Union, Eighth Street and Third Avenue; Webster Hall, Eleventh Street, between Third and Fourth Avenues, and Amalgamated Temple, Arlon Place, Brooklyn. Abraham Shiplacoff of the International Pocketbook Makers' Union and Chairman of the general committee arranging the demonstration will preside at the Cooper Union Meeting.

Mr. Frisina will be Chairman of the meeting at Union Square. Two platforms will be used, one for those delivering addresses in English and the other for Italian and Yiddish speakers. Morris Feinstone, Secretary of the United Hebrew Trades Unions, is to preside at the Webster Hall meeting and Nino De Biasi will be Chairman of the Brooklyn meeting. The speakers include Arthur Garfield Hays, Judge Jacob Pankin, Arturo Giovannitti, the Rev. Father Ryan, Sidney Hillman, Congressman F. H. LaGuardia, Lucian B. Price, Gertrude Weil Kline and Jacob Margolis.

TAMPA, Fla., July 6 (AP).—Sixteen thousand Tampa cigarmakers will go on a twenty-four-hour sympathetic strike tomorrow for Sacco and Vanzetti, it was announced today by members of the Strike Committee. The walkout here will be the result of a ballot taken a week ago in the cigar factories, which carried by a vote of 5,795 to 201.

The strike is scheduled to begin at midnight tonight and continue until the same hour tomorrow night. At noon tomorrow a mass meeting is planned in the Labor Temple, when addresses in Spanish, Italian and English will be given. A resolution will be adopted and go to Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, asking executive clemency for the condemned men, leaders asserted.

BOSTON, July 6 (AP).—Governor Fuller's Advisory Committee on the Sacco-Vanzetti case held its second meeting today and devoted the morning to a conference with Assistant District Attorney Dudley P. Kearney and William G. Thompson, chief of counsel for the condemned men.

It was indicated that Judge Webster Thayer, trial Justice and who sentenced Sacco and Vanzetti, would be heard by the committee today. President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, President Samuel W. Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Judge Robert Grant form the committee, which is expected to deliver its findings privately to the Governor to assist him in deciding whether the men are to be executed.

Manasquan to Curb Bathers.

MANASQUAN, N. J., July 6.—Local officials have decided to start a crusade against the use of automobiles for bath houses. Councilman George C. Kloss, Chairman of the Beach Committee, reported to council that many of the Fourth of July visitors robed and disrobed in their cars, and the officials hunted out an ordinance drawn two years ago, but never adopted, which prohibits the practice and provides for a fine of $25 for the first offense and $50 for each additional offense. It is expected the officials will adopt the ordinance on July 19. The council also will employ a special officer to patrol the beach.

Copeland Advocates More Conservation.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 6.—Senator Royal S. Copeland addressed members of the Middletown Kiwanis Club and other civic organizations this afternoon at the Mitchell Inn upon "The Human Needs of Government." The Senator discussed the problems facing the farmer, advocated more conservation of national resources and said that the Government should realize that its purpose is to serve the people.

CALLS MONTREAL UNSAFE.

Cumming Says Health Department Is Unable to Cope With Typhoid.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—Montreal "is not a comparatively safe place for visitors," Surgeon General H. S. Cumming of the Public Health Service declared in a statement today based on a report of officers who investigated the typhoid fever situation in the Canadian city.

He expressed opinion that the city would not become safe "until the Health Department is given ample authority and adequate, efficient personnel to enable it to cope effectively with the present typhoid fever situation and with other serious preventable disease situations which are likely, under existing conditions, to develop in Montreal in the future."

The epidemic now is reduced, he said, although "new cases are still occurring at the rate of about ten each day." Officially reported cases totaled 4,789 from March 1 to June 25, he declared, with deaths totaling 453.

Woman Found Dead in Her Home.

Mrs. Clara Filippini, about 50 years old, was found dead last night in her apartment at 148 West Sixty-eighth Street. Dr. Hill of Knickerbocker Hospital said she had been dead about a day and that death was due to natural causes. The neighbors said Mrs. Filippini, a native of Switzerland, was reputed to be wealthy and had many distinguished persons among her friends. According to the police a will was found in the apartment naming a sister as the sole beneficiary.

FALL AND DOHENYS MUST STAND TRIAL

so similar, will adopt the suggestion of counsel to discuss one indictment while disposing of both.

These indictments charge, in substance, as follows:

That President Taft on Sept. 2, 1912, made an order of withdrawal of certain lands theretofore "forming a part of petroleum reserve No. 2, California No. 1," constituting it "Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1," and ordering that "it shall be held for the exclusive use or benefit of the United States Navy until this order is revoked by the President or act of Congress;" and President Taft on Dec. 3, 1912, made a similar order constituting other land theretofore "forming a part of the Petroleum Reserve No. 2, California No. 1, Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 2."

That by an act of Congress approved June 4, 1920, the Secretary of the Navy was given "possession of all properties within the naval petroleum reserves including the reserves mentioned in the two Executive orders above quoted, which were subject to the control and use by the United States for naval purposes and on which there were no pending claims or applications for permits or leases," and was charged with "the conservation, development and operation of the same in (his) discretion—directly or by contract, lease or otherwise, and the use, storage, exchange or sale of the oil and gas products thereof, and of all royalty oil from lands in the naval reserves, for the benefit of the United States."

Cites President Harding's Order.

That thereafter on May 31, 1921, President Harding made an Executive order committing all oil and gas bearing lands in Naval Petroleum reserves Nos. 1 and 2, California, and No. 3, Wyoming, to the Secretary of the Interior, "subject to the supervision of the President," providing that no general policy as to drilling or reserving lands located in the naval reserve shall be changed or adopted "except upon consultation and in cooperation with the Secretary or Acting Secretary of the Navy" and "authorizing" and "directing" the Secretary of the Interior to perform "any and all such acts necessary for the protection, conservation and administration of the said reserves";

That said Fall was on May 31, 1921, and until March 4, 1923, Secretary of the Interior, and an officer of the United States, and "a person acting for and on behalf of the United States in an official function, under and by authority of said Department of the Interior, of an office of the Government of the said United States," and in said official capacity, and in pursuance of said order of May 31, 1921, assumed and undertook the administration and conservation of said properties and the disposition of the so-called royalty oil which had accrued and was to have accrued therefrom, under leases and contracts, made and to be made, and (assumed and undertook) "to make further similar leases and contracts covering lands in said naval reserve."

Charges Made Against Fall.

This indictment further charges that, because he was said officer and such person acting as aforesaid, said Fall, throughout said period of time, became and was charged with the duty of exchanging under the laws of the United States, then in force, such royalty oil only for fuel oil for the use of said navy, &c., and with the duty of making no leases of land or sales of oil and gas, or purchases of storage, except upon advertisement and competitive bidding";

That, under the circumstances and conditions aforesaid, during said period of time in which said Fall was an officer, and a person acting as aforesaid, to wit, before and on Nov. 30, 1921, said Fall, so having, as aforesaid, assumed and undertaken the administration and conservation of said properties, entered into negotiations with the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company looking to the making "of a contract between the United States and said corporation for the construction of storage tanks and approaches and filling such tanks with fuel oil, in consideration of the giving by the United States * * * to said corporation of an option and preferential right to leasehold interests" in the land and to extract oil "from the entire unleased portion of said naval petroleum reserve (No. 1)" without competitive bidding, and in conducting said negotiations, said Fall acted "as such officer and person for the United States";

That on Nov. 30, 1921, there "was pending before said Fall, in his said official capacity, the question and matter of his decision and action upon the said negotiations"; that the Doheny defendants were, on Nov. 31, 1921, directors and executive officers of said Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company, actively conducting its business with knowledge of all the facts aforesaid.

Giving of $100,000 to Fall.

The indictment then charges that the defendants, on Nov. 30, 1921, unlawfully and feloniously gave said Fall $100,000 with intent on their part,

(a) To induce said Fall "to do acts in violation of his lawful duty as such officer and person acting as aforesaid, that is to say, to consent to, arrange, draft, approve and execute, and cause to be arranged, drafted and executed, two formal written contracts between the United States and the said corporation and also a written lease, for the benefit and in the sole interest of said corporation—carrying into effect the negotiations aforesaid and subjecting the lands in said naval reserve to the privilege aforesaid."

And (b) "to influence the decision and action of said Fall upon the question and matter then pending before him as aforesaid, in favor of his approval, arrangement and execution, and executing of said contracts and leases in accordance with said negotiations, committing the United States to the carrying out of said contracts and leases, rather than his refusing so to do and administering said properties and conserving said petroleum oil in the manner required by law."

Section 117 of the Penal Code, as to the acceptance of bribes, provides that "whosoever, being an officer of the United States, or a person acting for or on behalf of the United States in any official capacity, under or by virtue of any department or office of the Government thereof," accepts money "with intent to have his decision or action upon any question, matter or cause of proceeding which may at any time be pending, or which may by law be brought before him in his official capacity or in his place of trust or profit influenced thereby," shall be punished as therein provided.

Section 39, as to the giving of bribes, uses similar language in defining official relation of the recipient and the character of the action intended to be influenced; adding the words, "with intent to influence him to commit — any fraud—on the United States, or to induce him to do or omit to do any act in violation of his lawful duty."

Notes Argument in Demurrers.

The demurrers attack the sufficiency of the indictments upon the ground that the facts stated do not constitute an offense under this statute.

It is now conceded that the Executive Order of May 31, 1921, was invalid, for lack of power in the President to make it; and it is strongly urged in support of the demurrers that, inasmuch as this order turned out to be invalid, the transaction in question cannot constitute bribery, because it was not within Fall's jurisdiction or official authority to "consent to, arrange, draft, approve and execute and cause to be arranged, drafted, executed" the contracts and leases in the indictments mentioned.

But this Executive Order was prima facie valid, and was considered valid and effective for all purposes contemplated in it, by all parties directly concerned in this matter.

The defendant Fall obviously believed that the order gave him full power and authority to act, and the Doheny defendants were evidently of the same opinion. The indictments charge that Fall was an officer of the United States, that there was actually "pending" before him, in his official capacity, the question and decision upon the negotiations referred to in the indictments; and that he acted for and on behalf of the United States.

It is clear under the indictments that Fall was charged with an official duty in the premises; that in the performance of that duty he was acting in an official function and that his action alleged to have been improperly influenced was an official action—(citation of cases.)

Form of Act Brings Liability.

While there can be no bribery of an official to do a particular thing unless he has the function of acting in the premises, yet an official act need not be a lawful act to render the official liable, but need only be official in form, and done under color of his office. (More citations.)

The cases are not entirely in harmony, but by weight of authority, the validity or invalidity of the act done or whether an officer or the body in question had or had not jurisdiction, is immaterial. A corrupt judge, for instance, is not to be protected by the fact that he exceeded his powers. All the law considers is whether the act is apparently within his jurisdiction. In a few cases the courts have held that actual jurisdiction is essential, even where the accused has general power as an officer to act in like circumstances.

But such cases are exceptions to the general rule. If the matter is pending before the officer in his official capacity, or may be brought before him in such capacity, then it is his duty to pass on it; and any corrupt agreement or premise having for its purpose an improper influence on his action in respect thereto has all the elements of bribery. It makes no difference whether the pending matter is a valid one or not.

For the same reason the acceptance of a bribe by an executive officer in consideration that he does an unlawful act, is bribery. In fact, the offense is all the more serious if the officer had no authority to act, because of the tendency to induce him to step beyond the line of duty and to usurp authority not committed to him. Therefore, as the moral obliquity of the offense is equally great whether the official's act is valid or invalid, he will not be permitted to plead its invalidity in his own defense. (More citations of cases.)

There is no more reason for permitting these defendants to set up the invalidity of the Executive Order of May 31, 1921, and want of authority in the defendant Fall as a defense to these indictments, than there is for permitting de facto officers to set up official authority as a defense when they are charged with accepting money to influence their assumed official conduct. That de facto officers will not be permitted to make such a defense in prosecutions for bribery is well settled, and the law applicable to de facto officers seems well defined.

Our Court of Appeals long ago adopted Lord Ellenborough's definition of an officer de facto as "one who has the reputation of being the officer he assumes to be and yet is not a good officer in point of law."

And so the Supreme Court: "While some general expressions will be found in the decisions tending to support the Government's contention, the rule is well established that to constitute an officer de facto it is not a necessary prerequisite that there shall have been an attempted exercise of competent or prima facie power of appointment or election. A good general definition is to be found in Waite vs. City of Santa Cruz, 89 Federal Republic 619, 627, expressly approved by this court in Waite vs. Santa Cruz, 184 United States, 302, 323: "A de facto officer may be defined as one whose title is not good at law, but who is in fact in the unobstructed possession of an office and discharging its duties in full view of the public, in such a manner and under such circumstances as not to present the appearance of being an intruder or usurper."

A shorter definition is that of the Supreme Court of Kansas, in Jay vs. Board of Education, 46 Kansas 525, 527: "A de facto officer is one who is surrounded with the insignia of office, and seems to act with authority."

Says Fall Acted "With Authority."

Here, respondent occupied the office and discharged its duties in good faith and with every appearance of acting with authority; and, upon the facts heretofore recited, since he was not a mere intruder and usurper, he must be regarded an officer de facto, within the spirit of the general current of authority—(United States vs. Royer, 268, United States 394).

In Crutchfield vs. Sewell, Mr. Justice Shepard, speaking for the court, said: "The objection to the validity of the acknowledgment of the instrument before Kelly, the Justice of the Peace, whose title to the office has been assailed, is not well taken. It may be conceded that the act of the Legislative Assembly of the District of Columbia, conferring the power to appoint Justices of the Peace upon the Governor, was invalid. But it does not follow that Kelly, who was appointed under the authority of that act, and recognized as a lawful officer, was not a de facto Justice of the Peace. The office of Justice of the Peace was not created by the act. It had been in existence ever since the cession under law of unquestioned authority.

"Grant that the Governor had no rightful power to appoint to it; yet, under the law, then unquestioned, he made the appointment and issued the commission. Kelly received it, qualified and entered upon the duties of the office. No one questioned his authority. He was recognized on every hand and continued the active exercise of the powers of the office for his full term of three years. His appointment, qualifications, action and recognition brought him clearly within Lord Ellenborough's definition of an officer de facto. One who has the reputation of being the officer he assumes to be and yet is not a good officer in point of law."

This definition has never been departed from, and is stated with great clearness by Mr. Justice Fields, as follows: "Where an office exists under the law, it matters not how the appointment of the incumbent is made, so far as the validity of his acts are concerned. It is enough that he is clothed with the insignia of the office and exercises its powers and functions." (Norton v. Shelby County, 118 U. S. 444).

The rule and the reasons for its existence are well stated in the following cases: Pastersilen v. Stone, 119 Mass. 465; State v. Carroll, 38 Conn. 449; Brown v. Lunt, 37, Me. 423.

Principle of Authority Must Hold.

An officer de facto is not a mere usurper, nor yet within the sanction of law, but one who, colore officio, claims and assumes to exercise official authority, is reputed to have it, and the community acquiesces accordingly. * * * Judicial as well as ministerial officers may be in this position. * * * The acts of such officers are held to be valid because the public good requires it. The principal wrongs no one. A different rule would be a source of serious and lasting evils.

Hussey v. Smith, U. S. 20—"Even an unconstitutional statute may be sufficient to give color of authority, and acts done thereunder, which are performed before the statute is declared invalid; may be as potent as if they had been performed by an officer de jure."

And the acts of a person within color of authority are valid and cannot be collaterally assailed.

The Executive Order of May 31, 1921, having been made by the President, had the force of law until revoked or found to be invalid, and was sufficient under the cases cited to give color of authority to Fall, who acted thereunder.

And these defendants having acted upon the assumption that this Executive order was valid and that Fall had full authority in the premises, they are precluded on principles of estoppel from now contending that Fall had no authority.

The Court being of opinion that the indictments are good and sufficient, and that the demurrers thereto must be overruled, it is so ordered.

Bootleggers Damage Pier.

Bootleggers unloading their wares on the State Valley Sewerage Commission pier in Newark Bay have damaged the concrete stringpiece and piling to the extent of $3,000, and the commission asked prohibition officials yesterday to do their utmost to prevent the rum handlers from using the pier. It was reported that 5,000 cases of liquor were dumped on the pier Tuesday night by forty handlers while eight men with sawed-off shotguns stood guard.

Blast Breaks Main, Floods Cellars.

Cellars on the east side of Ninth Avenue between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-seventh Streets were flooded yesterday morning when a water main at Fifty-sixth Street and Ninth Avenue was broken by blasting. Workmen for the Consolidated Telegraph and Electric Subway Company were dynamiting a ditch for a cable. Employes of the Water Department shut off the flow an hour after the break.

"STUDENTS'" PRAISE OF RUSSIA DISCLAIMED

Bates College Denies Any One Representing It Is Traveling in That Country.

LENINGRAD, July 6 (AP).—A declaration issued in the name of a group of students from Syracuse University and Bates College who have been visiting here says they were surprised that, without precedent to guide them, the workers of Russia had made so few mistakes in their "gigantic attempt to revive the life of the nation on a basis of justice and humanity."

The report which the students will make of their observations, the declaration adds, will, they believe, lead to better understanding and closer relations between the nations.

LEWISTON, Me., July 6 (AP).—Bates College has no student representation in Russia, nor is any one connected with the college traveling officially with any group in Russia, Harry W. Rowe, bursar and alumni secretary, stated today when a statement reported to have been made at Leningrad by Syracuse and Bates students was shown to him.

It was stated at the college office here that Professor Anders Myhrman, head of the sociological department, joined the student committee in Russia about ten days ago, but not as a representative of the college.

Mr. Rowe said that he doubted that Professor Myhrman would assent to any declaration on conditions in view of the brief time that he had been there.

N. Y. U. Opens Art School in Paris.

PARIS, July 6 (AP).—New York University's Summer School of Fine Arts for American students in Paris, sixty of whom are entered from all parts of the United States, was opened today. General Charles H. Sherrill of the Council of New York University, who organized the Paris branch, recently opened another at Constantinople with 100 students. Next week a branch in Berlin will be opened.

FAMOUS NEWSPAPER IN ATLANTA SOLD

The Constitution Acquired by Former United States Senator Luke Lee.

PRICE IS ABOUT $2,000,000

The Howells to Remain in Charge of the Property—No Change in Policy Contemplated.

The Atlanta Constitution, one of the most famous newspapers in the South, has been purchased by Luke Lee, publisher of The Nashville Tennesseean, The Memphis Commercial-Appeal and The Memphis Evening Appeal. This information was obtained last night by THE NEW YORK TIMES from unquestionable sources.

Rumors of the sale were current in the South yesterday and awoke widespread interest. They were accompanied by other rumors that Mr. Lea, who is a former United States Senator, had also purchased The Knoxville Journal and that he intended to transfer these properties with the Memphis newspapers, purchased last May, to the Scripps-Howard newspaper organization. Both of these reports were denied by the same reliable authority from which THE TIMES learned of the purchase of The Constitution.

Mr. Lea, in association with Rogers Caldwell, a Nashville financier, bought The Constitution, the only morning newspaper in Atlanta, for approximately $2,000,000. Completion of the purchase is subject only to the adjustment of some technical details. Clark Howell Sr., son of the famous editor of The Constitution, who succeeded its founder, Henry W. Grady, will remain as editor, and Major Clark Howell Jr. will remain as business manager. No important changes in the personnel or the policy of the paper are contemplated by Mr. Lea.

Mr. Lea, who tried last year to buy The Kansas City Star, was said last night not to be interested in the acquisition of other newspaper properties at this time, so that the reported purchase of The Knoxville Journal is incorrect.

Roy Howard, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Scripps-Howard organization, which already owns evening newspapers in Memphis and Knoxville, was on his way to Knoxville last night, but it was denied here that his visit had any relation to the rumors of a transfer of Mr. Lea's newspaper properties. Persons close to Mr. Howard said his visit was merely part of a general organization tour and they scouted the suggestion of a transfer.

"We'd like to have Mr. Lea buying newspapers for us," said one Scripps-Howard executive, "but it's his own venture entirely."

The Constitution was founded in 1868. It has had a distinguished career since it was founded and under the direction of Mr. Grady and the Clark Howells, father and son, and its utterances carried weight not only in Atlanta and Georgia but throughout the South. One of its famous contributors was Joel Chandler Harris, author of the Uncle Remus stories, which first appeared in its columns. Another was Frank Stanton, the poet, who in a daily column wrote much verse, some of which is sung now wherever English is known.

ADOPTS ELECTRIC CHAIR.

New Illinois Law Ending Hanging Signed by Governor Small.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 6.—Governor Small today signed the bill, sponsored by Senator Charles Thompson of Harrisburg, providing that the electric chair, instead of hanging, shall hereafter be the method of inflicting the death penalty in Illinois.

The new law takes effect at once but Attorney General Carlstrom's office said informally that it would not affect those cases in which sentence of death by hanging already had been imposed.

Under the law there will be electric chairs at the Stateville Penitentiary at Joliet; at the Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Menard, near Chester, and in the Cook County jail at Chicago.

EX-MERCHANT A SUICIDE.

J. H. Tomkins of Brooklyn Shoots Himself While Wife Is at Funeral.

Mrs. Tomkins found the body when she came home last night. It was lying on the bed with a bullet hole under the heart. A .32-calibre pistol was on the floor beside the bed. The family could not account for the act, except in the belief that Mr. Tomkins might have been speculating in stocks.

Policeman Accidentally Shot.

Patrolman William Herbert of 559 Seventy-fifth Street, Brooklyn, attached to the Bath Beach Precinct, was wounded in the right thigh yesterday by a bullet from his service pistol while cleaning the weapon in the home of Anthony Ferranto, 180 Moore Street, Brooklyn. Herbert was taken to St. Catherine's Hospital.

ENGINEERS' UNION FINDS OFFICIAL GUILTY

Cleveland Convention Decides That Secretary-Treasurer Has Been Lax and Careless.

CLEVELAND, July 6 (AP).—The triennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers today found C. E. Lindquist, Secretary-Treasurer, guilty of "laxity, carelessness and indifference" in his official conduct of the organization's affairs.

Mr. Lindquist, it was learned, demanded of the convention a hearing and vote. From responsible Brotherhood leaders, it was learned tonight that similar charges against W. B. Prenter, President; L. G. Griffing and Harry P. Daugherty, First and Second Vice Presidents, will be brought before the convention.

"No other result than that recorded could be expected from this convention," Mr. Lindquist declared tonight. "A majority of delegates to this convention are determined to oust present officers of the Brotherhood and there is nothing that can stop them."

The charges, it is understood, relate primarily to the administration of the financial affairs of the organization, but they were said to deal only in generalities and no specific charges were cited.

The convention has not determined if any penalty will be attached to the verdict of guilty.

That the Brotherhood's financial enterprises had encountered difficulties was made known shortly after the opening of the convention when a special Finance Committee took up negotiations looking to an affiliation with the Mitten Management, Inc., of Philadelphia.

A deal was tentatively arranged whereby Thomas E. Mitten, Philadelphia banker, was to assume active control of the Brotherhood's various banks and holding companies and at the same time invest a substantial amount of new capital. Mr. Mitten, however, withdrew his offer because it did not meet with the approval of a sufficient number of the Brotherhood members.

Officers of the Brotherhood indicated at that time that an amalgamation with other interests was possible, as the Brotherhood was said to have several such propositions pending.

The action of the Canadian Government in taking over virtually all of its transportation facilities has presented the Brotherhood with one of its biggest labor problems, officials said today.

The seniority rights of engineers raises a delicate question in case of mergers and consolidations. While in such instances the organization usually has a precedent to rely upon, the nationalization of the Canadian railroads is far different and offers the Brotherhood a problem it has never had to face before, one official said.

The Canadian question is under consideration at the convention, which has entered upon its fifth week. The sessions are likely to last through a sixth week or longer, officials said. They estimated that the convention is costing the Brotherhood about $30,000 a day in expenses.

MOTHER FIGHTS ADVERSITY.

Wants Deserting Husband Found Because Boys Are Ill.

When William G. Garrison, a house painter, of 60 West 109th Street, left his family last October his wife, Harriet, was too deeply grieved to make any effort to locate him and claim support. She decided to go to work and provide a home for her four boys, ranging in age from 3 to 9 years.

For ten months she held out, doing domestic work in the daytime while a neighbor looked after the children. It was her ambition not to bow to the adverse circumstances and to that end she began to save money. A few weeks ago she had saved $46.

All went well until two of her boys, Robert, 4, and Roy, 7, became ill two weeks ago. She spent her savings for doctors' bills and, her neighbor having been in a street accident, she had to quit work in order to attend to her boys and household duties. She still thought that she could make a success of her silent struggle when, last Saturday, Robert was taken to the Willard Parker Hospital suffering from diphtheria. Roy followed Tuesday.

At the end of her resources and unable to meet the piling bills for rent and medicines, Mrs. Garrison swallowed her pride yesterday and asked the Missing Persons Bureau to look for her husband. She was anxious to make it clear that she didn't "want him back." "But the sick boys need him," she said, "and I think he ought to help pay for their doctors' bills."

She said she was in arrears in her rent payments and had been threatened with eviction. "Charitable organizations," she added, "have offered to help us. But they want to take my boys away and put them in a home. They shan't have them! I'd rather kill them first!"

Yesterday she had $1.10 left.

SAYS BAPTIST LEADER WAS HOODED FLOGGER

Beaten Georgia Woman Identifies Two Others at Trial of High School Head.

TOCCOA, Ga., July 6 (AP).—W. G. Acree, Principal of the Stephens County High School, a Baptist Sunday School Superintendent and a leader in church circles here, was identified in Superior Court today by Mrs. Ansley Bowers as a member of a band of twelve robed and hooded men who took her from her bed early on the morning of June 12 and flogged her severely.

Appearing on the stand as the chief prosecution witness in Acree's trial on a charge of assault with intent to murder, Mrs. Bowers testified she also recognized among her assailants two of the four men indicted jointly with Acree.

Mrs. Bowers told her story of the flogging to a jury composed entirely of farmers. Because her assailants charged her with "immorality," failure to attend church, failure to explain her source of support and because of the "nice dresses" they saw in her bedroom when they broke into her home to seize her, she was whipped so severely that she was unable to walk to Toccoa when the men left her with her son, Lloyd, at an isolated spot about eight miles from town, she said.

"I had four whippings," she told the Judge. "They looked at my wounds and said it wasn't enough—that they wouldn't show after three days. Then one of the men told me: 'If we have to do this again we're going to burn "Ku" in your back.' One man said: 'Let's do it right now; she don't talk like we want her to, and I got the iron right here.' They told me I had to make that boy go to work. He had been out of school only two weeks."

The Electrolux Servel is a handsome piece of kitchen equipment. With its five roomy shelves for food it is amply large for all average size families.

ICE . . . now made from HEAT without noise or moving parts

A startling new principle that is fast revolutionizing old methods of home refrigeration

AT last, automatic refrigeration that is really automatic. At last, a refrigerator that gives you constant low temperature, plenty of ice cubes—without machinery, without vibration, without any moving parts and with complete absence of noise.

Nothing to wear out

The Electrolux Servel has a refrigerating liquid hermetically sealed in metal. You light a tiny gas flame and this liquid starts on an endless cycle of expanding into vapor and condensing back to a liquid again. The liquid never deteriorates; never needs replacement.

With no moving parts you are not only saved all noise but also all chance of future mechanical troubles. The Electrolux Servel will last you a lifetime. From the walls of rust-resisting lead-coated Armco Ingot Iron to the three inches of solid cork insulation, every detail is built to last.

For five years this refrigerator has been tested and proved. Invented in Europe in 1922, it is used today in thousands of homes there. Now it is offered to the women of the United States by the Servel Corporation, a company already famous as a pioneer in electric refrigeration.

Costs little to run
Pay on your gas bill

On either a weekly, monthly or yearly basis the Electrolux Servel will cost you less than any other refrigerator. You can pay for it on your gas bill over a period of twelve months. This new wonder worker is on public display at all gas company offices and stores throughout Greater New York. Look it over, view it in action and ask all the questions you want.

LIGHT SHED ON FOES OF RECAPTURE PLAN

Cranford Admits Three B. M. T. Directors Are on Body Opposing Proposal.

HE RESENTS INSINUATIONS

Untermyer Suggests Purchase of Manhattan Beach Road as a Subway Link.

Disclosure by Samuel Untermyer, special counsel of the Transit Commission, that three members of the Transit Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce also are directors of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit Corporation, brought spirited objections from Frederick L. Cranford, Chairman of the committee and the witness then under examination, and former Governor Nathan L. Miller, special counsel of the B. M. T., at the readjustment plan hearing before the commission yesterday.

Mr. Cranford, who had testified that recapture by the city of the B. M. T. subway system would work great hardships to millions of passengers on the B. M. T. elevated lines, said he assumed that Mr. Untermyer's questions were designed to discredit his testimony. Mr. Miller charged Mr. Untermyer with attempting to "browbeat" a witness and public-spirited citizens. Replying tartly, Mr. Untermyer denied any design to insinuate anything, but insisted that he had a right to bring out the presence of the B. M. T. directors on the committee, of which he is the head and the views of which, he said, he represented in his testimony.

Names Three Directors.

The three B. M. T. directors named by Mr. Cranford as members of his committee were Arthur S. Somers, James Sherlock Davis and Robert A. Shaw. The last named, he said, was nominated by the Transit Commission to represent the public on the B. M. T. board. Neither Mr. Somers nor Mr. Davis, he added, had any considerable holdings of B. M. T. stock. It also was brought out that Herman A. Metz, a director of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on the nomination of the commission, was a member of the committee, but Mr. Untermyer said that this was not pertinent to the line of inquiry directed at Mr. Cranford.

"I think, Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Cranford, addressing Commissioner John F. Gilchrist, "that there is an insinuation that there are members of the committee of the Chamber of Commerce who are improperly influenced in their actions by the fact that they are directors of the B. M. T. I think that these gentlemen should be asked as to their interest in the B. M. T. and as to whether in accepting that position they gave up their position as citizens of New York."

"Mr. Cranford, all these gentlemen or any other gentlemen are at perfect liberty to come here and say anything they please," Mr. Untermyer replied. "I have made no insinuations against them. I have shown the fact that your committee is largely made up of directors of the B. M. T."

Mr. Miller continued the controversy when he began cross-examination of Mr. Cranford. He brought out that Mr. Cranford had come as a witness on invitation of Mr. Untermyer, that he had a great deal of business with the city as a subway contractor and that his relations with John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, were pleasant.

"Do you know of any reason whatever why Mr. Untermyer should have put to you the character of questions he has seen fit to do?" Governor Miller asked Mr. Cranford.

"I assume Mr. Untermyer attempted to discredit my testimony," Mr. Cranford replied.

There was further argument between Mr. Untermyer and Mr. Miller and then the latter asked the witness:

"Do you think, Mr. Cranford, that you have been properly treated by Mr. Untermyer?" Governor Miller inquired.

Suggests New City Link.

An entirely new suggestion for adding to the city's rapid transit system was made by Mr. Untermyer in his examination of Mr. Cranford. This was the acquisition of the old Manhattan Beach Railway, now owned by the Long Island Railroad and a virtually idle branch of the New York Connecting Railway, and its connection to the Interborough Nostrand Avenue line to give a new city-owned line to Coney Island in the event of recapture. Mr. Untermyer asserted that this would give better service to that part of Brooklyn in case of recapture of the B. M. T. subway system than it now has, because the Manhattan Beach Railroad parallels the Brighton line, which is not recapturable, and would furnish the additional advantage of enabling passengers to travel by it to and from upper Manhattan above Fifty-ninth Street and the Bronx at a single five-cent fare.

Mr. Cranford said the use of the Manhattan Beach tracks might be a convenience to those living between Manhattan Beach and the connection with the Nostrand Avenue line, but said it would be disadvantageous to passengers living near the Brighton line north of the proposed connection. On cross-examination by Governor Miller, he said he considered the acquisition of parallel lines or feeders by the city inadvisable, and when there was need to use all money available for the construction of trunk line subways to lessen congestion. He said that the connection of the recapturable Culver line, now connected with the Fifth Avenue elevated line, would give better service if connected with the proposed new city subway.

Mr. Cranford insisted that, from the viewpoint of a resident of Brooklyn, recapture seemed inadvisable. The citizens of Manhattan and the Bronx would not be greatly affected, he contended, because their rapid transit rides were mostly north and south. Nor would the riders in Queens, he said. "On the contrary in Brooklyn, about 50 per cent. of the rapid transit riders are now riding over the feeder lines of the B. M. T.," he went on. "Their traffic is both east and west and north and south, nor would the riders in come from recapture and the confusion that would result would be largely confined to Brooklyn.

"I have no doubt that duplicate facilities can be built which in time would remedy the confusion. It is pretty easy to draw a red line on a map, but it takes time to build subway connections."

Mr. Cranford's testimony that recapture would require millions of B. M. T. elevated passengers to pay double fares was weakened somewhat by the disclosure that he usually had to pay two fares to get from his home to Manhattan and would have to pay but one fare if the new city system proposed by Mr. Untermyer should become a fact. Mr. Untermyer contended that the number of Brooklyn residents who would have an additional fare by the proposed new system would exceed the number who would have to pay an additional fare., but Mr. Cranford said he had no data on which to make an estimate.

He Favors Consolidation.

Mr. Cranford said he favored consolidation of the B. M. T. and Interborough, and approved of recapture only if the city could not get proper terms for consolidations. He added that he favored acquisition of the company's properties on the basis of original cost less money required to put them in good operating condition and not on present reproduction cost.

"Suppose they should happen to want the city to take over all their surface lines," said Mr. Untermyer, referring to the B. M. T. "Don't you think that recapture would be the best policy for the city?"

"I certainly would not personally believe that taking the surface lines into the city's transit system would be a good thing," Mr. Cranford replied.

"But if that were insisted upon, you understand that it would be impossible to deal with the B. M. T. and recapture would be the only alternative?"

"I would think it might be," Mr. Cranford replied.

Early in his examination Mr. Cranford said he knew a number of the B. M. T. officers, naming particularly William S. Menden, President, and Travis H. Whitney, Vice President. He said that he had introduced Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the company's Board of Directors, to Mr. Delaney at the Hamilton Club, Brooklyn, about four years ago. Mr. Cranford said that he did not recollect details of this meeting clearly, but that the introduction probably was at Mr. Dahl's request.

Elevated and Trolley Income.

A controversy between counsel as to whether or not the B. M. T. was losing money on its surface and elevated lines occupied most of the morning session. Fred W. Lindars, chief accountant of the commission, testified that the surface lines had lost $1,207,634.12 in the year ended June 30, 1926, and that in the ten months following the loss was $1,348,556.71, indicating a loss of more than $1,500,000 for the year ended June 30, 1927.

Under cross-examination by Governor Miller, Mr. Lindars admitted that the surface lines during the last year had made an operating profit of more than $2,000,000. He explained the seeming discrepancy on re-direct examination by testifying that, while it was true that the surface lines profited as a matter of pure operating expense, a heavy loss was brought about by the necessary payment of fixed charges, the heaviest item of which was bond interest.

Mr. Lindars said that most of the bonds of the subsidiary surface line companies were owned by the B. M. T., and that if the B. M. T. were to turn over the stock of the surface operating companies to the city the city would sustain a loss through the necessity of paying a heavy bond interest and that the B. M. T. would be a gainer through holding most of the bonds. These subsidiary companies, he said, paid for the year ended June 30, 1926, a total of $1,063,746.85 to the B. M. T. in bond interest. He added that all these figures were largely a matter of bookkeeping by the company.

Governor Miller asserted that the B. M. T. was actually making a profit of more than $700,000 a year from its surface lines. "We get out of them a net of three quarters of a million," he declared.

"They don't get a net of a red cent," said Mr. Untermyer. "What happens is that they charge the companies and credit themselves with $1,060,000 of interest. They don't get it at all, according to Mr. Lindars."

Paul S. L. Bolger of the commission's engineering staff testified that the B. M. T. elevated lines lost $812,000 during the year ended June 30, 1926. Mr. Bolger said this was an estimate, as the receipts and expenses of the subway and elevated lines were not divided by the company. His method of estimating was questioned by Governor Miller.

Charges Distortion of Truth.

Governor Miller charged that Mr. Untermyer was making a record which "distorted the truth" to make it impossible for the commission to go fairly into the preparation of any plan and to make it appear that the surface and elevated lines were losing money. Mr. Untermyer retorted that the company had refused to make a valuation of its properties as a starting point for negotiations with the city.

At the beginning of the hearing, Mr. Untermyer read into the record an editorial in The New York Herald Tribune, entitled "Seagoing Transit," which he declared misrepresented him and the facts of the inquiry. The editorial criticised Mr. Untermyer for a contemplated European trip in August, intimating that it would be a neglect of duties he was paid to perform. Mr. Untermyer remarked that it was common knowledge he was acting without compensation. He also denied that he contemplated a European journey or suspension of the inquiry.

Adjournment was taken to Friday morning.

VOIDS LAW AS ANTIQUATED.

Massachusetts Court Denies Telegraph Company's Liability in Pole.

BOSTON, July 6 (AP).—A law which had stood on the statute books of Massachusetts since 1851 was held unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court today. Irene Vigeant had brought suit against the Postal Telegraph Company for damages for injuries sustained when the automobile in which she was riding struck a pole of the company at Lowell, under the law which said, "A telegraph company shall be liable in damages to the person injured in his person or property by the poles, wires or apparatus or such a company."

Chief Justice Rugg in the opinion wrote that, when the law was passed, the telegraph was the only instrumentality for transmitting intelligence by electricity or transmitting electricity at all. It is now an unequal law, since telephone, street railway, electric light, heat and power companies are excluded, and the telegraph companies only suffer the absolute liability.

"It is nothing new in constitutional law," he wrote, "that a statute valid at one time may be void at another time because of altered circumstances."

OHIO MINE OWNERS SEND SCALE TO UNION

Will Open All Mines July 15 Whether Men Accept New Terms or Not.

ANSWER MAY BE REJECTION

But Some Miners Believe a Joint Conference Will Now Be Requested.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 6 (AP).—The wage scale adopted by the Ohio Coal Operators' Association at Columbus on June 29, which will be the basis for the reopening of Ohio mines on July 15, was mailed today by Ezra van Horn, President of the Eastern Ohio Coal Operators' Association, to Lee Hall, President of the Ohio Miners' Union at Columbus. Hall was asked to accept it.

Simultaneously it was announced that the scale, which is competitive with the wages being paid in non-union fields in surrounding States, would be posted tomorrow morning at the offices of every coal mine in Ohio.

The basic wage is $5 a day, but it was explained at the operators' headquarters here that some workmen will be able to make as much as $15 a day. The rate for loaders is set at 58 cents a ton, and cutters using any kind of breast machine, 9 cents a ton. It was said by the operators that cutters using a breast machine could turn out 100 tons a day and cutters with a short wall machine 150 tons a day.

New Year's Day, Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

On days when primaries and general elections are held the miners are to work six hours.

With the dispatching of the letter to Hall, it was emphasized at the operators' headquarters that plans are going forward to open the mines the middle of this month and that it was expected production would get under way at once.

Whether Ohio union miners will accept the ultimatum of the Ohio Mine Operators' Association to agree to work for the 1927 wage scale of $5 per day or suffer the opening of the mines on a non-union basis is expected to be decided at a conference of union officials at Columbus tomorrow. The ultimatum expires July 15.

The outcome of the conference union officials declined to discuss in advance. Heretofore, however, they have turned a deaf ear to all proposals which were not based on the Jacksonville wage scale, under which they were working up to April 1 this year.

The operators' association, in conference here last week voted to offer the union miners the 1917 wage scale as the only basis for agreement and sent an ultimatum to the union officials giving them until July 15 to accept their terms, with the alternative of opening the mines on a non-union basis. This ultimatum was received at union headquarters yesterday.

Whatever action is taken by the union officials tomorrow will be without outside influence, it was intimated at headquarters.

While the general impression prevails that the answer of the union officials will be a flat rejection of the operators' proposal, there are some who believe a joint conference with the operators may be requested.

SUES LAWYER OVER HIS FEE.

Woman Says McGauley Retained $15,000—Judge Doubts Her Claim.

Proceedings were begun yesterday in Brooklyn Supreme Court by Mrs. Marion H. Telling of 9,426 210th Street, Queens, to compel Robert M. McGauley, her former attorney, to surrender $15,000 which he claims as a legal fee.

McGauley is an Assistant District Attorney in Manhattan and was in private practice at 475 Fifth Avenue. He represented Mrs. Telling in negotiations for a settlement of $32,500 from her former husband, William E. Telling of Cleveland, from whom she was divorced last April. She contends Mr. McGauley paid her only $12,500 of the $32,500.

Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder directed Mr. McGauley to report on the circumstances under which he received the money. He denied Mrs. Telling's application to have him say what he did with the money. She had also applied to Justice Cropsey for an order summarily compelling the attorney to pay her $20,000. Mr. McGauley said he collected $30,000, paid her $12,500 and offered her an additional $2,500 which she refused. He said she had agreed that $15,000 was to be his legal fee.

Justice Cropsey reserved decision on the application, but said he did not believe he would compel Mr. McGauley to pay the money to Mrs. Telling.

Carnival Gets Stay Against Police.

The Harlem Hebrew Day and Night Nursery, which is conducting a carnival to raise funds for the nursery on property owned by the Jewish Maternity Hospital on Fifth Avenue near 108th Street, got an injunction yesterday restraining the police from interfering with the project. Justice Ingraham in granting the injunction permits the police to prevent any violation of the law. William Schor, superintendent of the nursery, said that the police had refused permission to conduct the enterprise regardless of his assurance that no games of chance would be tolerated.

Cuba's Delegates to League Sail.

Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban Minister to the United States, sailed yesterday on the Duilio of the Italia-America Line on his way to Geneva via Genoa. Mrs. Ferrara and the Minister are delegates from Cuba to the League of Nations, and will attend its annual Council meeting. Dr. Farrara declined to comment upon international affairs and said he will return to Washington to take up his post again directly after the meetings at Geneva are concluded.

INDICTS ORIGINATOR OF 'DOUBLE ENTRIES'

van's, Suber's, Jacobs's, Alexander's, Sussman's and J. L. Marks's.

The witness said both he and the box office men kept for themselves all the money they received as gratuities. Although Mr. Erlanger knew what they were doing, he took none of it.

Non-Paying Agencies Not Favored.

Mr. Bergman said that none of the agencies was compelled to make these contributions and would receive tickets without making them, but he admitted that any agency that failed to pay box office men what was expected of it would not be "catered to," that is, it would not receive the benefit of quick telephone service when it sought tickets on short notice or other favors. He agreed that to give its customers the best service an agency had to pay gratuities.

When Mr. Tuttle asked the witness why Mr. Erlanger permitted his box office men to "get all they can" from the agencies and thus aid in gouging the public, the witness replied that it was almost impossible to stop the practice, because the box office men would not tell the truth about what they received.

"Why is it," said Mr. Tuttle, "that the theatrical business is honeycombed with lying and graft?"

"Because," replied the witness, "seventy-five per cent. of the public will not buy their tickets at the box office. They prefer to go to the agencies for them."

Commissions Not in Tax Report.

Mr. Bergman admitted that he had not included his own "commissions" of $350 a week in his personal income tax returns for 1925 and 1926. He said he had left them out on the advice of a "Mr. Todd," who was formerly connected with the Internal Revenue Department in New York but has been transferred to Pittsburgh.

Before Mr. Bergman took the stand, Miss Rose Weinburg, bookkeeper for the Broadway Theatre Ticket Company, testified that, although her company sold tickets for more than the established surcharge of 50 cents, only this amount had been declared in income tax returns. Mr. Tuttle called her attention to several instances of exceptionally high surcharges noted in her books and she admitted the figures were right. In this connection the Metropolitan Opera House was brought into the testimony for the first time since the beginning of the hearings. The sales identified were:

Feb. 1, 1927, three tickets to the Metropolitan Opera House, box office price $8.25, sold by the agency for $43; Feb 1, three tickets to the Metropolitan, box office price $7.50, sold for $45; Feb. 3, three tickets to the Ziegfeld Theatre, box office price $16.50, sold for $45. The hearings will be continued at 10 o'clock this morning.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LAUDS MODERN YOUTH

Cleveland Convention Declares That Sweeping Criticism Is Not Justified.

A resolution was adopted, with applause, declaring the convention representing some 400,000 Christian people in various parts of the world "lifts its voice in behalf of fair-minded recognition of youth at the hands of the elders of the present generation."

The resolution asserted that the youth of the present generation is as responsive to the claims of high ideals as the youth of any past generation.

"We deplore the fanciful and foolish actions of many young people, which we confess are of a sort to give just grounds for critical comment and critical opinion," the resolution continued.

"On the other hand, we maintain that sweeping accusations which receive widespread currency concerning youth of the present generation and which reflect both upon its intelligence and integrity are not alone ungenerous, but that they seriously reflect on the intelligence and character of those who make them.

"We respectfully point out that the defects and failures of modern youth are for the most part those which have been exhibited by every generation of young people."

The resolution declared that only a minority of youth is conducting itself in a manner to permit comments and opinion. Dr. Robert E. Speer, Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, gave the principal address tonight.

Quartz-Lite

TRADE MARK

A NEW ULTRA-VIOLET RAY GLASS

at a price so low it can be used in every window

QUARTZ-LITE in your windows will admit indoors the healthful, ultra-violet rays of the sunlight, which are lacking in light which has passed through ordinary window glass or plate glass. Yet QUARTZ-LITE costs much less than plate glass and only a trifle more than window glass. It is so low in price that it can be used in every window in the house from basement to attic. Apartment buildings and dwellings, glazed with QUARTZ-LITE, can be rented or sold more readily.

With QUARTZ-LITE in the windows, every room is bathed in health-giving, ultra-violet rays. Indoor life thus becomes like life in the sunshine. Children respond to its beneficial effects immediately. The health of every person in the house is certain to be improved.

Ask Your Physician

Your physician will tell you that ultra-violet rays stimulate the assimilation of food, increase the red corpuscles, and cure anemia.

They prevent and cure rickets in children. They stimulate the body to resist colds, and assist in curing disease. They reduce weight.

Disease germs cannot live longer than a few minutes in ultra-violet rays. Rooms bathed in ultra-violet light become wholesome and sanitary.

Pure Quartz transmits more of the ultra-violet health giving rays of the sun than any other substance.

QUARTZ-LITE GLASS contains the highest percentage of pure quartz found in any clear glass used for windows.

In comparison with any other clear glass available for windows, tests prove that:

Iron arc light tests show that QUARTZ-LITE GLASS transmits light to the extreme limits of the sun's spectrum and even beyond.

QUARTZ-LITE transmits the recognized effective range of the ultra-violet rays of the sun necessary for heliotherapy.

The foregoing statements are based upon the results of scientific investigations made by Dr. F. L. Bishop, Dean of the School of Engineering, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. George Winchester, Professor of Physics, Rutgers University; Dr. O. S. Duffendach, Professor of Physics, University of Michigan; the United States Bureau of Standards and others.

A Perfectly Clear Glass of High Quality

Unlike other glass made for the purpose of transmitting ultra-violet rays, QUARTZ-LITE is a perfectly clear glass of fine quality and a brilliant lustre that renders it suitable for the finest residence or building.

The Price is Amazingly Low

Only 50 cents a square foot to the consumer. This low price makes it available for glazing residences, hospitals, hotels, schools, offices, greenhouses, and industrial plants. It should be used in every window for maximum beneficial effects.

QUARTZ-LITE can be purchased from any glass jobber. If the nearest dealer does not handle it, write us direct. Tell your architect and contractor you must have QUARTZ-LITE in your windows. The American Window Glass Company guarantees every pane of Quartz-Lite.

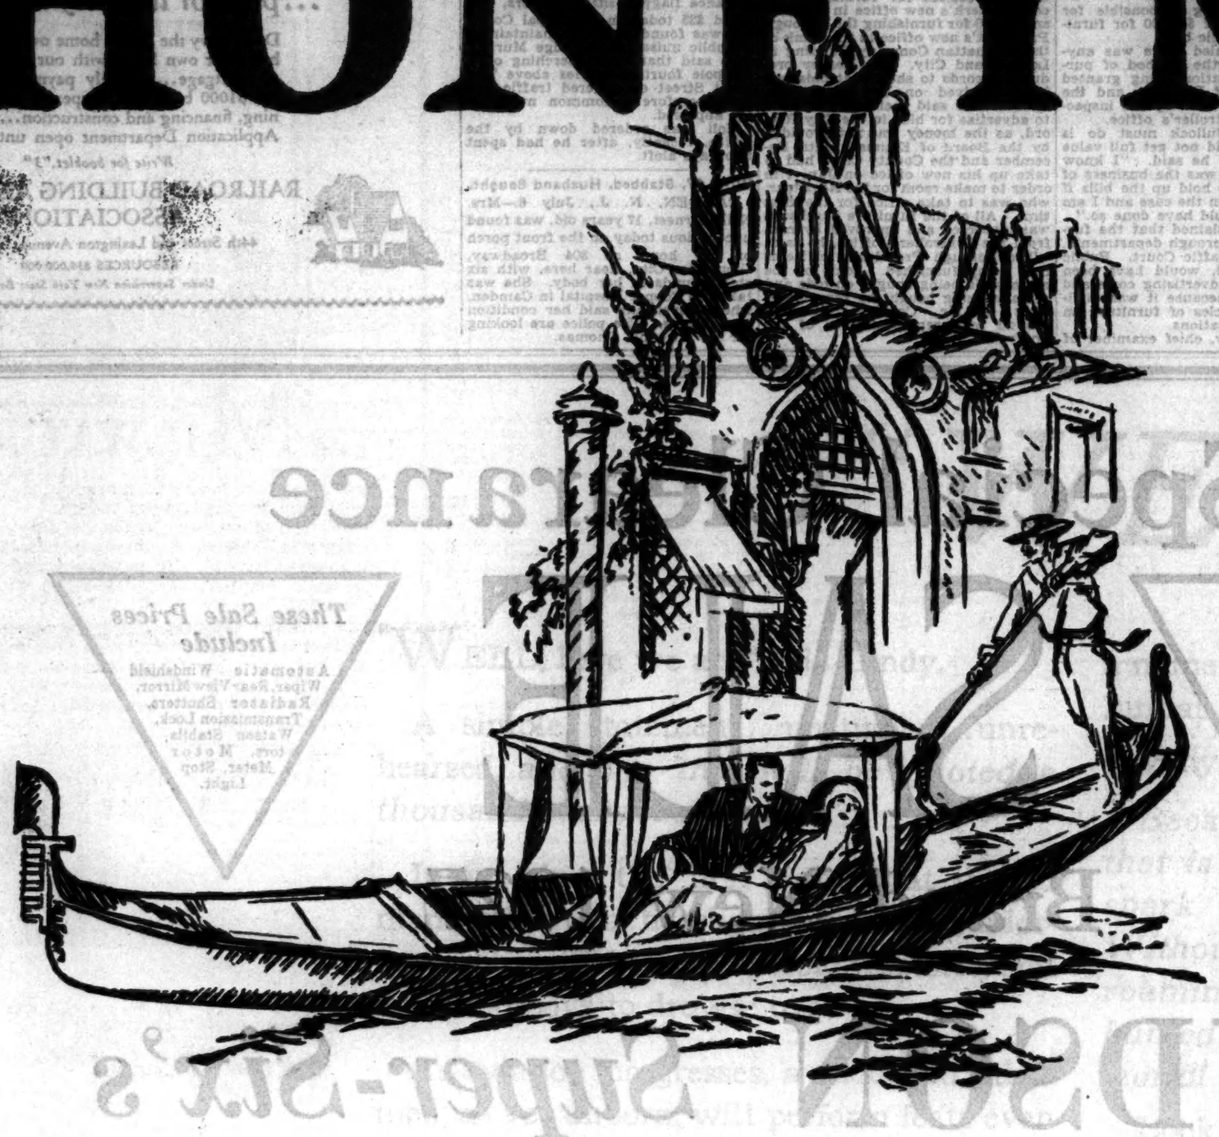
HONEYMOON HATE



By Alice M. Williamson

Gail Grant was acknowledged to be about the prettiest and by all odds the most disagreeable young woman in the United States. Money, she believed, could get her anywhere and anything at any time—it always had in the past. In Venice she meets Prince Dantarini, whose face, plus his family, is his entire fortune. He undertakes to tame this twentieth-century shrew. Honeymoon Hate is the story of the methods he used and what happened when he used them.

Charleston

By Joseph Hergesheimer

During the tragic days of Reconstruction, with a social order turned upside down and the carpetbagger in the saddle, many Southern gentlemen thought with envy of their comrades who had fallen on the battlefield. In this story of how the Carolina Rifle Club defeated a certain undesirable candidate for mayor, Mr. Hergesheimer paints a picture of old Charleston that his readers will long remember.

INQUIRIES INTO A LONG DRY SPELL

By Samuel G. Blythe

From his seat on the water wagon, Mr. Blythe looks at the show that John Barleycorn is putting on today and finds it the same old show he walked out on sixteen years ago. What, then, has brought liquor to its present place of prominence in the lives and conversations of a certain class of Americans? Has it acquired new and appealing qualities, since prohibition, that it did not possess in the old days? And furthermore, he asks if the nation is as wet as it talks and if our present unprecedented economic prosperity is not in a measure due to prohibition. Mr. Blythe reaches some very interesting conclusions concerning the Eighteenth Amendment and the new psychology of drinking.

WOMAN ATTACKS WET REFERENDUM

PLANK PLEASES LEADERS

Senator Richards Declares It Marks End of Control by Anti-Saloon League.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 6.—While Republican State leaders almost without exception expressed satisfaction today over the adoption by the Republican State Convention at its final session here yesterday of a prohibition referendum plank similar to the proposal submitted to the voters in New York State last November, a discordant note was sounded by Mrs. Lillian M. Feickert, former Vice Chairman of the Republican State Committee.

Mrs. Feickert in an interview today declared that the Republican women in the State had been ignored and that the decent element in the party had been affronted through the action of the convention. She predicted that United States Senator Walter E. Edge, to whose influence was attributed in part the favorable vote on the referendum plank, would pay as dearly when he is a candidate for re-election, for his attitude on prohibition, as did former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth in the New York State elections last year for his open advocacy of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Senator Edge has been a consistent exponent of the advanced liberal view on prohibition. From recent developments it appears that both Edward C. Stokes, former Governor and at present Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and former United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who, it is expected, will be rivals to succeed United States Senator Edward I. Edwards, Democrat and wet, whose seat must be filled in the election next year, intend to go before the voters committed to the modification of the Volstead law.

Says 80% of Women Are Dry.

Mrs. Feickert said adoption of the referendum plank was a big mistake. "The men now in control of the party in New Jersey have disregarded the views of the women of the party, 80 per cent. of whom are dry, as well as the men, most of whom are dry and who believe in law enforcement," said Mrs. Feickert. "The party is steadily becoming more dry, and there is no more chance of obtaining modification of the Volstead law than there is of abolishing prohibition entirely. The party leaders have flagrantly insulted the decent element in the party, and coming events will show the mistake they have made."

Ex-Senator Frelinghuysen today voiced his approval of the referendum plank and the entire Republican State platform adopted by the convention. "I regard the platform as constructive and sound," he said. "I am especially gratified that it was the sense of the convention to preserve the open primary, effect the strictest economy in governmental administration, and oppose the extension of the present limitations of bonded indebtedness for counties and muncipalities, and that it decided to urge a public referendum on the prohibition question.

"I regret that the platform did not contain a plank calling for a revision of our election law, and amendments which in the future would prevent election frauds such as have heretofore been charged in certain sections of our State."

State Senator Emerson L. Richards of Atlantic County, proponent of the referendum plank, is regarded as a potential candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor next year. He said today that the adoption of the plank marked the virtual emancipation of the Republican Party in New Jersey from control by the Anti-Saloon League.

"Virtually all the leaders, including all the candidates for the State Senate, agreed that the party must take a stand in favor of modification of the Volstead law," Senator Richards said. "This does not at all mean that the candidate will be in a position to dodge the issue by hiding behind the referendum. He must come out for or against the referendum and must still take a personal stand.

Calls Referendum a Guide.

"The vote, of course, will not in itself settle anything, but the proposed referendum will undoubtedly crystalize sentiment in New Jersey and should settle the argument as to whether New Jersey is wet or dry. It will be a virtual petition to Congress showing that the sentiment of New Jersey favors modification, if the question to be submitted is answered in the affirmative by a considerable majority. Naturally, the result of the referendum would serve as a guide to New Jersey's representatives in the House and in the United States Senate."

The Rev. Marna S. Poulson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in New Jersey, expressed the opinion that the proposed referendum, if authorized by the Legislature, would do no harm. "With Senator Pierson's amendment the plank is meaningless," Mr. Poulson said. "They have crawled into the same hole they came out of. They simply ask Congress to do something it has already done."

In its original form the Richards plank proposed the question so as to have it appear that if the view it embodies should prevail, the States of their own initiative would have the right to fix the legal alcoholic content percentage. Senator Arthur N. Pierson, however, caused the words "within the limits set by Congress" to be added.

It is expected that the legislative campaign in New Jersey will await the result of a special election in September at which will be submitted for ratification a proposed constitutional amendment providing four-year terms for Governors and State Senators and two-year terms for Assemblymen, who now serve one year, while the Governor and the Senators serve two years.

RULES ON JERSEY BLUE LAW

Asbury Park Holds It Must Be Enforced Against All or None.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 6.—If the law requiring barber shops to be closed on Sunday is to be enforced in Bradley Beach, every other Sunday Blue law must also be enforced and warrants sworn out against violators, Mayor Frank C. Borden Jr., ruled today. The Mayor's ruling became known when Clarence D. Hulse, a barber, applied for a warrant against Ralph Napoli, another barber, on a charge of operating his shop on Sunday, contrary to the provisions of the 1927 Sunday closing law.

Recorder Joseph R. Megill, to whom Hulse applied, refused to issue the warrant and the Mayor said he had instructed the Recorder.

"When Hulse showed me the new law and complained that Napoli was violating it," said the Mayor, "I told him I would send a police officer to notify Napoli that he should close. I did so, but I will not swear out a warrant against him, neither will I or the Police Department have anything to do with closing his place on Sunday."

Alienists Examine Snyder Slayers.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 6.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, condemned slayers of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert, were examined again today by alienists of the State Lunacy Commission in the Sing Sing death house. Dr. George Smith of Central Islip, L. I., and Dr. Joseph W. Moore of Beacon, who examined the two as well as the fourteen other prisoners in the death house, will announce their findings to Governor Smith. Prison employes said none of the inmates had been found to be insane.

A Bus Line for Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 6.—Plans for a bus line through Princeton from Jersey City to Camden were outlined last night at the meeting of the Princeton Borough Council by a representative of the Nevins Bus Line. The service is to include many towns and the Nevins Line has petitioned Princeton for permission to stop here. Ten buses will be used. The service is expected to open next week.

BYRNE INSISTS CITY IS A CAREFUL BUYER

QUEENS SYSTEM DEFENDED

Officials of Both Boroughs Say Bills for Office Furniture Were Approved by Controller.

James J. Byrne, Borough President of Brooklyn, challenged William Bullock, Director of the City Affairs Bureau of the New York County Republican Committee, yesterday to show that the city had not received full value for the purchases it made without competitive bidding. Mr. Bullock had charged that the Democratic administration spent illegally $2,386,064 on these direct contracts and mentioned the Brooklyn Borough President as being responsible for the expenditure of $89,000 for furniture without public bids.

Mr. Byrne denied there was anything illegal in the method of purchases, authorization being granted by the Board of Estimate and the expenditure approved by the inspectors of the Controller's office.

"What Mr. Bullock must do is prove that we did not get full value for our money," he said. "I know that we did. It was the business of the Controller to hold up the bills if such had not been the case and I am confident he would have done so."

Mr. Byrne explained that the furniture was for borough departments, including the Traffic Court. Public bidding, he said, would have been extravagant in advertising costs and unsatisfactory, because it was difficult to buy articles of furniture on contract specifications.

Charles Hervey, chief examiner of Queens under Borough President Connolly, who was appointed less than a year ago for the express purpose of supervising emergency expenditures, denied Mr. Bullock's charge that there were irregularities in the expenditure of the appropriations of $30,000 for furnishing the county clerk's new office in Jamaica and $6,500 for furnishing the Borough President's new office in the Bank of the Manhattan Company Building in Long Island City. Mr. Hervey produced records to show that bids had been received on the goods purchased. He said there was no time to advertise for bids in the City Record, as the money was not provided by the Board of Estimate until December and the County Clerk had to take up his new office on Jan. 1 in order to make room for the Registrar, who was to take office for the first time. All of the furniture purchased was inspected and approved by men from the Controller's office, he said.

The Borough President's office is now being furnished. Some of the material is being bought on bids and some is being bought by representatives of Mr. Connolly shopping around with representatives of the Controller.

FINEDFORFLAGPOLE-SITTING

Boston Judge Says Framingham Human Fly Endangered Traffic.

BOSTON, July 6 (AP).—Frank S. Holl, Framingham aspirant for long-distance flagpole-sitting honors, was fined $25 today in Municipal Court. He was found guilty of maintaining a public nuisance by Judge Murray, who said that Holl's perching on a flagpole fourteen stories above Tremont Street endangered traffic and was therefore a common nuisance. He appealed.

Holl was ordered down by the police, recently, after he had spent two days aloft.

Wife, 17, Stabbed, Husband Sought.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 6.—Mrs. Nellie Ernest, 17 years old, was found unconscious today on the front porch of her home at 304 Broadway, Gloucester City, near here, with six stab wounds in her body. She was taken to Cooper Hospital in Camden, where physicians said her condition was serious. The police are looking for her husband, Thomas.

"WE"

"WELL, here we are!" said Lindy.

A simple statement...unstudied...unrehearsed, and one that will be quoted a thousand years from now!

In due time the "first flight" that turned mankind into a howling, hat-tossing, adoring mob will become a cold, historic fact for schoolboys to drowse over.

As aviation progresses, a thousand other men, as yet unborn, will perform feats even more remarkable...it must be so...and Lindy's wonderful achievement will become a mere date in history.

But not so with the Boy himself.

For that careless "we" has placed upon his brow the Crown of Immortality...honor beyond the gift of kings...eternal life in the hearts of men!

So long as there are human beings, so long as the brotherhood of man is more than just a name...so long shall Lindy live...vibrant, human, lovable...until the end of Time!

Why?

Because he has voiced the "we" spirit that is the soul of humanity...the vital spark that animates the human race. Without it, we humans would still be roaming forest and plain, hunters and hunted among the other animals of the world!

Look about you! Wherever you find real progress, there you will find the "we" spirit. Wherever men are banded together to accomplish real things.. there you will invariably find the individual merged into that comprehensive "we."

True, you may sit in the cockpit of your business plane...your hand may grasp the control stick...but if you are to fly straight and true, if you are to land right side up, if your hop is to be a record-breaking success... "we" will have done it.

TELLS OF FINDING ROERICH PARTY SAFE

EXPEDITION PRESSING ON

Maurice Lichtmann, Vice President of the Roerich Museum, and Mrs. Lichtmann, member of the Board of Directors, returned on the Olympic yesterday from a five-month trip to Mongolia to ascertain the safety of the Roerich expedition, headed by Professor Nicholas Roerich, artist and explorer. After crossing Mongolia by airplane, they said, they found Professor Roerich safe and sound. He had tried to send word to them that he had turned back from Russia to Mongolia, they continued, but his messages had not go through. Last February, when the Lichtmanns set out to find him, it was feared that Professor Roerich had become lost and might have met with accident or foul play.

"When we informed Professor Roerich that for the second time he had been reported as buried—for in 1918 he was reported as buried in Siberia—he laughed heartily and inquired in whose interest it was necessary to bury him so often," said Mr. Lichtmann.

Painting a Gift to Mongolia.

"The highest circles of Mongolia regard Professor Roerich with the greatest reverence, and this international feeling has been heightened by his presentation of his painting 'The Great Rider,' which is now in possession of the Mongolian Government. We heard that three governmental departments were debating the privilege of having the painting in their possession, but it is being jealously guarded in the private study of the President of the Government, who has hung it next to the portrait of the former Bogdo-Khan.

"One member of the Mongolian Government informed us that the painting would be placed in a special building, a sort of temple where sacred objects will also be preserved. The temple is to be built of jasper and porphyry. The Mongolian Government also has asked Professor Roerich the rights of translation into Mongolian of several books.

"As Americans we were deeply touched when we heard how Professor Roerich has enfolded before the Mongols the panorama of New York, and in what high terms the world-renowned artist has spoken about the great democracy of America. It was Roerich's name which opened to us as American citizens friendly doors everywhere. Wherever the route of the Roerich expedition has been made we found sincere friendship for America.

Expedition Has Gone On.

"The expedition departed just before we left into Western Mongolia and beyond with a caravan of five Dodge automobiles. Great haste had to be made because they wanted to pass over the desert while it was still frozen."

The Roerich expedition is seeking the ruins of an unexplored ancient city which have been reported by natives in the Gobi desert. Professor Roerich was the founder of the International Art Museum at 310 Riverside Drive, one section of which contains the Roerich Museum. Last April he was reported in dispatches from Moscow as having left Urga, capital of the Independent Mongolian Republic, at the head of an expedition sponsored by the Leningrad Academy of Science, on a two-year trip to Tibet. He is a Russian, but has lived many years in the United States.

DEGREE STANDARD RAISED.

Harvard Requirements for Master of Education Made More Difficult.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6.—An increase in the requirements for the Master of Education degree given by the Harvard Graduate School of Education to become effective for all students entering the school next September was announced today by Dean Henry W. Holmes of the School of Education.

In the past the degree of Master of Education has been granted on the basis of one year of graduate work, a requirement corresponding to the traditional requirements for the degree of Master of Arts. Beginning next Fall two years of graduate study in the School of Education will be required for the Master of Education degree.

According to a statement by Dean Holmes the raising of the standard for professional training for teachers is justified by the present education situation in the United States. The new program for the degree of Master of Education means that the degree will be a certificate of broad understanding in the field of education and on reasonable competance in handling the problems of an initial post in a given form of educational service.

URGES DRIVE ON STRAY DOGS

Dr. Harris Asks S. P. C. A. to Begin Round-Up in Queens.

A drive against stray dogs in the Borough of Queens was urged yesterday by Health Commissioner Harris in a letter to Frazer E. Carthay, Superintendent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Dr. Harris, suggesting that the rigid methods which he thought necessary in Queens might well be applied to the other boroughs of the city, said it was important that all stray dogs, whether licensed or not, should be removed from the streets to the society's dog shelters.

He suggested that a policeman be assigned to each shelter to issue subpoenas to the owners of the licensed stray dogs found unmuzzled. Three wagons of the society, he said, should begin a round-up in Queens during the next two weeks.

Runaway Horse Hurts Two.

A runaway horse, galloping down the steep roadway in 181st Street between Pinehurst and Northern Avenues, yesterday knocked down and injured Miss Rose McGuire, 54 years old, of 100 Northern Avenue, and continued until the wagon collided with the curb, flinging the driver to the roadway and breaking his leg. Miss McGuire received contusions and abrasions of both legs, elbows and nose, and was taken to Columbus Hospital. Ishof Byrd of 70 East 100th Street, the driver of the wagon, which is owned by the Kaplan Iron Works, 273 East 112th Street, was taken to Jewish Memorial Hospital.

TRAINING CAMPS TARGET FOR REDS

SEES LESSON IN STRIKES

Security League Head Says Walkouts Showed Radicals Becoming Better Organized.

The action of members of the Communist and other radical organizations in attempting to stir up dissatisfaction among students of the Citizens Military Training Camps was denounced yesterday by Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, retired, wartime Commander of the Second American Army and President of the National Security League.

Not only did General Bullard charge that Communists and radicals were attempting to "bore from within" at the camps, but he said he believed many meetings were arranged, ostensibly as sympathetic gatherings in aid of strikers in the fur and other industries, but really solely for the purpose of inciting the strikers and furthering the cause of communism. He said the radicals were daily becoming better organized and were masking their propaganda under the guise of assisting those affected by labor disturbances.

Many pieces of radical literature have been brought to the office of the National Security League at 25 West Forty-third Street, the General said, and among them was the most recent one which was distributed by agitators to students as they were entraining for the Citizens Military Training Camp at Plattsburg.

A similar attempt was made last year as the students were boarding the special train at the Grand Central Terminal, but a reserve officer on duty made short work of the agitators and turned them over to the railroad police.

When the students assembled at the terminal for this year's camps detectives from the radical squad and Army Intelligence Officers were on duty and they soon apprehended the two youths who were distributing the literature. One leaflet charging that the camps were merely camouflage for military training, was obtained by the officers.

"We are faced with the prospect of another World War," the leaflet read. "Of all the imperialistic powers, America is the most ruthless and aggressive. Thousands of American marines are still in little Nicaragua, 'pacifying' that country for the bankers of Wall Street. Warships and marines are in China, defending the investments of Wall Street and trying to crush the heroic struggle of the Chinese people for freedom. Great Britain is trying to provoke a war against Soviet Russia, the only Workers & Farmers government in the world. America is taking the lead in suppressing all of the little countries in Latin and South America, in creating a large navy and air force, and in militarising and prussianizing the youth.

"The Citizens Military Training Camps is one of the means to train the future cannon fodder that will fight and die on some far-off battle field. The C M T C's help to prepare for war—it is a military institution first of all. The slogans employed in order to attract you to the camps are nothing more than smoke screens to hide the real character of this war-breathing place. 'Build your body,' 'Enjoy a good vacation,' &c., are snares to entrap the unsuspecting ones into the tentacles of the military machine. More than that, the C M T C's are supported and endorsed by big bankers, industrial concerns and railroads for another reason, too."

Held as Hotel Thief at Shore.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 6.—The police are holding a man who gave his name as William Stuart of New York City. He was arrested early this morning after he had leaped from a second story window of the Marlborough Hotel. According to hotel employes who appeared as complainants, the man was in the room of a guest. The police said they found several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry in his pockets, allegedly taken from various rooms.

LETTERS OF 'LOVE-SICK' SEIZED IN HUNDREDS

Taken in Alleged Cleveland Health Cult House—'Doctor' and Two Others Held.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 6 (AP).—Postal authorities tonight scanned hundreds of letters taken by Cleveland police in a raid on an alleged health cult headquarters and written to a mysterious "Robert Cheslyn."

Police were puzzled at the identity of "Robert Cheslyn," as "Dr." Homer Thompson, at whose home the letters were found, denied he knew anything regarding them.

When questioned by Federal authorities he declared the letters were a part of the correspondence between his daughter, Mrs. Helen Cheslyn, and her husband during her courting days. Officials said, however, that he did not explain the difference in handwriting, in names, in the wide range of country which they covered, in interests and personal descriptions which they disclosed.

Police Captain Dorothy D. Henry asserts that she has found three missing girls at the Thompson home during the last year. Most of the letters were written by lovesick girls, Captain Henry said.

In explaining her action in turning over the case to Federal officers, Captain Henry said that "too many adventure-loving girls stray away from their small-town homes to the graver life to be found in the big cities."

"A letter-writing agency such as this," she said, "which seemed to be run along lines of a matrimonial bureau, is simply an added magnet to scores of other girls, and I intend to take every possible means to break up the practice."

Thompson, his daughter, Helen, and a roomer, Robert Burlingame, are held on charges of violating the Harrison Narcotic act.

All the letters confiscated by police voice a plea for relief from the humdrum of the present and promise to do anything to make their escape. "Only advise us how," was the thought running through all the letters.

Schenck—Schmidt.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., July 7.—The wedding of Miss Elsie Fuller Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Andrew Schmidt of Watchung, and the Rev. Harold William Schenck, son of Mrs. Sarah E. Schneck of Nutley, N. J., and the late Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, took place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Wilson Memorial Union Church, Watchung.

The ceremony was performed on the terraced lawn by the Rev. Dr. William Melville Curry, pastor of the Ninth Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia, former pastor of the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by her sisters and sisters-in-law. Miss Therese Elisabeth Schmidt of Watchung was maid of honor and Miss Helen Louise Schmidt of Watchung, Mrs. Leroy E. Emerich of Germantown, Pa., Mrs. George W. Schmidt of Plainfield and Mrs. Richard D. Schmidt of Bound Brook, N. J., were bridesmaids. Justine Derieux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson Derieux of New York, was flower girl. Cornelius F. Schenck of Nutley was his brother's best man, and the ushers were the Rev. Homer S. Sheffer of Athol, Mass.; the Rev. Lawrence H. French of Teaneck, N. J., and Earl Reed Silvers of Rahway, N. J., classmates of Mr. Schenck, and Kenneth D. Schmidt, brother of the bride. A reception followed the ceremony in the garden at the home of the bride's parents, at which more than 250 guests were present.

The couple will sail tomorrow on the Lapland for Europe. After a brief visit at The Hague, Holland, where Mr. Schenck served as Minister in charge of the American church last Summer, they will proceed to Lausanne, Switzerland, to attend the World Conference of Faith and Order. They will return in September.

The bride is a graduate of the Trenton Normal School and until recently was principal of the Binet Department of the Eighteenth Avenue School, Newark. During the World War she served in France with the American Committee for Relief in the devastated areas under Miss Ann Morgan.

Mr. Schenck is a graduate of Rutgers University and New Brunswick Seminary and the New York University Graduate School. He has been pastor of the Franklin Reformed Church, Nutley, since 1916.

Barry—Turner.

Miss Sarah Marie Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Turner of 44 Fairview Avenue, and William Joseph Barry, son of Mrs. Margaret Barry of 15 Howard Street North Plainfield, were married today at a nuptial mass in St. Joseph's Church, the Rev. William A. Gilfillan, pastor, officiating. Miss Catherine Lang of Elizabeth, N. J., was maid of honor and William Feaster of North Plainfield, was best man. Mrs. Albert Seidel and Mrs. Mary Aller were the soloists. A reception was held.

The bride is a graduate of the Montclair Normal School and has been teaching in the Plainfield public schools.

GEORGE V AND QUEEN OBSERVE WEDDING DAY

They Drive Through London East End—King Attends Fuad's Banquet in the Evening.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—King George and Queen Mary celebrated the thirty-fourth anniversary of their wedding today by driving this morning in an open carriage two miles through the grimy East End London streets, where a dense crowd cheered continually the procession with its scarlet and gold outriders.

Tonight the King and three of his sons dined as guests of King Fuad at the Egyptian Legation, where giant Nubian butlers, clad in maroon tunics and loose, white, embroidered trousers, served an Egyptian menu on golden dishes. Contrary to the custom at great state dinners, no women attended that of Fuad.

The morning and evening events of the wedding anniversary presented as sharp a clash as is possible of social conditions. The East End's thousands, who swarmed the curbs, cheering, were inhabitants of Poplar Borough, where public finances are bankrupt and a large proportion of the families live on the dole and elect George Lansbury and similar radical Labor Party leaders to all political positions. Yet the crowds gave vocal evidence of the personal popularity of the monarch and the streets were a-flutter with thousands of flags.

The King shook hands with forty members of the British Legion and the Queen engaged a baby in a laughing conversation and gave the child a flower.

Fuad's dinner tonight was declared to be one of the most gorgeous held here in years. In a hall banked with orchids and roses, fifty guests sat at a horseshoe-shaped table. Fuad placed King George on his right. In addition to the three British Princes, the Baldwin Cabinet and diplomats partook of the banquet.

While his Prime Minister, Sarwat Pasha, will be engaged in discussions with the Foreign Office, possibly negotiating a new treaty with Great Britain, Fuad's program calls for the inspection of the Lancashire cotton industry, in which he is reputed to be an expert.

COURTED 50 YEARS AGO; WED

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 6 (AP).—A romance that began fifty years ago in Dorchester, N. B., when Gilbert Taylor wooed Emma Louise Buck, resulted in the marriage yesterday in East Longmeadow, near here, of Taylor, now 74, and his former sweetheart, 68, in the Methodist parsonage.

Taylor, a sailor, returned many years ago from the sea to find his sweetheart, lonely in his long absence, receiving attention from another admirer. He departed in a huff and both subsequently married. A few months ago they attended a reunion in Boston of old residents of the New Brunswick town. Both had been widowed some years ago.

SOUTHAMPTON SEES UNIVERSITY PLAYERS

POTTERS ENTERTAIN ACTORS

200 Attend Exhibition of Paintings by Rachel Hartley—Sale Held by Shinnecock School.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 6.—The University players presented "The Dover Road" by A. A. Milne this evening to a capacity audience at the Parrish Memorial Hall, which has been successfully converted into a small theatre. On the walls of the auditorium are displayed sketches of sets made by Harold Helvenston, art and technical director of the University players for plays produced last Winter by Yale University's School of Drama.

All the members of the cast and the staff are students. From Yale are Miss Anne Shiraz, Henry C. Potter, under whose management the plays are given; Harold Helvenston, Andrew Lytle, George H. Quinby, Hale MacKeen and George Haight, business manager and treasurer; from the Drama School of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Miss Marion Beeson; from the Boleslavsky School of Acting at the American Laboratory Theatre, New York, Miss Ellen Whiteman; from the John Murray Anderson School of New York, Miss Bessie Belmont.

Other Plays to Be Given.

Edgar M. Wooley, Dean of the Boston Repertory Theatre, has directed "The Dover Road," which will be followed in two weeks by "Her Husband's Wife," by A. E. Thomas, and in August by "Meet the Wife," by Lynn Starling. The two latter plays will be directed by Hubert Osborne, assistant director of the Yale University Theatre.

Samuel L. Parrish has given the players the use of Memorial Hall and they will divide the season's receipts with the Rogers Memorial Library, of which Mr. Parrish is President of the trustees. The library is campaigning for funds.

Sponsoring the university players are Mrs. Thomas H. Barber, Mrs. Marshall J. Dodge, Mrs. Henry F. du Pont, Mrs. Reginald Fincke, Mrs. Sidney W. Fish, Mrs. George Barton French, Mrs. Littleton Fox, Mrs. Albert Herter, Mrs. Alvin W. Krech, Mrs. James P. Lee, Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, Mrs. Charles E. Mitchell, Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, Mrs. F. C. Before the play, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Potter entertained the players at dinner at their home in Great Plains Road.

Paintings Are Shown.

At the invitation of Mrs. Lucien Hamilton Tyng, about two hundred of the colony attended today a private showing of the paintings of Miss Rachel Hartley, held in the boat house of The Shallows, Mr. and Mrs. Tyng's Summer place. Miss Hartley, a granddaughter of the late George Innes, has spent several Winters in South America and the West Indies. She has a Summer home in Southampton. The exhibition will continue for ten days.

An interesting feature of the day was a program of old English madrigals and glees and negro spirituals presented by the Morley Singers, Miss Clytie Hines, Miss Gwyneth Hughes, George Dorrance and Alfredo Valenti. The guests were seated on a lawn sloping toward a stage surrounded on three sides by trees and shrubs. Luncheon was served at small tables under striped umbrellas on the lawn.

Miss Doris Francklyn and Miss Agnes Keyes held the annual sale of the work of the Shinnecock Needlework School this morning and afternoon at Redcroft, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Francklyn. The Indian women and girls of the Shinnecock Reservation, who are members of the needlework classes conducted by Miss Francklyn and Miss Keyes sold their work and received orders from the Summer colony for more.

LILIAN W. GROSVENOR IS ENGAGED TO WED

WILL BE MARRIED JULY 28

Washington Girl Is Granddaughter of Alexander G. Bell—Catherine B. Cartan Also Betrothed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert H. Grosvenor announced today the engagement of their daughter, Lilian Waters Grosvenor, to Cabot Coville, newly appointed language officer at the American Embassy in Tokio. He is the son of Dr. Frederick V. Coville, distinguished botanist and explorer, Chairman of the Research Committee of the National Geographic Society and of the Arts Club of Washington and connected with the Agricultural Department.

The wedding will take place July 28 at Beinn Bhreagh, Baddeck, Nova Scotia, the Summer home of the late Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, maternal grandfather of Miss Grosvenor, which now belongs to the Grosvenors. Dr. and Mrs. Grosvenor and their family will go there July 21 from their suburban home, Wild Acres, near Bethesda, Md.

Miss Grosvenor studied at the Abbot Academy at Andover, Mass., and later for a year in France, Switzerland and Italy. She has traveled extensively, has visited in Brazil and Argentina and recently returned from Spain and Morocco with her parents.

Her paternal grandfather is Dr. Edwin A. Grosvenor of Amherst College, who was for many years President of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa. Her paternal grandmother, for whom she was named, is a cousin of Chief Justice Taft. Dr. Gilbert H. Grosvenor is President of the National Geographic Society.

Mr. Coville is a graduate of Deep Springs School, California, and Cornell University, class of '23. He studied for a year in France and was recently graduated from the foreign service school of the Department of State. He will take his bride, immediately after the wedding, to his new post at Tokio.

Cartan—Clarke.

Henry Carten of San Francisco, Cal., has announced to his friends in this city the engagement of his daughter, Catherine B. Cartan, to Richard Warner Clarke of 908 Lexington Avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Clarke of Utica, N. Y.

Miss Cartan attended school in the East and abroad. Mr. Clarke was graduated from Amherst College in 1919, where he was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. During the World War he was an ensign in the navy. He is a member of the Sons of the Revolution, the New England Society and the Amherst, Alpha Delta Phi and Coldstream Golf Clubs.

The wedding will take place in the Autumn in California.

BRITISH HEIR EXPECTED TO VISIT HERE AGAIN

Prince of Wales Will Probably Come South During Canadian Trip This Summer.

OTTAWA, July 6 (AP).—The Prince of Wales, it is learned, will probably take the opportunity of his presence in Canada late this Summer to make another visit to the United States.

His itinerary is now being drafted, but after his arrival at his ranch at High River, Alberta, in the second week of August, no arrangements have been made.

With Premier Baldwin, he will arrive at Quebec on July 29, and proceed to Montreal for a day, Ottawa for three days and Toronto for two days.

The Prince and the Premier then will go direct to Banff, Alberta, but Mr. Baldwin will return East immediately, sailing from North Sydney, N. S., on Aug. 15.

The Prince, it is stated, will have a minimum of public engagements while in Canada.

Poly and Joe Marrone III Win as Aqueduct Closes; Empire City Opens Today

SANDE IN STAR ROLE AS AQUEDUCT CLOSES

Pilots Poly to Victory in the Africander, Wins the Myrtle on Joe Marrone III.

TWO JOCKEYS IN SPILLS

Hunt Has Narrow Escape When Tossed in 'Chase, Burke Thrown as Mount Hits Fence in Fifth.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Earl Sande wound up the meeting of the Queens County Jockey Club at Aqueduct yesterday afternoon in one of his old-time blazes of glory. He had three mounts, won with two of them decisively and was beaten a head with his third for all the money. He first accounted for the Africander Handicap at six furlongs with J. P. McGovern's three-year-old Poly and then captured the thirty-ninth running of the Myrtle Claiming Stakes with William Wollman's Joe Marrone III, both being long shots. In the final at a mile he couldn't hold T. P. Hart's Fair Man out to stave off Graeme's closing rush and was just beaten.

Only a fair crowd turned out for getaway day at the course and the last afternoon of racing on Long Island until the horses return to Belmont Park on September 5. The sport was not exciting, the last race developing the only red hot finish.

There were two spills, neither of which was serious. In the steeplechase Walter J. Salmon's Fast Play tossed off W. Hunt at the second obstacle. He lost his helmet as he went down and narrowly escaped being kicked in the head by following jumpers.

Cruelty Tosses Burke.

In the fifth, a dash for the two-year-olds, Burke took a spectacular tumble from J. S. Cosden's colt Cruelty at the furlong pole. The son of Crimper had been right with the leaders and then began to quit. Burke gave him a cut with his whip and the colt swerved away from it, bolting into the fence. The colt held his feet, but Burke came down heavily. He was taken to the emergency room, where it was found that his leg was cut and scraped badly and the boy was stunned and bruised, but not seriously injured.

Joe Marrone III was a long shot, with few accepting 6 to 1 against him, the money pouring in for the Rosedale Stable's Ceylon Prince, which was backed to evens. Sande rode a first-class race on the winner, holding him under wraps back of the pace set by Jefferson Livingston's Adamas and J. L. Holland's Gnome Girl to the stretch. Then he came up on the outside and in a drive defeated Adamas by three parts of a length, Ceylon Prince being half a length back. The race was worth $3,625. Joe Marrone carried top weight of 121 pounds and ran the mile in 1:38 flat. Sande received an ovation at the scales.

"We" Combination Invincible.

J. P. McGovern's three-year-old colt Poly, after a month's rest and freshening, came back in the Africander Handicap over the six furlongs course to beat seven others rather easily. Earl Sande was the pilot and the "we" combination was invincible. The son of Polymelian, lugging top weight of 123 pounds, broke fast, took command when Kawa quit and came home a couple of lengths in front of W. R. Coe's Selene, which finished fast from well back.

Poly was not heavily backed at 5 to 1, the bulk of the play being on H. P. Whitney's Pandera. The filly had no chance under Abel's ride, the boy getting her into all kinds of difficulties. Gifford A. Cochran's filly Guinea Hen was well supported, failing her followers when the test came after being in a contending position.

Misfortunes of racing cost the Dorwood Stable the honors in the Across Country Steeplechase, in which its entry ran second and third to Frederick G. Hostetter's Liroux. This is the stable of Victor Emmanuel recruited in France by Al Davis and is an outfit that should have a strong voice in the cross-country events at Saratoga next month and at Belmont Park and Aqueduct in the Autumn.

Liroux Wins Easily.

Phosphore had started once, running a good race back of Job. Elder had never carried silks before in this country, but he had won the rich Prix de Calabrais at Auteuil on Easter Sunday and the pair were backed to 4 to 5 by those who considered the company the Frenchmen were keeping. The stable declared to win with Phosphore, which was held well back of the pace until the far turn by Barrett Haynes.

J. V. H. Davis, Al Davis's son and an amateur rider, was up on Elder and he was far out of the contention when Haynes made his move, his saddle having slipped at the second jump. Liroux had made the pace from the start, but Phosphore caught him two furlongs from home. He made a bad landing at the second to the last jump, which cost him the race, as he lost four or five lengths by the mishap. Young Davis then brought up Elder when he saw his stable-mate was beaten, but Liroux had four lengths on him at the wire, with Phosphore three lengths back.

Bugle and Barrier.

Westchester County racing enthusiasts will come into their own this afternoon when Jim Butler opens the gates at Empire City. The hilltop course has a clientele all its own, many of the patrons never visiting the Long Island tracks.

Further efforts will be made by Sam Hildreth to get Grey Lag back to the races again. The old fellow is galloping slowly, but it is a question at his age whether he can make the grade.

Linus (Pony) McAtee expects to be in the saddle again next month. This is good news for his innumerable friends. He was seriously injured in a fall at Belmont Park, but plans to discard his crutches next week, after which he will go to Saratoga Springs to recuperate and gallop a few horses, wearing colors again during the Spa meeting.

Walter M. Jeffords's Binnacle, a son of Man o' War, ran a good race to be third to Tuskegee and Polydor his first time out. The same may be said of Polydor, William Ziegler's Golden Broom colt, that was also carrying silks for the first time. Tuskegee cost Eben M. Byers $35,000 and was backed to 4 to 5 in his second start.

Entries, Weights and Jockeys For Empire City Handicap

ISLAND FARM TAKES 2 LATONIA FEATURES

Its Ethel Dear Wins Mills Point Purse and Rejuvenation, a Stablemate, Lewisburg.

PASCUMA ON BOTH VICTORS

Special to The New York Times.

LATONIA, Ky., July 6.—The Island Farm Stable annexed the two feature races here today. Its three-year-old filly Ethel Dear won the Mills Point Purse and its four-year-old colt Rejuvenation took the next event, the Lewisburg Purse. T. Pascuma rode both winners.

Ethel Dear broke in front of her field in the six-furlong dash and quickly opened up a lead of a length, which she retained to the finish. Mirafel raced in second position all the way, but just saved the place from Birley M. C. at the end. Ethel Dear, which was coupled with Lovely Manners, paid $15.20 for $2.

Rejuvenation had rough going in the early stages of the race at a mile and a sixteenth, but later found clear sailing on the outside and came on courageously in the stretch to catch the pacemaker, Sea Scamp, and win by over a length. Sea Scamp held off Lancer for the place. The victor yielded $9.80.

RACE SEASON BEGINS AT YONKERS TODAY

Thoroughbred sport will open this afternoon at the Yonkers course of the Empire City Racing Association, after a long Spring and Summer season at the three Long Island tracks. Racing at James Butler's plant on the hilltop will continue through the remaining weeks of July, following which will come the annual exodus to Saratoga Springs, where, for the first time, there will be five full weeks of sport.

At Empire City the customary stakes will be run off, including the Empire City Handicap, the Mount Vernon Handicap, the Arrow Stakes, the Yonkers Handicap, the Knickerbocker Handicap and the Mount Kisco Stakes for the older division. For the three-year-olds there will be the Empire City Derby, the Melrose Stakes and the Tarrytown States; while the juveniles are well provided for by the Whirl Stakes, the Demoiselle Stakes, the East View, Frivolity and Sprightful Stakes and the Wakefield Handicap.

Course in Readiness.

All is in readiness at the hilltop to welcome the thoroughbreds and their followers, although the horsemen have not liberally patronized the events on the opening day's card. Place of honor is held by the Empire City Handicap, which will be run for the nineteenth time over the course of a mile and a quarter. The race is for three-year-olds and upward and carries $5,000 in added money. Only four have accepted the weights, headed by the Aknusti Stable's Peanuts under top weight of 124 pounds.

It was doubted by many if Peanuts would go to the post under so heavy an impost, but Mr. Gerry's colt has been especially pointed for this event, after which he will be shipped to Saratoga to prepare for his engagements at the Spa. The son of Ambassador IV won the Empire City last year under 112 pounds.

Thurber to Ride Peanuts.

Winner of the Brooklyn and Brookdale Handicaps, Peanuts has been undefeated in his three starts this season. But the colt will have to give away a lot of weight—18 pounds to so shifty a runner as Light Carbine, 22 pounds to Sanford and 26 to Mr. Butler's Bright Steel. However, he won the Brookdale easily ten days ago under 119 pounds, and it is generally conceded that he will duplicate his performance of last Summer. Thurber will have the mount on the Gerry colt.

The two two-year-old events on the opening day's card have large fields named, while the other events have filled fairly well.

Sandy Hook Will Invade America For Grand National Steeplechase

British Jumper to Be Sent Here by Tom Leader for Big Race at Belmont Park in Fall—The Ace to Represent France in the $35,000 Classic.

Tom Leader has just notified A. Charles Schwartz that he will send over from England Sandy Hook and one other jumper of quality for the running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Belmont Park the last day of the Autumn meeting of the Westchester Racing Association. Leader's son, who is in the front rank of the cross-country riders in England, will come with these two jumpers to assist in their final preparation.

The greatest interest has been taken on both sides of the Atlantic in this rich steeplechase, which will carry $35,000 in added money, and there is certain to be a very large foreign entry, which will infuse the contest with a strong international flavor and give it rank in interest with the invasion of Papyrus and Epinard. Entries will close next Tuesday, July 12, and the list of nominations will be awaited eagerly by American horsemen and followers of steeplechasing.

From France comes the announcement that Ralph Beaver Strassburger, who raced extensively in this country some years ago and has acquired a stable of the first class abroad, will send over The Ace, generally regarded as one of the top-notch jumpers in France. The Ace will be shipped in a few days, and will go into the stable of John T. Kermath, who trained jumpers for Mr. Strassburger during the years he raced in this country. Kermath also will prepare one of Walter J. Salmon's jumpers for the Grand National, which will be equal in value to the Liverpool classic.

Experts Like German Horse.

Baron von Lyncker's Laufjunge will carry German colors in the big Belmont race. He already is on this side in the stable of John Loftus and is galloping daily at Belmont Park. He will go to Saratoga to complete his acclimatization, and possibly to run in a few events at the Spa. Experts agreed that he is a good-looking horse with a satisfactory way of going.

Stephen Sanford, who won the Liverpool Grand National with Sergeant Murphy, plans to ship Blancona and Marsin from England on July 16. The former is a seven-year-old son of Great Sport and Benedictine. Marsin is 9 years old and is by Sunder out of St. Maria. Their owner will sail for home on the Majestic on July 27 with Joseph E. Widener, President of the Westchester Racing Association. On the same ship will come G. Blackwell, Sanford's trainer, who will prepare the two jumpers for the international event.

American owners already are preparing to meet the invasion, and there will be a strong field to draw from in Fairmount, last year's champion; Upsal, Erne II, Jolly Roger and half a dozen others. The Dorwood Stable of Victor Emmanuel, which has already shown Elder and Phosphore, and has The Sidar in reserve, should furnish at least one candidate for the rich stake.

Chase Race for Hunters.

R. T. Wilson, President of the Saratoga Association, at the request of a numberq of well-known patrons of hunt meetings, has consented to include in the program for the meeting next month at Saratoga a steeplechase for hunters, the conditions for which will be a handicap at two and a half miles.

The marked interest which has developed in this class of racing in the last few months assures a worthwhile contest. Not alone will the field be of generous proportions but of a quality far above the average of this grade of jumpers. They will, of course, be ridden by gentlemen riders.

In this particular line developments have been most flattering. In Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Virginia and on Long Island young men of the right type have been seen in the saddle at the various point-to-points, and displayed a brand of horsemanship which gives them every right to class with the best of the professionals.

The Eastern Horse Club, which sponsors the Brookline meeting, has special interest in this event that will take to Saratoga a new class of steeplechasing. They will present a piece of plate valued at $200 to the owner of the winner, and it is certain that a trophy will be provided for the rider first to the finish.

With the first announcement that the race would be run preparations were started to make ready the very best of the hunter division. Most of them are on their home training grounds, but active training will begin at once, and will be continued until they ship up to Saratoga.

DEVONSHIRE DERBY TO SEAGRAM STABLE

Wandering Minstrel Races Through Mud to Six-Length Victory—Pays $11.20 for $2.

BLACK ON WHITE SECOND

Special to The New York Times.

WINDSOR, Ontario, Canada, July 6.—The Seagram Stable's chestnut colt Wandering Minstrel sped over a muddy track at Devonshire Park today to capture by five lengths the first running of the Devonshire Derby. Black On White finished about the same distance in front of Fly Hawk to gain place money. The winner, a three-year-old son of The Wanderer and Savilla, covered the mile and a furlong in 1:58 2-5. His victory netted his owners $4,600 and his backers $11.20 for $2.

Nealon Kay was out in front of the field of nine in the early running but soon gave way to Wandering Minstrel, which was ably ridden by H. Thomas and which easily held sway thereafter. Black On White and Fly Hawk, the favorite, were back in the bunch in the early stages but both finished fast, although never threatening the winner.

The State Athletic Commission having sanctioned a change from Saturday to Friday in the weekly boxing shows of the Long Beach Stadium, tomorrow's card for that arena was announced yesterday. The main bout will be between two heavyweights, Harold Mays and Tom Sayers. It is scheduled for ten rounds.

A six-round preliminary will be between Arthur Lummy of Mitchel Field and Frank Munch of Hempstead. The other six-rounders are as follows: Joe Gorman vs. Connie Josenlo, Georgie Daggett vs. Louis Gonzales and Manny Rosen vs. Ray Rivera.

Dempsey Cheers Blinded Boy; Admires Him for Strong Spirit

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 6 (AP).—Jack Dempsey, training at Saratoga Lake, paused long enough to-day to congratulate Leonard Breton Thomas, 14, made blind by an automobile accident, on his game fight to bring back his sight. In a letter written to the boy who is in the Syracuse Memorial Hospital, Dempsey said:

"The former champion of boxers wishes to congratulate the champion of sportsmen on the great fight he has made following his unfortunate accident. Your spirit is as strong as the one I am going to carry into the ring with me July 21, when I meet Jack Sharkey. I hope that you will listen in on the radio when I make my great comeback. I wish you the same success in your fight that I know you wish me in mine."

Takes Trot for 2:12 Eligibles Though Jeritza Captures the Third Heat at Hartford.

JUVENILE STAKE TO DOANE

Bugle Call Repeats Victory of Last Week in 2:18 Trot After American Dillon Is Distanced.

Special to the New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 6.—The feature event at Sage Park today, the $10,000 trot for 2:12 eligibles that brought a fast field together, was won by Guy Reaper, although Jeritza succeeded in winning the third heat. The victor, owned by F. W. Woodman of Haverhill, Mass., was highly thought of by the talent. All of the finishes were of the head to head order.

Doane, the North Carolina three-year-old trotter, won the stake for juveniles of that age. Dock Dillon, New Jersey youngster, driven by Harry Brusie, took third money.

Bugle Call, owned by Dr. Frances Henderson of Boston, repeated his victory of last week in the 2:18 stake trot. After winning the first heat in this class American Dillon was declared distanced on a long break from the three-quarter pole to the wire.

The card tomorrow will close the most successful meeting ever held at Sage Park according to Manager Allan J. Wilson. The 2:18 pace, 2:09 trot and the 2:15 pace are the final day's events.

Action Again Marks Dempsey's Boxing; Sharkey Here Today

DEMPSEY CONTINUES HARD-HITTING DRIVE

His Attack and Timing Form in Second Day of Rugged Sparring Please Camp.

JACK TO PLAY GOLF TODAY

Condition So Advanced That Flynn Orders Day of Rest—Hildebrand Knocked Out.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 6.—Two weeks before his come-back in the ring against Jack Sharkey on July 21, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, is at a point in his physical preparation which satisfies himself and the few watching him at his private workouts on the shores of Saratoga Lake.

The hard workout of yesterday was followed by another torrid drill this afternoon in which Dempsey's punching strength and hitting accuracy again were on exhibition with disastrous results to his sparring mates.

Pietro Corri, rugged Austrian heavyweight, who has withstood Dempsey's punching thus far, was another target but he was allowed to survive.

Dempsey Spares Corri.

Corri was not knocked out because Dempsey, after getting his sparring mate primed for a finishing blow after sending him to one knee, shifted his fire from the head and jaw to the body, blows which were more punishing than a finishing blow.

Martin Burke, the New Orleans light-heavyweight, toward whom Dempsey ordinarily is favorably inclined, was another to feel the impact of solid punches as the sturdy ex-champion banged away with rights to the body, which slipped under Burke's left leads for the face.

Dempsey worked nine rounds this afternoon, in addition to the customary road drill this morning, six rounds being devoted to sparring. He worked satisfactorily and finished in such good form that Manager Leo P. Flynn announced he would rest Dempsey tomorrow by taking him out for an afternoon of golf.

"He's feeling so good now that I think it best to give him a day of rest from sparring," said Flynn. "He can have a workout on the road tomorrow morning and he'll get plenty of exercise on the links."

Saxon Excels for a Time.

Dempsey's form varied today. He did not show to advantage against Johnny Saxon, who boxed the first round, after Dempsey had worked on the chest pulleys and a round on the inflated bag. Dempsey, against Saxon, looked slow and awkward. Near the end of them round, however, Dempsey clipped Saxon with a left hook to the jaw and Johnny almost went down.

Against Dave Shade, second in the ring, Dempsey contented himself with covering the middleweight in the clinches and was successful for the most part.

Gans peppered Dempsey almost at will with lefts and occasionally shot his right to the face. Dempsey did pick off one left in the air and on another occasion he drove a right to the head over a left lead and Gans hesitated in his pace.

Hildebrand Stops Suddenly.

Hildebrand made Dempsey look bad for close to two minutes of their workout. He jabbed well with a left while in retreat and occasionally stepped in with a right to the face, but Dempsey tired of this treatment and during the last minute went after Hildebrand.

A right to the jaw sent Hildebrand to one knee and another sent him to both knees. The youngster rose groggily and Dempsey toppled him over backward with a left.

Dempsey finished his sparring workout just before it started to rain. The champion went to work on the heavy stuffed bag for a round which closed the session as the moisture began to drip. In this drill, Manager Flynn constantly coached Dempsey to stand flat on his feet and it was noticeable how Dempsey followed instructions.

The custom of having Jerry Luvadis hold the stuffed bag while Dempsey pounded it in a last ten-second fury attack was introduced today. The bag punching ended with the little trainer showing more ill effects than Dempsey.

The possibility of Hildebrand quitting the camp came up after the workout, but it is probable that a day of rest will induce the youngster to remain.

Another illustration of the confidence with which the camp is becoming imbued was provided in the departure late last night of Leonard Sachs, Dempsey's secretary, for New York. Sachs revealed that while in the city he will seek to place $5,500 at odds of 1 to 6 that Dempsey will regain his title. This pool was assembled among the camp workers and admirers of Dempsey in Saratoga.

TERRIS OPERATED UPON.

Sid Terris, regarded as the foremost contender for the lightweight boxing championship, was operated upon by Dr. George Schwartz last night at St. Mark's Hospital, for a boil on his right foot. His condition was regarded as satisfactory following the operation, and it was reported that he will be able to go to his home in a few days.

SHARKEY EXPECTED TO BE HERE TODAY

Boston Heavyweight to Make First Training Appearance Tomorrow.

POUNDAGE DROPS TO 195½

Mayor Nichols Enthuses Over Fellow Townsman's Condition—Odds 8-5 on Sharkey.

Jack Sharkey, who disappointed New York fans on Tuesday by failing to arrive anr start training then, is now scheduled to make his first appearance at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in preparation for his bout with Jack Dempsey.

The Boston heavyweight contender, who will meet the ex-champion at the Yankee Stadium on July 21 for the right to clash with Gene Tunney, world's champion, in September, is slated to start from Boston this morning after his customary five-mile road workout, and plans to drive down in his car. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Sharkey and his trainer, Harry Kelly. His party is due to arrive around 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, plans to take the night boat from Boston and arrive here tomorrow.

Meanwhile the Lithuanian continued his light drills yesterday at Kelly & Hayes's gymnasium in Boston. He did five miles on the road in the morning and in the afternoon put in the equivalent of nine rounds. Three of these were devoted to sparring with Rocky Stone, three with the big bag, one with the small bag, one rope skipping and one shadow boxing.

Sharkey Scales 195½.

After his workout he scaled 195½, a drop of two and one-half pounds from the day before, indicating that he is in prime condition and is merely working to keep in form. Sharkey weighed 192 pounds when he knocked out Jim Maloney last May and expects to enter the ring against Dempsey at the same notch.

This report of Sharkey's activities was telephoned from Boston to the Garden offices. One of the spectators at yesterday's workout was Malcolm Nichols, Mayor of Boston, who was enthusiastic over the appearance and performance of the man who will carry Boston's heavyweight traditions, that began with John L. Sullivan, into the battle when he meets the ex-champion July 21. The Mayor charged Sharkey with the task of getting past Dempsey and then bringing the heavyweight title back to Boston from Gene Tunney.

Another spectator was Johnny Wilson, former middleweight king, who rated Sharkey a 2-to-1 favorite to beat Dempsey. Incidentally, betting odds here have widened in Sharkey's favor from 6-to-5 to 8-to-5. However, the wagering was light—due, apparently, to the doubts that have arisen over Dempsey's condition.

Promoter Tex Rickard and his staff were still busily trying to catch up with the out-of-town orders for tickets. They worked until midnight Tuesday and still have a large stack to dispose of before the requests will be allotted.

Besides the preparations for Sharkey's arrival today and the distribution of tickets little transpired in boxing circles.

PHILS PASS BRAVES BY WINNING TWICE

Ulrich, in Relief Role, Stops Boston in First, 6-4, While Scott Takes Final by 5-3.

FOURNIER GETS HOME RUN

Blow Comes in Nightcap With One On, but Fails to Keep Philadelphia From Sixth Place.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6 (AP).—The Phillies advanced to sixth place in the National League race here today by twice trimming the Braves, whom they displaced, 6—4 and 5—3, to run their winning streak to three straight at the expense of Boston.

The relief pitching of Dutch Ulrich, who permitted three hits and held the visitors scoreless after succeeding Tony Kaufman in the first inning, was the high light of the opening struggle. A five-run rally of Hughie McQuillan in the third settled the contest.

Jack Scott kept Boston in check in the final. He yielded eleven hits, one a home run by Jacques Fournier with Farrell on base in the eighth, but with this exception the blows mainly were wasted.

ATHLETICS WIN TWO; COBB STEALS HOME

SIMMONS SMASHES HOMER

Dykes Also Poles One in First Game and Raps 2 Doubles and Single in Second to Aid 7-6 Victory.

BOSTON, July 6 (AP).—The Athletics were in a hitting mood today and won both ends of the double-header from the Red Sox, 5—1 and 7—6.

In the first game Simmons and Dykes drove in home runs and Cobb had three hits, one a triple, in five times at bat. The Georgian also figured on the scoring end of a brilliant triple steal that won tumultous applause from the stands.

The hitting of Dykes, who got two doubles and a single, and Bishop aided Philadelphia materially in winning the second contest. Boston used three pitchers in a vain attempt to stem the tide.

Decisive Victory Scored by Mrs. Hester in Tennis Tourney

MRS. HESTER SCORES IN STRAIGHT SETS

Beats Mrs. Stenz in Third Round of Glen Head Invitation Tennis Play, 6-4, 6-1.

MRS. FALK ALSO IS VICTOR

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN HEAD, L. I., July 6.—Mrs. Lilian Scharman Hester, who four years ago was numbered among the hardest hitters in women's tennis in this country and was ranked fourth in 1923, made her first notable progress in her comeback campaign today when she defeated Mrs. Bernard F. Stenz, holder of the metropolitan clay court championship and fifteenth in the ranking, in the third round of the invitation tournament at the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club.

Mrs. Stenz, showing the effects of her exhaustive struggle with Miss Mayme MacDonald on Tuesday, was not prepared to offer very serious opposition, but nevertheless, Mrs. Hester's performance in winning by the convincing score of 6—4, 6—1 was a noteworthy one, and an augury of what may be expected of the Brooklyn player.

During the years when Miss Helen Wills was fighting her way up to the top Miss Lilian Scharman stood with Miss Leslie Bancroft (now Mrs. Charles Aaschlimann), Mrs. Benjamin Cole of Boston, Mrs. Molla Mallory, Miss Mary K. Browne, Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup as the most powerful drivers in the game. Almost overnight the Brooklyn player jumped into a position of prominence, and there were some who predicted that once she developed a better service and a volleying attack, for which she is so well fitted with her height and strength, she would give a fine account of herself against the best of them.

Hits the Ball Hard.

After gaining a ranking at No. 4, Miss Scharman did not play extensively in 1924, and then dropped out of tournament competition. Now she is back in the lists again. Against Mrs. Stenz today Mrs. Hester was getting the full strength of the court on her forehand, and the ball traveled so fast that her opponent was unable to do more than get started before it died in the corners.

In the first set Mrs. Hester's range of the lines was faulty at times, and she lost points when she held the advantage in position. Mrs. Stenz, as tired as she was, fought pluckily to hold off these powerful shafts, but it was a losing fight, and her tenacious court covering only served to weaken her further. In the second set she was almost entirely at the mercy of her younger opponent, and Mrs. Hester won with plenty to spare.

A much stiffer test awaits Mrs. Hester tomorrow, for her opponent in the semi-finals will be Miss Eleanor Goss, the third ranking player in the country. Miss Goss, who drew a bye in the first round and won her second round match with Miss Caroma Winn in love sets, advanced by the default of Mrs. De Forest Candee today. It is doubtful whether Mrs. Hester has had enough practice to cope with the Wightman cup player, nor has she the severity of service or ability as a volleyer that has Miss Goss, but nevertheless the match should be one of the most interesting of the tournament.

Mrs. Falk in Semi-Final.

The semi-final brackets in the other half are occupied by Mrs. Helene Pollak Falk and Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor. Mrs. Falk was never called on to press matters in defeating Mrs. John E. Bailey at 6—0, 6—2. Miss Alice Francis, who won by default from Mrs. Edna Hauselt Roeser in the third set on Tuesday, was the victim this afternoon in another drawn-out struggle with Mrs. Taylor. The match went to three sets and when the last point was played it was almost three hours after starting time. The score was 6—2, 6—8, 6—4.

Mrs. Taylor knew a little bit too much for the Jersey girl and her hand was a little the steadier in the protracted rallies when the strain began to tell on them. It was either player's match to the last, although Mrs. Taylor came close to ending the proceedings in the second set.

The summaries:

Singles—Third Round—Miss Eleanor Goss won from Mrs. De Forest Candee by default; Mrs. Lilian Scharman Hester defeated Mrs. Bernard F. Stenz, 6—4, 6—1; Mrs. Helene Pollak Falk defeated Mrs. John E. Bailey, 6—0, 6—2; Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor defeated Miss Alice Francis, 6—2, 6—8, 6—4.

Doubles—First Round—Miss Goss and Mrs. William Langley defeated Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Florence Loew, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3; Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. F. Robinson defeated Adele Cragin and Miss Caroma Winn, 6—2, 7—5; Mrs. William H. Pritchard and Miss Mayme MacDonald defeated Mrs. Donald Crisp and Mrs. E. J. Fox, 6—0, 6—1; Miss Francis and Mrs. Frederick Letson defeated Mrs. George Sloane and Mrs. Howard Brokaw, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. Frederic Schmitz and Mrs. Nesham defeated Mrs. L. M. Burt and Mrs. Frederick Guest, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. Robert Le Roy and Mrs. Taylor defeated Mrs. Vandy Cane Hall and Miss Louise Iselin, 6—2, 6—3.

TILDEN AND HUNTER SAIL FOR AMERICA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 6.—With the departure of William T. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter for America today Britishers are asking themselves "What is the matter with British lawn tennis?"

Of the five championships played at Wimbledon Americans took four and France one. In answering the question "Why can not Britain win?" Albert D. Prebble, who, with I. N. Doust won the doubles covered court championship of Europe, says he thinks it is because "we regard lawn tennis as a sport and not as an obsession. British players place their profession first and lawn tennis second."

Peter Latham, who for many years held the world's professional championship, says, "the trouble with our tennis is that we do not take it seriously enough."

Tilden and Hunter sailed on the Majestic and with them as passengers were Watson M. Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mallory, Mrs. Hunter and James Cushman.

Lummis Leads Old Guards In Seagirt Rifle Tourney

Special to The New York Times.

SEAGIRT, N. J., July 6.—Scoring 307, Captain R. H. Lummis of Roselle Park, N. J., won the Hurd match of the Old Guards tourney on the State rifle ranges here today. The match was fired at 200 yards standing, 300 yards sitting and kneeling, 500 and 600 yards prone, all slow fire, and 200 yards kneeling or sitting, 300 yards prone from standing and 500 yards prone, rapid fire. Lieutenant H. G. Marks of New York was second with a score of 297, and Lieutenant H. L. Boesiger of Somerville, N. J., third with 271.

ALONSO BEATS TWO, DROPS SET TO EACH

Overcomes Van Ryn's Brilliant Tennis in Middle States Tourney, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4.

RALLIES TO SUBDUE OGDEN

Gains Quarter-Finals Against His 2d College Rival of Day, 2-6, 6-0, 6-2—4 Californians Left in Play.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Manuel Alonso, first seeded player in the draw, faced defeat from college players in two matches today, but reached the quarter-finals in the annual Middle States tennis tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Four Californians are among the eight survivors.

In Alonso's third round match, John Van Ryn, Princeton star from East Orange, played beautiful tennis to extend the Spanish Davis cup player to three sets, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4. Then, after Alonso had conquered the Tiger player, Lionel Ogden of Stanford threw a scare into the second national ranking star by taking the first set, 6-2. But Alonso was equal to the task and quickly ran out the other two sets at 6-0, 6-2.

Fritz Mercur, former Lehigh star, was carried to three sets by Norval Craig of Occidental College, 4-6, 8-6, 6-1, before he entered the quarter-finals. Ben Gorchakoff, also of Occidental, intercollegiate finalist and a seeded player, was within a point of defeat, but managed to beat Joe Olhausen, a local player, in a long drawn out struggle, 6-8, 6-3, 9-7. The other Californians, who reached the quarter-finals yesterday, are Cranston, Holman and Ralph McElvenney of Stanford and John Doeg.

Rain fell practically the entire afternoon in a drizzle and the courts were very slippery.

The summaries:

Singles.

Third Round—Joe Olhausen defeated Armand Bruneau, 6—4, 8—6; Manuel Alonso defeated John Van Ryn, 6—2, 6—8, 6—4. Fourth Round—Ben Gorchakoff defeated Olhausen, 6—8, 6—3, 9—7; Fritz Mercur defeated Norval Craig, 4—6, 8—6, 6—1; Alonso defeated Lionel Ogden, 2—6, 6—0, 6—2.

Doubles.

Second Round—Dranga and Barnes defeated Jacobs and Alexander, 6—2, 6—4, 6—3; Holman and Ogden defeated Rowland and Disston, 6—1, 6—2, 6—2; Doeg and Bancroft defeated Prokoch and Sargent, 6—0, 6—2, 6—0; Evans and Thomas defeated Mulheisen and Coam, 8—10, 7—5, 7—5, 6—3; Hofkin and Craft defeated Farles and Fisher, 6—1, 8—6, 6—2.

Third Round—Holman and Ogden defeated Dranga and Barnes, 6—4, 8—6, 6—2.

MOORE IS PUT OUT IN JUNIOR TENNIS

State Champion Bows to Eustis in Bronx Boys' Play, but Allison Beats Eustis.

The final round in all divisions of the Bronx County junior and boys' tennis championship at the New York Tennis Club was reached yesterday, with Eugene H. McCauliff Jr. and John Lorenzen paired against each other in the junior class.

The boys' singles contests resulted in the elimination of the New York State champion, Harry Moore, at the hands of J. M. Eustis, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4. Eustis in turn was defeated in the semi-final round by George Allison, runner-up to Moore for the State title, 6—8, 6—2, 6—4.

The teams of McCauliff and Earl Cantor and Roxor Pearce and Carlisle Norwood survived the semi-finals in the junior doubles. McCauliff and Cantor triumphed over Myers and Moore, 6—1, 6—0, while Norwood and Pearce defeated Grace and Bielaski, 6—2, 3—6, 7—5.

The finals in the boys' singles and the junior doubles will be played today, and the junior singles final, between McCauliff and Lorenzen, will be held Saturday.

The summaries:

Junior Singles.

Third Round—Lorenzen defeated Bielaski, 6—1, 2—6, 6—2.

Semi-Finals—Lorenzen defeated Jerome Flaherty, 7—5, 6—1; McCauliff defeated Bartlett, 6—2, 6—3.

Junior Doubles.

Third Round—McCauliff and Cantor won from Rosenbaum and Brill by default; Myers and Moore won from Allison and Groce by default; Norwood and Pearce defeated Lorenben and Vogts, 6—3, 7—5; Grace and Bielaski defeated Greene and Flaherty, 6—2, 6—4.

Semi-Finals—McCauliff and Cantor defeated Myers and Moore, 6—1, 6—0; Norwood and Pearce defeated Grace and Bielaski, 6—2, 3—6, 7—5.

Boys' Singles.

Third Round—Eustis defeated Moore, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Semi-Finals—Allison defeated Eustis, 6—3, 2—6, 6—1; Pearce defeated Hedard, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4.

THE LYNX DEFEATS VANITIE, RESOLUTE

Two Fastest Schooners Bow to Boston Yacht, Winner on Time Allowance.

60-MILE RUN ENJOYABLE

Brisk Wind Shortens Sailing Time From Rockport to Portland—Vanitie First in Harbor.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., July 6.—Borne on the wings of a ten-knot southwester the Eastern Yacht Club fleet swept into the harbor this afternoon after a sixty-mile sail down the breeze from Rockport, with most of the yachts carrying balloon jibs and spinnakers from start to finish. Altogether it was one of the most enjoyable runs in many years, for the fleet was snugly anchored at Peak's Island long before dark, which gave all hands a chance to go visiting. The yachts will turn back tomorrow for a run in the other direction to the Isles of Shoals.

The winners today were: First division schooners, Lynx; second division, Pielone; Class M sloops, Ondiamo; forty footers, Cockatoo; ten meters, Synthetic; Q class, Sally XIV; rating class, Nokomis.

The feature of the day was the failure of either the Vanitie or the resolute to shake off the Lynx, which is familiarly known as the Boston Black Cat.

Ayer's Second Triumph.

It was the second day that Commodore Ayer has sailed his Adriatic production to victory over two of the fastest schooners on the coast, and he accomplished it not only through the speed of the boat, but by holding straight down the breeze under a spinnaker while the other two boats beat to leeward, with balloon staysails. It was an excellent day to try out the two methods of sailing dead before the wind, and the older one seemed to prove the better.

The Vanitie had the honor of leading the fleet into the harbor and the satisfaction of defeating the Resolute for second place, but both had to bow to the Lynx, which won by a wide margin on her time allowance. The Kaloura sailed with the big schooners but trailed all the way, being beaten by three of the fifties and three of the forties in elapsed time. The Prestige, another new craft, broke down some time before the finish and came in under mainsail only.

The closest race of the day was between the Carolina and Chiora in the Class M sloops. They sailed side by side for miles, but coming up to Cape Elizabeth the Nichols yacht pulled away and was able to save her time allowance to the Harding boat by two seconds, but both were defeated by the Andiamo.

Fleet Sails Forty-two Miles Today.

If the southwester continues tomorrow the fleet will have a fine chance to show its windward qualities, for it is forty miles to the Isles of Shoals, where the yachts will anchor for the night.

ST. GEORGE VICTOR IN CRICKET MATCH

Beats Schenectady C. C. Eleven by 173 to 107 for First Time in Four Years.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 7.—For the first time in four years, the Schenectady Cricket Club suffered defeat at the hands of the St. George Cricket Club of New York City in their game here today, the visiting eleven winning the match by a margin of 66 runs on totals of 173 to 107.

The best individual batting on the visiting side was displayed by W. C. Block, with top score of 41, and Claude Littledale and W. A. Battles, who followed closely with 39 and 37, respectively. Doubles were also contributed by C. Carter, T. Holt and D. W. Williams. For Schenectady, F. Stead, 28, and E. Johnson, 27, were most successful at bat, while Stead also captured 4 wickets for 26 runs. For St. George, F. Mitchell took 5 for 24.

Atrocia's Radical Sail Design May Set New Yacht Fashions

Hoyt's New Six-Meter Sloop, Soon to Be Launched, Will Be Watched With Much Interest in Tryouts and Is Likely Starter in International Race.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

This seems to be the season of eagles, comets, and a considerable number of freak yachts. It won't be long now before the Atrocia, that remarkable six-meter sloop designed by C. Sherman Hoyt, will be launched at the Nevins yard, City Island, and yachtsmen will follow her further activities with great interest. Nothing quite like the Atrocia has been attempted in the six-meter class before and although her sail plan borders decidedly on the freakish, there is no yachtsman who can afford not to take Hoyt's plans seriously as long as the draftsman-skipper does so himself.

The new yacht is decidedly a radical departure as far as her upper works are concerned but Captain Hoyt declares there is nothing very radical about the hull of the Atrocia. In this regard, as well as some others, the Live Yankee, built Down East for Charles A. Welch 2d of the Eastern Yacht Club, takes the season's palm for freaks. But the new boat building at the Nevins yard is sufficiently out of the ordinary to have earned the name Atrocia for herself even before her timbers were laid down.

May Take the Honors.

This is a big season in the six-meter class, with two international races coming along in September. Who knows but what Atrocia, regarded now in a rather humorous vein, because of her "atrocious rig," may vindicate Hoyt's theories (he was the designer of the great Lea, among others) and the new boat sail away with great honors in the class? Her designer admits that she is an experiment but also asserts that nobody ever got anywhere much in racing without trying out a new wrinkle now and then.

Hoyt, who began winning races at an extremely early age and is now considered one of America's leading "boat sailors," not only here but abroad, frankly admits that the Atrocia was designed to beat the other six-meters reaching and running—that is to say, off the wind. The main feature about the new boat is that her mast is to be stepped aft of amidships, a decidedly startling feature of any single-masted vessel.

This, Hoyt believes, will give him a chance to beat the rule, as far as spinnaker and reaching jibs are concerned. The fore-triangle of the new boat, naturally, will give more sail-spread than any of the others will have, and therefore the designer expects that Atrocia will out-foot her competitors easily in a reaching breeze. This seems to be a perfectly sound theory, and Hoyt believes the great question will be whether she can gain enough when reaching or running to hold the others safe when close-hauled.

Atrocia's mast will be of the same height as that of the other sixes, and although stepped well aft, her designer thinks that she will go well to windward. If she does the new boat may be quite a wonder. There is no limit set in the rules as to the size of spinnaker or jibs that may be carried, and Hoyt is banking on this advantage to carry him through, and it may if there is not too much windward work.

Boat Has Revolving Mast.

Atrocia is the joint property of Captain Hoyt and Vice Commodore Harry L. Maxwell, and if she does well in her try-outs she will be a starter in the international six-meter elimination trials, which start late in August, sailed by Hoyt.

Commodore Maxwell's contribution of advice, so far as the new boat is concerned, has been that Captain Hoyt should practice sailing Bob Bavier's ketch, so as to get himself accustomed to having the mast so far aft.

As to the other outstanding freak of the season, Live Yankee, the Eastern yacht, embodies many more unheard of innovations than the Atrocia. The Live Yankee was designed by Francis Herreshoff and is more or less double-ended, said to resemble somewhat a Papuan war-canoe, before they were motorized. She has what is described as a loose-leaf rudder, a double-luffed mainsail and other things that the more conservative yachtsmen are quite scandalized about.

Live Yankee also has a rotating mast and, it is reported, a revolving cockpit, a decided advantage when she starts going astern instead of ahead, as she is said to be apt to do.

Designed as an R Class yacht, Live Yankee turned out to be too big for this division and the yachtsmen of Class Q refused to admit that she belonged with them. So the Welch yacht seems to be in a class by herself.

MISS SPITFIRE V SETS TWO RECORDS

Cuts World's Time for Mile and Six-Mile Tests for 151 Class Hydroplanes on Hudson.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 6 (AP).—Five new world's speed records for power boats were established on the Hudson River here today.

Miss Spitfire V, owned by James H. Rand Jr. and driven by Ralph Snoddy of Los Angeles, made one mile at a rate of 64.28 miles an hour, upsetting the former record of 60.11 miles.

On a six-mile run, three miles up and three miles down stream, Miss Spitfire V, covered the water at a speed of 62.88 miles an hour, another record performance. The craft is in the 151 Class for hydroplanes.

Miss Helen Henschell of Whitestone Landing, N. Y., set two new records for outboard motors, driving the Cute Craft, with a four horsepower motor, she made one mile at a rate of 27.5 miles an hour, and went six times over the course at an average of 25.35. The previous records for one mile was 24.83 and for six miles 24.8.

J. E. Wilkinson, placing an eight horsepower outboard motor on Cute Craft herself, made six one-mile tests at an average rate of 29.87 miles an hour, compared with the former record of 26.4.

All five tests were timed by officials of the American Power Boat Association.

KYNASTON SEEKS TROPHIES.

Will Aim for Permanent Possession in Bergen County Tennis.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 6.—Percy Kynaston of Rockville Centre, L. I., twice the winner, will seek permanent possession of two trophies emblematic of the Bergen County open tennis championship in the tournament scheduled to start on the clay courts of the Oritani Field Club here Saturday.

The entry list, which closes tomorrow night at the local club, has reached fifty and includes S. Onda, Luis Heyden, R. Lewis and Frank Shields. Shields and Onda, semi-finalists in last year's tournament, will probably play their often-postponed 1926 final match on the same day as the 1927 finals. Anton Von Bernuth is the only player besides Kynaston to hold two legs on the two trophies at stake.

St. Jean Beats Ireland, 40-23.

Andrew St. Jean scored another victory yesterday at Dwyer's Broadway Academy where he is meeting all comers at three-cushion billiards, by defeating Arthur Ireland, 40 to 23, in forty-two innings. St. Jean had a high run of 5, and Ireland one of 3.

WHITE-THALHEIMER SCORE AT OTTAWA

Beat Raper-Stoddard, 6-1, 6-4, in Ontario Doubles—Noble Extends Thalheimer.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 6 (AP).—Lewis N. White, No. 6 in the American singles ranking, and Louis Thalheimer, star doubles team of Austin, Texas, advanced toward the finals of the Ontario lawn tennis doubles championship today by eliminating the Montreal combination, Raper and Stoddard, 6—1, 6—4. Playing on a slippery court the Americans firmly established themselves as favorites with the most brilliant tennis of the tournament.

A. D. Noble, Newton, Mass., youngster, gave Thalheimer a battle before being put out in the singles, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2. Thalheimer had to throw everything he had into the play after Noble had taken the first set.

Samuel Hardy of New York, paired with H. F. Wright of Ottawa, stayed in the running with a victory in the men's doubles, while in the mixed doubles D. H. Martin of Newton, Mass., and Miss R. Gallery, Montreal, defeated the Ottawa team, Miss M. Paradis and A. J. Belliveau, 6—1, 2—6, 7—5.

NEW JUNIOR TEAM SLATED FOR TENNIS

Eastern Body Will Give Rising Players a Chance to Go on Annual Tour.

In order to stir up greater interest among the younger players of New York and reward those who have come up the ladder recently, the Junior Committee of the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association will send an entirely new team on the annual up-State tour beginning July 9 at Rochester, it was announced yesterday.

The players who have represented New York on the two first teams and won every match they played are still available but will not be called on to represent this city this year. These players are Frank Shields, recent winner of the metropolitan clay court championship; Julius Seligson, national junior indoor titleholder; Eugene McCauliff, captain of the Fordham University team, and Everett Smith.

The personnel of the new team is now in process of selection and will be chosen from the following players: Earle Cantor, Edmund Bartlett, Paul Boochever Jr., William Farquhar, Edward Tarangioli, W. Alexander, C. Greene, S. Harte, J. Richardson and J. Talbot. A series of test matches will be held and the four players making the best showing will be named to go on the tour.

It was also announced that the metropolitan junior interclub tournament for the Burton Cup will start on Sept. 7.

An amazing improvement in rackets that champions suggested

THIS racket is brand new. It is new in principle. It is new in design. It is the fastest tennis racket ever made. It was built at the suggestion of champions who said that no existing bat was fast enough for the smashing, volleying, all-court game of today.

A group of the world's greatest players sat in judgment on this new racket. 500 experimental bats were submitted for their criticism. Finally, one was produced that won their unanimous approval. They were eager to try it out. With it both men and women stars won many of last year's important tournaments. That bat we named "Top-Flite".

This year it is available to you. Lighter head—yet in perfect balance. Smaller head, which permits tighter stringing. Kro-Bat construction, to give it strength for many restringings. Open throat which gives it a new, delightful flexibility. There is a Top-Flite here that will suit you exactly—and help your game. Come and find it. Price $15.

FOOTBALL ELIGIBLES NAMED AT HARVARD

CROSBY AND TURNER READY

Ineligible Last Fall, They Are Restored to Good Standing—Three Other Stars to Return.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6 (AP).—Indications that Harvard this Fall would have the most powerful football squad in many years were seen in an 'eligibility list' made public today by the Harvard Athletic Association. In the list of 108 men whose scholarship attainments will permit them to continue to play football appeared the names of many veterans of last year and previous seasons.

Four members of last year's team are barred for scholastic deficiencies. In addition to Elliot Putnam, quarterback, and Walter Goodwin, guard; who were ruled out some time ago, Robert W. Meadows of Springfield, an end, and George Crawford of New York, a promising quarterback, have been placed on the ineligible list.

To compensate for the loss of these four men, two stars who were ineligible last year will be able to play this Fall, and several veterans of former years will be back in the game. Joe Crosby, backfield star, and Ralph W. Turner, centre, who were out last Fall, are restored to good standing. Richard H. O'Connell and Samuel C. Burns, ends, who were out of college last year, will return in September. James L. Coombs, who won a reputation as a kick-blocking end four seasons ago, also will return.

Among last year's varsity men who will be back this Fall are Art French and Dave Guarnaccia, backs; Charles A. Pratt and Forrester Clark, tackles, and Martin H. Strong, end. Last year's fine freshman backfield will be eligible for varsity competition. It included William Wetmore, quarterback; Thomas F. Mason, G. Holbrook and T. Hitch.

FOUR CHICAGOANS ADVANCE.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 6 (AP).—The names of four Chicagoans are bracketed in the quarter-finals after today's matches in the Western tennis tournament.

Tuttle Gets a Hole in One.

GREAT BENEFITS IN N. Y. HEALTH WATERS

Saratoga's Famous Springs Regain Popularity

Two famous old health springs at Saratoga are again on the map. These are the Delicious Sparkling Geyser and the equally renowned Hathorn. Geyser is being prescribed more than ever to relieve acidity and its resulting indigestion, gas, sour stomach and headaches.

Hathorn Water, a natural laxative and pleasant eliminant, is having a great run as a "Before Breakfast" health drink. Its action is thorough and gentle. Its taste is delicious; its effect, refreshing and invigorating.

Geyser is taken with the meals to remove acid conditions. Considerable success is being achieved in rheumatic cases by drinking Geyser in liberal quantities between meals. Both waters are highly efficient in health building. Give them a test. They will prove. Order from Charles & Co., Macy's, Gristede Bros., Park & Tilford, Acker, Merrall's, Bobeck's, Daniel Reeves, Busy Bee, Hahn & Wessel, Morris & Schrader and other good dealers. Callow Asks for Release, but Washington Refuses

WASHINGTON VOTES CALLOW MUST STAY

Receives Crew Coach's Resignation, but Will Not Release Him From Contract.

MENTOR SOUGHT BY PENN

Pay There Reported to Be $120,000 for Ten-Year Term—Coach Now Is in Cuba.

By The Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 6.—Efforts will be made to get Russell S. Callow, crew coach of the University of Washington, to reconsider his resignation, received by mail here today, the Board of Control of the Associated Students decided after refusing to release Callow from his contract, which has two years to run.

Callow requested the board to release him Sept. 1, 1927, when he planned to take charge of the University of Pennsylvania oarsmen at one of the biggest salaries paid a crew coach in the United States. The exact amount has not been announced, but reports have placed it between $10,000 and $15,000. Callow was receiving $6,000 here.

"Every effort will be made to get Callow to reconsider his resignation, which we received only this morning and which we feel was offered by Mr. Callow without our having a chance to talk over the situation with him," Ed Allen, Chairman of the Board of Control, announced.

Salary Increase Not Involved.

Allen said the question of increasing Callow's salary was not involved.

"We simply feel that if we impress on him the fact that it is to his best interests, as well as our own, that he stay here, possibly he will reconsider," Allen continued.

A cablegram was sent to Callow, now in Cuba, coaching the Havana Boat Club.

The telegram said:

"The board deeply regrets your request for release from your contract and desires an opportunity to thoroughly reconsider the matter by personal discussion with you.

"We believe you will appreciate the reasonableness of this request and that it is made out of the most sincere regard for you. Our action is based upon the belief that the situation is so important as to justify the fullest consideration."

After the board meeting, Graduate Manager Meisnest expressed doubt that the university salary regulations would permit the board to allow Callow much more than he is receiving now.

The board also got in touch with Al Ulbrickson, assistant coach, who left Seattle to take a Summer job in Mount Rainier National Park, but no action toward his appointment as Callow's possible successor was taken.

The attitude of the Board of Control was unexpected, as it was anticipated that Callow's request to be released from his contract would be granted without question. Last year Callow signed a three-year contract with the University of Washington, although athletic authorities of Eastern institutions tried to entice him away from the West at that time.

He became head crew coach at Washington in 1923, when Coach Ed Leader went to Yale. Callow's varsity crews won the regatta at Poughkeepsie in 1923, 1924 and 1926, and were second in 1925 and 1927.

Others Have Come East.

If Callow is released, and sports followers here see no hope that he will reconsider his resignation, he will be the twelfth exponent of the "Washington system" of oarsmanship who has gone forth to teach the East to row.

Other former Washingtonians now in the East are: Ed Leader, Callow's predecessor at Washington, now head coach at Yale; Mike Murphy, Washington '22, Yale freshman coach; Don Grant, Washington '24, Yale 150-pound coach; Fred Spuhn, Pennsylvania; Max Luft, Pennsylvania freshmen; Bob Butler, Navy; Ky Ebright, California; Russ Nagler, California freshman; Chuck Logg, Princeton, and Sam Shaw and Tom Boles, Havana, Cuba.

Callow, Logg, Luft, Murphy and Grant were former Husky varsity captains, as was Ulbrickson.

Accompanying Callow's resignation was a letter which said:

"It is naturally with a great feeling of regret that I take this step, but I felt it is the best thing for me and mine. Let me assure you that in resigning I am not adopting the policy of business which governs most all men's positions.

"I am leaving at a time when I feel it will least hurt rowing at Washington. The department is in splendid shape, the equipment of the best, the human material not depleted by graduation, and there are numbers of men who can coach as well as I who are eager for the position.

"The men themselves would prefer Al Ulbrickson; he is a splendid coach of the highest type. There are other capable men who would be glad of the opportunity. There are also a number who would be glad of the chance to be assistant coach.

"Permit me to thank you for your helpfulness in times past. I pray for the continued success of our university in all its activities. I hope that the board will grant my request and that we will part the best of friends."

Callow Is Undecided.

HAVANA, July 6 (AP).—Russell S. Callow said tonight he would become rowing coach at the University of Pennsylvania if he could do so without stigma being cast on his loyalty to the University of Washington.

"I really cannot say what I'll do till I am sure of the attitude of the Washington boys," he added.

Pay Probably Is $120,000.

It was reported last Friday that the Penn offer to Callow was $12,000 a year, with a ten-year contract.

CLOSE WESTERN GOLF LIST.

CHICAGO, July 6 (AP).—Lists were closed today for the Western amateur golf championship, which is to be played on the Pacific Coast this year for the second time in the history of the event. With belated scratches, there probably will be 175 starters when the qualifying rounds are played over the Seattle Golf Club course on July 12.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

A Fistic Argument.

I NOTE with mingled feelings that the literate nobility,
The men who wrote their names across the title page of fame,
Have started up an argument (which takes no great ability)
About the "great brutality" which marks the fistic game.
Sir Hall he up and raises Caine and says it's imbecility,
It's criminal and sinful to permit a brutal fight.
Sir Arthur Conan-Sherlock-Doyle comes rushing with agility
And pens a pithy paragraph: "In boxing I delight."
And all the while the Duke of Kearns, who speaks with great facility,
Explains the Caine objections with a loud, derisive shout:
"We got the cash; we won the fight; the rest is mere futility;
He's sore because he didn't get a ticket for the bout."
And I would say to good Sir Hall, with meekness and docility,
If he would view a fight or two he'd say: "Sir Arthur's right."
He'd boo the blooming getting bee and clamor for virility

Literary References.

It isn't always safe to trust the judgment of eminent literary persons in matters of sport. There was the famous case of George Bernard Shaw, for instance, who sent forth word before the Dempsey-Carpentier match that M'sieu Georges, the Orchid Man, would rap Mr. Dempsey on the chin and render him null and void with startling swiftness.

Then there was Oliver Wendell Holmes, who was asked to give the mile record of a fast trotter of his time and was a full second out of the way. Luckily Ralph Waldo Emerson was standing near by and corrected him. Holmes admits as much in his "Collected Works."

And here's Frank Condon, the eminent short-story writer, claiming that California can beat the world at every sort of athletic exercise from abalone baiting to zither plunking.

In support of this latest bit of fiction he mentions Jack Dempsey, Bill Johnston, Charley Borah, Charley Paddock, George Von Elm and Helen Wills.

And Why Not?

The first answer to the modest California argument is the retort given by a bystander to the Irishman who claimed that at the end of a three-mile run he jumped across one of the lakes of Killarney.

"Well, why wouldn't you? Look at the start you had!"

Look at the start that California has. When New Yorkers are struggling through slush or staggering under the weight of coal bills the Californians are out in linen knickers chasing a golf ball from one trap to another.

California's varsity eight was on the water two months before Cornell volunteers broke a lane through the ice on Lake Cayuga to make sure that the boys would get on the water at least once before they headed for Poughkeepsie. But Columbia came down in front.

Getting Personal.

As to Jack Dempsey, Charley Borah, Charley Paddock, Bill Johnston, Helen Wills and George Von Elm, there are several points that may be made with regard to this list.

Bill Johnston, for instance, has seen his best days and furthermore, the pride of California played second fiddle to a lanky gentleman from Philadelphia for six straight years. Does anybody give three cheers for the invigorating climate and the odoriferous ozone of Philadelphia?

Borah and Paddock are great sprinters, but didn't a chap named Chet Bowman win a race somewhere recently in world's record time? Well, he isn't a Californian. He'll never amount to much.

There's no discussion about Miss Helen Wills, but Mr. Condon tosses George Von Elm's name into the plot and forgets to mention that George was a good golfer before he ever saw the Pacific Coast. When Von Elm first broke into select golfing circles he was a resident of Salt Lake City, which has a salubrious climate of its own if any Californian is interested in that fact.

And Jack Dempsey. My word! Hasn't California heard that a New York City chap, raised on the streets of Greenwich Village, brought up on carbon dioxide, dust and germs and trained for a pugilistic career by long hours at an accountant's desk, punched Mr. Dempsey around a Philadelphia ring nearly a year ago? The gent's name was Tunney.

Three Cheers for Georgia.

What about tossing up three cheers and a tiger for the climate of Atlanta, which has turned out such golfers as Robert Tyre Jones Jr. and young Watts Gunn, Walker Cup player and just at the moment the newly crowned intercollegiate champion?

A ball player named T. R. Cobb comes from down Georgia way, too. Shall we lay that to the climate or give just a bit of credit to the individual?

"Deacon" Tiger Flowers is a fair sort of fighter for his size and weight. Another advertisement for long leaf yellow pine atmosphere and Southern cooking.

A Discussion on Climate.

As long as climate has been mentioned it should be noted that the greatest baseball hero of diamond history was raised in a Baltimore orphan asylum. The climate is not much to boast of in Baltimore, nor in orphan asylums in general.

The latest sensation in baseball, Lou Gehrig, is a product of the New York City streets. There's a death blow at climate! This brawny pounder of the horsehide was brought up in the same atmosphere where scientists sweep plates through the air to catch germs and report a poor catch if they get less than 10,000,000 on an eight-inch square of glass.

Mickey Walker is the middleweight champion of the world. He was raised hard by the Jersey marshes. The most nourishing feature of the Jersey climate is that it raises Anopheles mosquitos as big as hawks.

And finally there is the report of Babe Ruth, who spent some time at Hollywood and other California cities last Winter.

"How about their famous climate?" the Babe was asked.

"It was postponed on account of rain," said G. H. Ruth.

JONES SCORES A 153, BUT BARNES HAS 149

Kirkwood, Also Practicing for the British Open, Turns In 152 at St. Andrews.

NABHOLTZ-BARNES BEATEN

They Lose to Jones and Kirkwood Later in Day by 3 and 2 Over New Course.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 6 (AP).—Bobby Jones got in another practice round today in preparation for the defense of his British open golf title, and growing holiday crowds at the St. Andrews course saw the American ace turn up a 76 and a 77 for his day's labor.

Joe Kirkwood, the American trick-shot artist, bested Bobby by a single stroke for the day, having a 77 and a 75, but Long Jim Barnes, another member of the American contingent, came through with a 73 and a 76 as the best of the trio.

Jones hooked up with Kirkwood in a practice match to get his 76, and with it he managed to finish all square. Barnes paired up with A. Tigley Jr. of Frintononos to beat George Duncan and Tom Wilson, 2 and 1. Barnes's 73 was too good in this foursome.

Jones and Kirkwood played together on the new St. Andrews course later in the day to beat Barnes and Larry Nabholtz of Cleveland, 3 and 2. Kirkwood came through with deuces at the short fifth and at the ninth hole. Jones reached the turn in 36, but required 41 homeward. Kirkwood's card showed a 75, Barnes a 78 and Nabholtz an 81.

Both the old and new courses were alive with players today engaged in practice for the qualifying rounds, which begin next Monday.

BEHR GAINS SIXTH ROUND.

Trims Hynson, 6-3, 6-2, in Singles of Quaker Ridge Tennis Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 6.—Allen Behr, Metropolitan veteran, was the only player to advance in the singles division of the Quaker Ridge tennis championship tournament today at the New Rochelle Tennis Club here. Behr, playing in the fifth round, easily defeated R. C. Hynson, 6—3, 6—2. Hynson experienced no little difficulty in gauging Behr's back-hand strokes, and could not cope sufficiently with the veteran's speed.

In the only doubles match played, Herbert Duval and S. G. French advanced to the third round at the expense of J. G. Clarke and George Rand, 6—4, 6—4. Rain prevented the playing of the other matches.

GARTNER GAINS SEMI-FINALS

Three From Metacomet Club Also Advance in Rhode Island Event.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 6 (AP).—Ralph Brooks, Harry Hemworthy and H. B. Rust Jr. of the Metacomet Golf Club and H. M. Gartner of Wannamoisett Country Club advanced to the semi-finals of the Rhode Island amateur golf championship at the Metacomet Golf Club course today.

State Junior Champion, Aided by Dad, Captures Father and Son Golf Title.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., July 6.—Sheppard Homans, Princeton football star in the early '90s, and Eugene Homans, holder of the New Jersey State Junior golf championship for the last four years, were the winners of the State Father and Son tournament held on the Englewood Golf Club course today.

Making a gross score of 80, they tied with Philip and Jack Poinier of Upper Montclair and won the play-off on the first hole when Young Poinier drove out of bounds from the first tee.

The Poiniers got the prize for low net with 71. Their gross score of 80 included a 9 on the second hole. Out in 43, they came back in 37 and had four birdies on their card. Homans and his dad went out in 37 after starting with a 6, but took 43 to come home. A light rain fell continuously during the play.

The summaries:

YALE-HARVARD TEAM HONORED AT LUNCHEON

Paulson's Comment on Oxford Brings Laughter From Cambridge Men in London.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, July 6.—The Yale-Harvard athletic team, which will meet the combined Oxford-Cambridge team at Stamford Bridge on Saturday, was entertained at a luncheon here today by the British Sportsmen's Club.

A number of Cambridge men were present and they greeted with glee the remark by H. C. Paulson, captain of Yale, that what Oxford lacked in plumbing it made up in atmosphere. The American athletes had been training at Oxford and the inference was that they had found it difficult to obtain a bath.

Paulson explained afterward that the remark was only a joke of his; that a bath would be had all right at Oxford, but one had to go a little further for it than in America.

The Americans went through their paces at Stamford Bridge in the afternoon and all seemed to be in top condition.

U. S. SENIORS TRAIL ON BRITISH LINKS

England Has 18 Points, America 14 and Canada 6 in Veterans' Tourney.

SINGLES SET FOR TODAY

Team With Most Points Will Get Earl of Derby Cup—Smith and Strout Score.

SUNNINGDALE, England, July 6 (AP).—The oldsters of British golf led with 18 points to 14 for the United States and 6 for Canada at the end of today's play in a two-day triangular international match among the senior golfing societies of the three countries, each competitor being more than 55 years old.

An unusual method of play was employed in today's matches, the games being by "foursomes." The tournament will end tomorrow with a round of singles and the team with the greatest aggregate of points will capture the challenge cup presented by the Earl of Derby. Each event counts two points in the contest.

Today the United States won two of seven matches from Great Britain, halved one, and won five matches from Canada and halved one.

The results of the British-American matches follow:

J. E. Smith and C. S. Strout of the United States defeated Captain Stanley Lane and Lieut. Col. F. J. Popham, 2 and 1; F. S. Wheeler and F. L. Woodward of the United States defeated Admiral St. John Farquar and Edgar Howe, 5 and 4; H. E. Taylor and Sir Alfred Mays Smith of Great Britain defeated Joshua Crane and G. Snare, 3 and 1; E. B. H. Blackwall and W. E. Farlie of Great Britain defeated C. D. Cooke and Alex Revell, 3 and 2.

J. B. Peise and A. T. Young of Great Britain defeated Jerome Peck and Dr. W. S. Adams, 3 and 6; R. S. De Montmorency and Norman Boase of Great Britain defeated W. E. Cruesdell and R. C. Mitchell, 2 up; Sir Harold Stiles and H. G. Shield of Great Britain halved their match with A. B. Jenks and C. M. Hart of the United States.

MANY IN BRIDGEPORT SHOOT

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 6 (AP).—More than 100 of the leading marksmen of the East are entered in the annual championship tournament of the Connecticut Trapshooting Association, which opens here Friday. Governor John H. Trumbull may take part, being an ardent follower of the sport.

The following clubs have teams and individuals entered in the tournament: Boston A. A., Boston; Springfield Gun Club, Springfield, Mass.; New York A. C.; Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, Rye, N. Y.; Danbury (Conn.) Gun Club; New Haven Gun Club; Seaside Gun Club, Bridgeport; Millbrook Gun Club, Millbrook, N. Y., and the Quaker A. C., Philadelphia.

M'CARTHY IS VICTOR IN CANADIAN GOLF

GARDNER WINS BY 10 AND 9

HAMILTON, Ontario, July 6 (AP).—As the result of victories by three United States players in second-round matches of the Canadian amateur golf championship today, international contests will be provided in three of the four third round matches tomorrow.

The Americans still in the competition are Frank Thompson, Knollwood, Chicago; W. H. Gardner of Buffalo, and Maurice McCarthy of Brooklyn. Thompson, who is a Canadian but now resident in the States met hard opposition by W. Henderson of London, Ontario, but won at the home hole. Gardner qualified to meet "Sandy" Somerville of London, the defending champion, by defeating Dr. E. C. Sutherland of Hamilton, 10 and 9; the easiest victory so far in the competition.

McCarthy was too strong for Jack Cameron of Toronto. He led at noon by three holes, increased his margin to five on the outward nine in the afternoon and ended the contest on the thirteenth, 7 and 6.

Three of the survivors of today's play are former champions, Frank Thompson of Toronto, 1921 and 1924; Dan Carrick, 1925, and Somerville, 1926.

NEWS OF GOLF CLUBS IN METROPOLITAN AREA

Under the heading, "Why Not Go Out and Snare a Few Prizes This Year?" the monthly bulletin of Canoe Brook says that "so long as people are as human as they are in this day and generation, the desire for prizes will continue unabated, and great, strong men, even those whose income tax runs into big figures, will strut home from the golf club proudly displaying a measly little penknife worth nearly 50 cents wholesale which came to them as the third prize in the beaten eight of the fourth sixteen in the annual Spring tournament."

Dicky Martin, the golf expert, says that this just about explains the popularity of golf as well as anything he has seen in a long time. "What does it matter," says he, "if the prize is only worth 50 cents; it is a prize, and is evidence of superiority in competition over some one else, even if only momentary.

"More people are playing the game this season than ever before, and, along with this increase, there also is evident a noticeable increase in club tournaments. Few clubs in this district will permit a week-end to pass now without a tournament of some character with prizes. And the clubs with the most tournaments on their schedules seem to be the most prosperous."

W. H. Carey of Hollow Brook at Peekskill has been kept busy in the last few days receiving congratulations on his entrance into the hole-in-one set. His qualification came at the 135-yard fourth at Hollow Brook in a match for the President's Cup with T. A. Dain.

The Hodkinson and Sircom trophies will be played for tonight on the illuminated putting green at the Westchester Biltmore. These night putting matches are proving one of the Biltmore's most popular mid-week features. Last week a gallery of 500, many attired in evening dress, watched a field of a hundred and fifty putt for prizes until well after midnight.

Long Island and Westchester will hold their annual father and son tournaments today at Wheatley Hills and Gedney Farms, respectively. These events precede the junior championships, which will be played tomorrow and Saturday.

Jarvis Hicks won the Long Island junior title last year and George Brush won the Westchester event for the second time. Brush is no longer eligible, being over the age limit.

The Ridgewood (N. J.) Country Club has just completed negotiations for a new site for its club and links, situated about two miles north of the Arcola Country Club. The new property has been inspected by A. W. Tillinghast, the golf architect, who will lay out the new links, and he says that the nature and contour of the ground offer possibilities of making one of the finest and most interesting courses in the district.

The present plan calls for three nine-hole layouts, so arranged as to provide virtually three distinct full courses, with main starting points on each and a choice of grouping that can be left to the player.

Forsythe Makes Hole in One.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 6.—The first hole-in-one this season on the course of the Nema-Colin Country Club near here was made today when Robert N. Forsythe of the Victoria Country Club, Riverside, Cal., a former W. and J. football star, spanned the distance from tee to green on the 157-yard ninth.

Mrs. Taintor Golf Victor.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 6.—Mrs. H. S. Taintor won the selected twelve-hole golf match for women at the Wee Burn Club today with 70, 11, 59. Mrs. Thomas Crimmins won the selected six-hole match with 44, 11, 33.

Scottish Clans' Games July 23.

The annual games of the United Scottish Clans will be held July 23 at Ulmer Park, according to an announcement made yesterday. Included in the list of events to be contested are 100 and 440 yard handicaps, a two-mile handicap and a one-mile scratch race. There will also be a running high jump and a tug of war between teams representing various Scottish clans.

CLOTHING IN THE NEW YORK MANNER

$3.95

FORMERLY, shirt tails had a most annoying way of playing pranks. After you'd sent the ball soaring over the fairway—shirt tails would creep up in their own sly way—and generally did as they pleased. Snugtex in all our $3.95 plus four linen knickers keeps the shirt snugly in place—dissuades shirt tails from making a public appearance. Linen is very fine, imported from Belgium. Looks cool, feels cool, fears neither rubbing nor laundry. The choice of thousands of New Yorkers each summer!

Other Snugtex linen knickers of Belgian and Irish linen, $4.50 and $7.50. Snugtex wool knickers in smart plaid effects, $6.50 to $12.50

THE STICKING-POINT AT GENEVA.

Though the naval conference at Geneva appears to be deadlocked on the main question before it—that of cruisers—there is confidence, both at Washington and London, that some kind of agreement will finally be reached. The delegates could hardly afford to break off without doing something for reduced naval armaments. In the matter of other auxiliaries, destroyers and submarines, the chief difficulties have already been surmounted. In that item an agreement might easily be reached if the total cruiser tonnage, and its apportionment among England, the United States and Japan, could be fixed. Yet it is obvious that if the latter and bigger question is not resolved, even the approach to an agreement concerning submarines and destroyers might be retraced. All classes of auxiliaries hang together in the belief of the naval experts.

In connection with cruisers the trouble does not lie in the ratio of strength between the chief naval Powers. Great Britain has specifically denied any ambition to be superior in that arm of the service to the United States. It would welcome "parity" for the United States. But the hitch comes over total tonnage allowed. The British Admiralty has laid down what it believes to be the "reasonable requirements" of the English Navy. But these run anywhere from 150,000 to 200,000 tons higher than the American plan had proposed to establish as a maximum. Even if there should be a compromise, and the English cut down their program, there would be a difference between the two navies in cruiser strength of at least 50,000 tons to our disadvantage. This would at once mean a building program for the United States. We should have to add as quickly as may be five 10,000-ton cruisers in order to attain that parity which the British have conceded our right to enjoy. This is all very fine, and it is highly probable that on such terms an agreement might be reached at Geneva, but in that event what becomes of the Coolidge program?

The President has steadily set his face against enlarging our navy. He has urged Congress not to make appropriations for building more cruisers. This advice he has based upon a belief that the conference on naval disarmament would cut the chief navies of the world deeply, and so make it unnecessary for us to expand ours. The American delegates were sent to Geneva for the express purpose of cutting down naval auxiliaries, particularly cruisers. Now if the outcome is to attain parity with Great Britain by ordering a lot more, the Coolidge plan of economizing in the naval budget will clearly have gone glimmering.

This embarrassment plainly confronted the Washington Administration from the very beginning of the negotiations. It would have been easy for our Government to find out in advance what the British desires and demands would be. This it seemingly neglected to do. At any rate, it produced at Geneva a program directly in conflict with the British. Thereupon the charge began to be insinuated that Great Britain was seeking again "supremacy" in naval power. This was promptly dissipated by the almost effusive invitation of the British to us to build as many cruisers as we liked up to their total. That we shall probably have to build several, as the result of our journey to Geneva in order to make sure that we needed to build none, is a fair inference from the state of the parleys as at present reported. In that event, it will be another case of good intentions going wrong because of not having been thoroughly studied.

POLITICS IN NEW JERSEY.

At last the Republican Party of New Jersey has broken away from the Anti-Saloon League. Three Democratic Governors and a Democratic Senator are trophies enough of submission; and the example of New York and the result of the liquor referendums there and in Montana, Nevada, Wisconsin and Illinois last Fall have been taken to heart by the "leaders" in the Jerseys. So the New Jersey Republican Convention passed by 47 to 37 substantially the Root proposal of 1926, with a few softening words tagged on at the end to comfort or cajole the Drys. It is a pleasure to know that Senator EDGE and former Governor STOKES, Mr. HAMILTON KEAN and "JOE" FRELINGHUYSEN — the last no longer hampered by a before-the-war cellar—have been able to get together. "We had a love feast," said Mr. STOKES at the end of the show. Let us hope that the stern and unbending Drys don't feel that they were the victims sacrificed.

For State purposes and to mollify the Wets the Republicans have reversed the position which they have hitherto taken and which, as national Republicans, they will again take. They have steadily been in favor of enforcement of the prohibition laws, State and national. Now they consent to a referendum on the modification of the National Prohibition act. As the Legislature is not in session, there cannot be a referendum before the general election of 1928. It has been suggested that it would be embarrassing to the Republican candidate for President, committed to the ordinary law enforcement resolution, to have the question of modification of the Volstead act placed on the ballot at the Presidential election in New Jersey. Where is the embarrassment? How does the still too platonic hope of modification change the duty to execute the law as it is?

A Republican or a Democrat may yearn for modification or repeal of the Volstead act or for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, as a State Republican or Democrat. As a national Republican or Democrat, he is sure to have his nose up against the grindstone of enforcement and no changes. Modification is one of those "controversies" from which prudent politicians run away. Here are the New Jersey Democrats crying, as usual, for the legalization of light wines and beer, by amendment of the Volstead act and the State Enforcement act. That is all right for 1927 in New Jersey; but does any New Jersey Democrat have even the ghost of a glimmer of expectation that the next Democratic national platform will have the smallest crumb of comfort for him?

Let us unite, brethren, eat our convictions and try to grab the offices! There are two Republican parties. There are two Democratic parties. In 1928 the duets must become solos. This is an unhappy state of things. How long will it last? Meanwhile, the New Jersey Republicans are to be congratulated on their effort to come in out of the dry. They are more than a trifle late; but what is more affecting than an eleventh-hour repentance?

AGAINST A LABOR PARTY.

Mr. HUGH FRAYNE on behalf of the American Federation of Labor informs the radio audience that his organization is firmly resolved not to buy a pig—or a political party—in a poke. Organized labor has learned its lesson. It must put its chief trust in economic methods. It must resort to the ballot only "in so far as results are to be foreseen to a positive certainty." In the absence of definite specifications it is to be assumed that the "lesson" learned by organized labor refers to the La Follette candidacy of three years ago. In endorsing LA FOLLETTE the American Federation of Labor did not endorse the idea of a third party. The door was left open for a return to the traditional bi-partisan, reward-your-friends-and-punish-your-enemies policy. The homecoming process began immediately after the 1924 election and may now be regarded as complete. It may even be conjectured that the late SAMUEL GOMPERS, in rallying to LA FOLLETTE, was far from unwilling that his more radical followers should have their lesson. In 1924 the example of the British Labor Party roused bold hopes among a section of the American labor movement, and Mr. GOMPERS probably thought that LA FOLLETTE furnished an opportunity to get the poison out of the system.

When Mr. FRAYNE argues that the American workingman without a political party stands far above the European worker despite the latter's political activities, he begs quite a number of questions. The superior American standard of living is far from entirely explained by a superior American labor policy. A goodly share of the credit belongs to America herself. But that American organized labor has derived substantial gains from its non-partisanship policies is not to be denied. WILLIAM ENGLISH WALLING in his "American Labor and American Democracy" cites an official Federation statement of March, 1917, to the effect that in just ten years "all except one of the demands contained in the Bill of Grievances of 1906 have become the law of the land." It was the period of the Clayton Amendment and the restrictive immigration law.

The lesson of the La Follette campaign was all the more emphatic because of the outcome of the Congressional elections of the same year. It is Mr. WALLING'S estimate that twice as many votes were cast for "Progressive" Republicans, Democrats and Independents for Congress as were cast for LA FOLLETTE. In 1920 Mr. GOMPERS ruefully admitted that he could count on only fifty "friends" in the House of Representatives. In 1924 there were, by A. F. of L. estimate, no less than 186. "Suppose," said President GREEN at the A. F. of L. convention two years ago, "these men had been candidates upon the independent political party's ticket?" So quickly was the La Follette lesson learned. The American Federation of Labor is far from thinking in terms of sole economic effort. It is in politics, but it has returned, after a very brief flirtation, to its original aim—seeking a majority in Congress.

UNEASY INDIANA.

You can hear a pin drop in Indiana these days, and politicians are walking about on tiptoe. All this is because the former Grand Dragon of the Klan, D. C. STEPHENSON, has been telling his story to Prosecutor REMY of Indianapolis within the walls of the penitentiary at Michigan City. Even Senator WATSON, whose ordinary forensic tones carry from the Capitol to the Chain Bridge, is noiselessly immured in his fastnesses at Rushville.

Ever since STEPHENSON went to jail on a life sentence for murder, he has let it be known that he expected the Indiana politicians, with whom he did business for years, to provide him with a reprieve or pardon. He once remarked that if he ever told his story they would have to build an entirely new political wing of the Michigan City jail. But neither reprieve nor pardon has come, so STEPHENSON has begun his construction work on the jail wing by making a statement not only to the Marion County Prosecutor—a Republican like Senator WATSON and himself—but in the presence of JOHN W. HOLTZMAN and EMSLEY JOHNSON as well. These two, while active politically, have always been identified with the better elements of their respective parties, and it is entirely likely that whatever of political skulduggery STEPHENSON told his visitors will come to light, regardless of the individuals and parties it may affect.

This confession in a penitentiary, with the lurid rumors that accompany it, is rich in dramatic values even before its scope is known. For there is a secret "strong-box" in a mysterious "crypt," and it is full of "damning documents." It will have to be, for STEPHENSON'S unsupported word would not result in taxing the prison facilities. But with evidence to sustain him, the cry of the accused that he is a convict and the murderer of a woman will not suffice to exculpate them.

TRANSIT PROSPECTS.

It seems to be the intention of the Transit Commission to press forward its inquiry in the hope of having a detailed scheme of readjustment ready by early Fall. If it can work out a satisfactory plan, it is plainly to the interest of all concerned that it be formulated as early as possible. This is not alone for the sake of the relief which proper unification should ultimately afford, but for the aid of the voter on election day if he has such a plan before him.

No candidates are running on their subway record this year. But there will be submitted to the electorate in November a proposed constitutional amendment permitting New York City to borrow $300,000,000 outside its existing debt limit for purposes of subway construction. One of the strongest arguments advanced by the opposition, when the proposal was under debate at Albany last Winter, was that Mayor WALKER, who advocated it, was virtually asking the people to sign a blank check in his favor. He had no plan to offer, either for operating the new subways or for relating them to the old lines. That objection would be met if the Transit Commission and the City Administration could agree during the Summer on a practicable plan of readjustment.

It must be said that the project now taking shape holds embarrassments for the city's logicians. The Mayor based his plea for more funds on the ground that the city had no other means of financing the new subways. Now comes Mr. UNTERMYER with the suggestion that the city, while pursuing its building program, shall somehow acquire another two or three hundred million dollars' worth of existing subways. If it is so poor it cannot build new subways, where is it going to find funds to acquire the old? Possibly the commission hopes to be able to persuade the courts that with the economies which it expects to effect under its plan of readjustment most of the old routes could be operated at a profit, even on a five-cent fare. That would make it possible to lift part of the investment out of the limitation imposed by the Constitution. But the Appellate Division is very much from Missouri when it comes to exempting bond issues. It will require a pretty conclusive demonstration that the investment is in fact self-sustaining.

The suggestion has been made that a "declaratory judgment" might expedite the proposed recapture of the B. M. T. lines. It is not yet certain that the commission will have to adopt so arbitrary and disruptive a method of unification. But it can do no harm to have the city's rights legally and precisely determined. Mr. UNTERMYER is anxious to speed the determination in order that the city may be in a position to exercise those rights at the earliest moment. There has been a lot of talk about saving the accrued company preferentials, amounting, in the case of the B. M. T., to some $16,000,000, which, if the present contracts remain in force, must be recouped out of the earnings before the city shares in any profits.

Naturally, the company will strive to protect its interest in that deficit, which is now being steadily reduced. Also, there is another side to the picture. The earlier the city exercises its rights of recapture, the more it has to pay in cash. Under the contract any of the lines may be taken over after ten years at cost plus 15 per cent. That means that the city would have to pay a bonus of ten or fifteen million dollars if it took over the lines at that time. After the first year a sliding-scale arrangement operates to reduce the cost. So that early recapture has its penalties as well as benefits. But if the city finally does decide on this course, it is plainly desirable on broad grounds of public policy that it should effect the readjustment as promptly as may be.

DOCTORS AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

That disagreements have arisen between the medical profession and public health agencies can hardly be said to be a matter of such common knowledge as Mr. HOMER FOLKS seems to think. That they do exist is made obvious by the fact that conferences have been necessary in order to bring the two into agreement and cooperation. The complaint by physicians is that the public health agencies make examinations and offer services gratuitously that belong in the field of private professional practice. It is not charged that this is prompted by selfish motives. It is assumed that it is based on a disinterested conclusion by the medical profession that the expansion of health agencies leads to a system of "State medicine," and that health work is not always conducted on scientific principles. To this the health agencies answer that their preventive work ought not to be put in the same category with treatment.

But whatever the difficulties, a notable effort is announced this morning to bring the doctors and the public health agencies into working cooperation in this State. There is full recognition of the fact that doctors have established the basic principles upon which public health activities are organized; also, that without their interest and advice no progress can be made, and that there must be no disturbance of the intimate relationship between physician and patient. This last is one of the privacies of the individual which society must shield.

The general recommendation of the unanimous report is that the voluntary health agencies of a county invite the County Medical Society to designate members to sit on their boards of directors or executive committees, and that the programs of the health agencies shall be laid before the County Medical Society for information and also for conference. This plan is proposed in order to secure to the health agencies the advice of the medical profession, as they seek to extend to all persons in the State opportunities for medical diagnosis and treatment, and for availing of improvements in preventive medicine at the earliest possible moment. The report carries valuable suggestions concerning details of cooperation in health activities—covering tuberculosis, mental hygiene clinics, prenatal care, welfare of infants of preschool age. If this plan is carried into effect, it will do more for the health of our millions than either group working alone can possibly do.

A RELIEF FROM LEARNING.

When Chief Justice TAFT set out recently for his Summer home in Canada he was asked what reading would be a part of his recreation. After mentioning that he did not care particularly for novels, he said: "I do not mind detective stories, if I can get a good one." And he has read many of them. A mystery story seems to be the only type of fiction with a completely universal appeal. People with a special taste for foolish love stories, tales of the West, historical novels, narratives of adventure or accounts of political intrigue also enjoy a detective story. Thousands of them, the great majority being indifferently written, are sold every year to an insatiable public. But the reader who is careless of style and too lazy ever to do any serious reading is not the only type finding satisfaction in the revelation of the crook's villainy and the detective's astuteness.

Chief Justices, Presidents, heads of huge corporations, bank directors, men of science, professors, and all the great and learned sooner or later confess their liking for tales of crime and mystery. There is a rumor that at one of the older English universities a club exists for the exchange of crook stories. Its membership includes august dignitaries, learned scholars, advanced thinkers. In their hours of ease they read the latest books of crime and its detection. When they come across one which is well written, with some characterization, motivation not too dim and a new twist to the plot they pass it along with a recommendation.

The plot is, of course, the main thing. An intelligent reader is grateful for the minor virtues of good style and characters who seem something more than puppets jumping when the author pulls the strings, but, after all, he can forgive much if the author's invention brings out a new kind of knot to be untied. In the enormous output in the last few years there have not been many to come up even to that standard. A few combining all the good points have had a warm welcome. Harpers have just published one by WILLIAM GILLETTE, the famous actor of Sherlock Holmes, which promises to be a best seller with the learned. It makes no experiment with public psychology in a startling departure from the accepted formula, but does differ from the usual routine sufficiently to be admired by musicians, astronomers and literary critics. In that kind of "new detective story," which the book publishers love to announce as a discovery, there is enough similarity to the old ones to keep habit-bound readers satisfied and enough difference to get even the more captious hot on the trail for a happy evening.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Aliases Among the Great.

The well-known game, "Who she was before she was married," is not half so exciting as the English variant, "Who was he before he was elevated to the peerage?" We all know who Sir JOHN LUBBOCK was, but how many can at once give his later title? This kind of hide and seek among names was amusingly exhibited in the House of Lords the other day.

Lord PARMOOR had made a speech in praise of the Parliament act. Following him Lord BIRKENHEAD expressed his astonishment, because he did not think that "the noble and learned lord" had always had that opinion of the Parliament act. Thereupon Lord PARMOOR interjected, "I always supported it." This heightened the astonishment of Lord BIRKENHEAD, who asked, "Am I possibly confounding the identity of the noble and learned lord with the late Sir ALFRED CRIPPS?"

The "loud laughter" which this provoked was due to the fact that Sir ALFRED CRIPPS, whose attacks upon the Parliament act Lord BIRKENHEAD proceeded to quote, was the name which Lord PARMOOR bore when he first entered public life. A considerable debate between the two lords took place, which was ended by a question from Lord BIRKENHEAD, to which Lord PARMOOR replied, "I will not answer." This gave the orotund BIRKENHEAD a chance for a final flourish: "If I have discharged no other public service to this House since I have been a member, I have done this, at least, that I have persuaded, for a brief moment, the noble and learned lord to silence."

Communists Endorse Business as Usual.

The local Socialist but anti-Communist press is deriving moral lessons not untinged with exhilaration from a recent public utterance by the business department of Die Freiheit, which is the Communist organ in New York City. "Thousands of prosperous Jewish-Americans depend on the Freiheit each day, with complete confidence, to direct them to Real Estate, Investments and Business Opportunities. These people represent the greatest concentrated wealth of Greater New York, with unlimited buying power."

Anti-Communists describe this appeal to the hated bourgeoisie as an example of "bizarre psychology," by which they presumably mean unscrupulous psychology. But it is also possible to interpret the incident as a case of sweet reasonableness on the part of nearly everybody concerned. The "concentrated wealth" of New York City is perfectly willing to avail itself of a profitable advertising medium even if it is one dedicated to the destruction of wealth. And the Freiheit in turn is willing to quote rates to concentrated wealth until such a time as communism is ready to destroy all wealth.

It would be absurd to suppose that one of the inducements offered by the Freiheit is a guarantee of exemption to all its advertisers against the time when the Communist State sets out to confiscate all private possessions.

A Code for Teachers.

A manual of ethics is to be distributed to Boston's 4,000 public school teachers. Every profession has its own code, and it is a good thing for newcomers, or teachers new to Boston, to have it set down in written form.

As a rule, a code is best stated in its simplest form, with the application left to the individual. The Persian boy had to learn "to shoot, to ride and to speak the truth," and that was sufficient for him. Today codes are necessarily more complicated, but when one is so elaborate that it comprises chapter on chapter, like this from Boston, it is of doubtful value.

If a teacher does not know that "it is unprofessional to waste school time, or to occupy it with other than school work, * * * to harbor ungenerous feelings of spite and jealousy against other members of the profession, * * * to indulge in cheap, idle gossip," it seems futile to write on these subjects, set them down in a book, and hope that she will read and obey.

The positive side of this code seems better. So also are explanations of matters which might reasonably be questioned, such as joining any organized group, or criticising methods or persons in the school system.

An interesting item is the statement that parents are not to be treated as parents, but as "clients." Whether this is a suggestion of Big Business in the schools, or only a figurative method of recommending courteous and friendly relations with parents, one can only guess.

Higher Learning and Office-Holding.

The phrase, "scholar in politics," comes into the news again—this time having been used by ex-Secretary DANIELS as the appellation which HENRY CABOT LODGE lost when WOODROW WILSON came into public life and, losing, resented with personal enmity. How many years, or centuries, ago the tag was first applied to a politician is not on record, but probably it was tacked onto the first headman of a Stone Age hut-village, who chiseled word-signs on stone.

Liberality has always characterized elections to this group in American public life. In fact, it is said that his Tennessee constituents greeted the celebrated DAVY CROCKETT as a scholar when, in the heat of a political oration, a line of poetry dropped from his grizzled lips.

In busy America a man does not have to be a Leibnitz to be considered a scholar. In France and England the title is less quickly bestowed. Lord GAST of Fallodon writes ancient Greek for pastime, and Viscount HALDANE knows all there is to know about German metaphysics, but neither is called "the scholar in politics." An Englishman must belong to the Huxley or Darwin rank before the Commons, if he was elected thereto, would hail him as a scholar.

And in Germany, land of EINSTEIN and HAECKEL and HEGEL and SCHLIEMANN and KANT, it is terrifying to conjure up the learning that would have to dwell within him who earned the name so lightly given in America.

LIBERTY'S TORCH A POLE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When France presented to the United States the Bartholdi statue it was christened "Liberty Enlightening the World." A symbolic torch is upheld in the right hand of the goddess, and there have been times when this torch was lighted.

When Charles Lindbergh made his triumphal entry into New York the torch was not lighted, but a national flag was attached to the upraised arm. This seemed iconoclastic and in poor taste, but perhaps it could be forgiven, as the reception was in the hands of laymen.

Looking from my office window on the morning of July 4, a national holiday, there is Liberty Enlightening the World with the modest Stars and Stripes, and Bartholdi's torch is serving as something to tie the flag to. I fancy that George Washington would have shown more consideration for other liberty-loving people. JAMES DRUMMOND.

The Case of Stickanski.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Episodes are not rare in our courts to show how often decisions are based not on fact or intelligence but on the whim of the law or of a Judge. It would be hard to equal, however, the case of one Stickanski, as reported in THE TIMES.

Stickanski was robbed. He wanted a policeman. He could not find one promptly, so he asked a passer-by how he could get one. He was advised to pull a hook in a corner box. He had, unfortunately, called the Fire Department. Like any obviously innocent blunderer, he waited patiently for the "cop." Came the firemen. Stickanski was arrested and haled before a magistrate. Said the Court: "Five dollars fine or two days in the workhouse." Said Stickanski: "I was robbed and have no money. Can I be trusted for a week for the $5?" Said the Court: "Two days."

And thus, once more, the law is proved to be an ass and New Yorkers are entitled anew to feel proud of their brainy officials. Stickanski probably will not be made a criminal or turned against the law with bitterness, but if he should be it hardly will be he who is primarily to blame.

Owns No R. C. A. Stock.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A TIMES article, entitled "Broadcasting Celebrates Its Eleventh Anniversary," states that "during proceedings before the Federal Trade Commission in 1925 Arthur E. Nicholson, then the Assistant Secretary and Assistant Treasurer of the United Fruit Company, testified that the United Fruit Company and the General Electric Company each owned 49 per cent. of the stock of the R. C. A." Mr. Nicholson's testimony referred to the Wireless Specialty Apparatus Company, a small company manufacturing radio sets in which at that time the United Fruit Company and the General Electric Company did each own approximately 49 per cent. of the stock. At no time has the United Fruit Company owned over 3.87 per cent. of the Radio Corporation stock. At present it owns no stock in that corporation. WILLIAM K. JACKSON.

MONA LISA.

Three years elusive Mona Lisa came
To Leonardo in his studio;
And the boy Giovanni watched the portrait grow
And sensed a something which he could not name,
Phantasmal, full of mystery. "Here is the same
Calm smile," whispered Giovanni, "that I know
To be the master's—and what strange winds blow
From the mystic world to fan these souls to flame."

But Mona Lisa was a stainless wife,
And Leonardo would not overpass
The light-filled magic circle that divides
All contemplation from the grosser life.
Yet in this alien smile, as in a glass
Reflected, the guarded secret still abides.

RUTH MARY FIX.

CHANGE IN SACCO'S PRISON.

Vanzetti's Fears of their Transfer to Charlestown Are Recalled.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the fact that Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, the Italian radicals now under sentence of death in Massachusetts, were recently granted a respite extending their lives until at least Aug. 10, it seems to me the very refinement of cruelty that they should have been hurried last week in the dead of night from Dedham Jail to the Charlestown State Prison.

The Massachusetts State regulations, it seems, require that a man sentenced to death be taken to the prison in which the sentence is to be carried out at least ten days before the execution. Why should the regulations in this case have been interpreted to mean that Sacco and Vanzetti must be taken to the death house jail nearly six weeks before the earliest possible date of their execution, at a time when Governor Fuller and his committee of three were working on the trial records and when literally millions of men and women throughout the world are convinced of their innocence?

One needs to visit the Dedham and Charlestown prisons, as I did last Summer, to realize the full significance of what has happened. Dedham is a beautiful Boston suburb, and its jail is as decent as any jail can be. In Dedham, as Bartolomeo Vanzetti writes to me under date of June 25, the prisoners "have at least some air, light, a slice of land and sky to contemplate, a daily hour of sunshine and free air in the yard, and also some weekly visits." But Charlestown is an entirely different proposition. Vanzetti declares:

"The death house is a bad place in all seasons, but windowless, airless, lightless as it is, it is a terrible place in hot weather. One Summer, I remember, a doomed man waiting for the end was kept there, and we heard that some guards fainted on account of the heat and suffocation of the place. If we are carried to Charlestown prison on July 1 we will agonize at once because of the heat and want of air. Then, if a reprieve should be granted, we would be removed to Cherry Hill wing, where we would be kept in solitary confinement until the Governor would have decided our fate."

What Vanzetti feared has actually taken place. He and Sacco have been removed in midsummer from the comparative comfort of Dedham to the hideous discomfort of Charlestown. No wonder that he harbors "doubts and suspicions," and exclaims: "My atrocious experiences, the way I was cheated by Massachusetts State, my philosophy itself authorize and justify my pessimism and the blackest hypothesis."

"Yet," he concludes, "I am confident, my heart is steady, and I will hope—in spite of all."

WANTS PARADES ALLOWED.

Critic of Ban on Klan Says Rioters Should Be Arrested.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The excuse given by Police Commissioner Warren for refusal of a parade permit to the Klan for the Fourth of July is a mere subterfuge. If he has reason to suppose that the Roman Catholics would use violence against that organization, then it is his duty to see that proper measures be taken to obviate such disorders, and, if any attempt be made to start a riot, to assure the arrest and appropriate punishment of the guilty parties.

It is high time that the perpetrators instead of the victims of violence were arrested by the police and punished and citizens' rights in this country vindicated.

Does any one imagine that the Commissioner would refuse a permit to the Knights of Columbus if he were to receive intimations that the Klan would make trouble over their parade, or that there would be rioting by the Orangemen, who are shamefully forbidden to parade on the day of their celebration?

C. M. F. MINOT.

New York, July 2, 1927.

Thanks to Radio Announcers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How would it be possible to express one's thanks to the men at the microphones in Washington on the day of Colonel Lindbergh's arrival?

Looking out over San Diego Bay to the Pacific and recalling the aviators and ships of our navy that had so recently sailed out of that harbor down to Panama and west to China, it was wonderful to hear of one aviator and one of our ships returning from so great a quest.

We did not travel to Washington. We were there with the first words that told us that the Memphis had not yet docked. The thrill of the event came undevistingly and through the whole ceremony we saw as well as heard.

As the story was passed from one to another it was told in so genuine, so friendly, so earnest and so artistic a way that it drew tears and involuntary applause from listeners-in more than 3,000 miles away.

I have seen no mention of recognition of this part of the greeting to Colonel Lindbergh. Cannot some one be found who, in an equally genuine and artistic manner, will express to those who rendered this service our indebtedness and our gratitude? It should be very well done.

AMY HOPE BOVILLE.

San Diego, Cal., June 28, 1927.

Women Favor Owen D. Young.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

From the standpoint of the independent woman voter I am much interested in your editorial in regard to the nomination in 1928 of Owen D. Young for the Presidency.

For several years I have been associated with women who represent the large national women's organizations of the country, and, through this contact, I feel that I am in a position to know the type of man that would make a strong appeal to the independent voters that are included in these large groups of women.

I have also talked with many women in the past year, both Democrats and Republicans, and on no occasion have I found a woman who did not say she would vote for Mr. Young for President if he received the nomination.

The women of the two parties are far more independent in voting than are the men of the parties, so should the Democrats nominate Mr. Young, in my opinion, they would make a very strong appeal to those women who are not strongly bound to party ties, as well as many good Republicans.

COLUMBIA REPORTS RECORD ENROLMENT

Summer Session Will Open Next Monday and Continue Until Aug. 19.

STATE CLUBS A FEATURE

Will Provide Meeting Places for Visiting Students — 10,000 Are Expected at Teachers College.

State clubs, where residents of all the States may meet fellow students, will again be a feature of the Summer session of Columbia University. These clubs were organized in 1910, and provide entertainment and assistance to strangers in the city who are registered for the Summer. A small grove between University Hall and Teachers College contains a tree for each State, special meetings being held by the various State clubs under the trees bearing the different State shields.

Between 13,000 and 14,000 students, many of whom are from other sections of the United States and some from foreign countries, are expected to take courses in the Summer session, which will begin next Monday morning and extend through Friday, Aug. 19. Yesterday was the first day of registration, and there was a record enrolment, according to John J. Coss, director of the Summer session.

Graduate courses in law will be one feature of the session. Professor Morris R. Cohen of the Department of Philosophy of the College of the City of New York will give a course in legal philosophy. Professor Herman U. Kantorowicz of the University of Freiburg, Germany, will give a course in the Theory of Judicial Decisions, including the "Free Law" movement in Germany.

Professor Robert H. Lowie of the Department of Anthropology, University of California, will give a course on "Government and Institutions." There will be several courses in history, and a series of public lectures will be given on Tuesday afternoons at 4:30 o'clock in the McMillin Academic Theatre.

Walter Henry Hall, Professor of Church and Choral Music in Columbia University, will conduct the course in choral music. Mrs. Amee L. Ryskell, teacher of music, and Miss Helena Egyptiadi, graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Naples, Italy, will give the course in vocal training.

Special lectures on China will be directed by Frederick K. Morris and Walter H. Mallory in the McMillin Academic Theatre.

Approximately 10,000 of the enrolment of the Summer Session will be in Teachers College, according to Rollo G. Reynolds, provost of the college. This represents one-seventieth of all the educators in the United States.

Among prominent professors and professional men from other countries who will give Summer school courses are Peter Debye, Professor of Physics at the Technische Hochschule, Zurich; Dean S. Fansler, Professor of English at Acadia College, Nova Scotia, and Fortunat Strowski, professor at the University of Paris. Almost every State is represented on the Faculty.

ITALY TO GET QUOTA BUREAU

The examination of Italian quota emigrants to the United States before embarkation will begin about Aug. 15, it was learned yesterday, with the sailing of C. Du Bois of the Foreign Visa Bureau of the State Department on the Duilio of the Itala-America Line for Naples.

Mr. Du Bois will go to Rome to organize a bureau. He will be joined later by an inspector from the Immigration Service and a physician from the United States Public Health Service. The examination of emigrants to the United States before embarkation has been in effect in England, Scotland, Ireland, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and France, and Premier Mussolini made representations to Washington through the United States Embassy in Rome to have the same method adopted for Italian emigrants.

The number of Italians to be permitted to enter this country in the current year is 3,845.

EXHORTS CITIZENS TO VOTE.

Easley Tells of the Importance of Coming City Elections.

A "practical and intensive method for inducing citizens to register and vote in the forthcoming primary and election," sponsored by the New York City Committee on Active Citizenship of the National Civic Federation, was explained by Ralph M. Easley, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Federation, at a luncheon of the New York Kiwanis Club at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday.

Mr. Easley pointed out that the voters of New York will elect Municipal Court Judges, the sixty-five Aldermen and sixty-two State Assemblymen and will vote on nine proposed amendments to the State Constitution on Nov. 8.

He said that 1,000,000 eligible voters in the greater city had failed to go to the polls in 1926 and urged that steps be taken "to redeem ourselves in 1927 and 1928."

PINE SCHOLARSHIP BIGGER.

Yale Gift of Civil War Veteran Now Available to All Connecticut.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 6.—By the addition of a bequest of $150,000 given to Yale University by the estate of General Charles S. Pine, formerly of Ansonia, Conn., the Charles H. Pine Scholarship fund has now reached the $215,000 mark and will henceforth be available to Yale students from any part of Connecticut.

General Pine, a veteran of the Civil War, who died in March, 1918, made his first gift of $50,000 to Yale, in 1913 with the understanding that it should be used for Yale students from his home town of Ansonia, but it was mentioned that if the fund ever reached $200,000 all Connecticut students were to be benefited.

General Pine was speaker of the House of Representatives of Connecticut in 1883 and was appointed to the Governor's staff in 1885. At the time of his death in 1915 his estate was left to a beneficiary who recently died.

DIPLOMATS TO SEE MISS HOUGHTON WED

IN ST. MARGARET'S, LONDON

LONDON, July 6.—Miss Matilda Houghton, second daughter of the Ambassador, will be married tomorrow afternoon in St. Margaret's, Westminster, to Chandler Parsons Anderson Jr. of New York, only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Anderson of Washington, D. C. Tonight Miss Houghton, Mr. Anderson and their score of ushers and bridesmaids of tomorrow's ceremony were guests at a dance in honor of Ambassador Houghton and Mrs. Houghton, given by Mme. Masaryk, wife of the Czechoslovakian Minister. Prior to the dance Miss Houghton gave her bridesmaids a dinner at the embassy, 14 Prince's Gate.

Miss Houghton's wedding will be attended by 500 guests, including the entire Baldwin Ministry, diplomats from many countries, their wives and many friends of the Houghton family in the United States. Canon Carnegie of Westminster, assisted by Bishop Brent of Western New York, will perform the ceremony. After the ceremony, which will be at 2:30 o'clock, there will be a reception at the embassy. Immediately after the reception the bride and groom will leave for a motor tour of England and Scotland. They will sail in August for New York, where Mr. Anderson is with Blair & Co., bankers.

Miss Houghton is 23 years old and a graduate of the Foxcroft School, Virginia. She has been with her father at embassies in Berlin and London. Her fiancé is 27, a graduate of Pomfret School, Connecticut, and Harvard, class of 1921. After a short time in business he entered governmental service at the Arms Limitation Conference in Washington and then became Mr. Houghton's private secretary in Berlin and here. A feature of the wedding party will be nine ushers, fellow classmates of Anderson at Harvard.

LONDON, July 6.—Veronica Cunard, great-granddaughter of Samuel Cunard, founder of the Cunard Steamship Company, was married today at a brilliant ceremony in St. Paul's, Knights Bridge, to Claud Hankey Tracy.

Harvard Dean Weds Student.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6 (AP).—James Haughton Woods, Dean of the Department of Philosophy at Harvard, was married secretly last night to Miss Elizabeth Maclaren Robinson, Harvard graduate school student, it became known tonight. The ceremony took place in St. Bartholomew's Church, this city, with a dozen friends and relatives in attendance. Professor Woods announced last week that he and Miss Robinson would be married tomorrow. According to friends he was upset by the publicity given to his announcement and hastened the ceremony. Professor and Mrs. Woods were said to have sailed for Europe from New York today.

JOHN DREW SINKING.

Veteran Actor's Death Is Expected Within Forty-eight Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 6.—John Drew's long fight against the consuming fever that has imprisoned his body in a hospital for more than forty days appeared tonight to be within forty-eight hours of a losing termination. The mind of the veteran actor was unclouded today in his waking hours, but his physical vitality had waned until it no longer responded to the mental spurring that so frequently has brought results amazing to his physicians.

"Forty-eight hours quite probably will see the arrival of the end for Mr. Drew," Dr. Lawrence Hoffman said tonight. "In fact, the end may come at any interval within that period. That he can survive longer appears practically impossible, but so amazing have been his former recoveries from a condition almost as serious it is possible that he may."

Dr. Hoffman explained that the toll taken by the progress of the septic poisons has become cumulatively so great that the patient's powers of resistance virtually are exhausted. Mr. Drew continues to take light nourishment and never since he was taken to the hospital on May 31 has his conversation been such as to even hint that he was not confident of recovery. His physician characterized him as the "most amiable, cheerful and gracious patient I ever knew."

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD ANNIVERSARY SERVICE

Fiftieth General Council Meets in Edinburgh, Where the First One Did—American Preaches.

EDINBURGH, July 6.—The fiftieth anniversary of the first general council of the General Presbyterian Alliance was celebrated here today when a special service was held at which the Rev. Dr. Harris E. Kirk of Baltimore, the Rev. Dr. Charles Merle Daubigne of Paris, President of the alliance, and other leading divines of the Scottish, English and American Presbyterian Churches took part in the service, which was held in the ancient St. Giles Cathedral, where the first Pan-Presbyterian Council met.

The ecclesiastical dignitaries wearing their ministerial robes marched from New College to the cathedral, the picturesque procession being witnessed by crowds along the route. The Lord Provost and the magistrates of the city attended the service in their official robes.

The President of the alliance said that no place could have been more suitable for such a gathering. Scotland, of all countries, gave the best object lesson of the winning of a nation for the Presbyterians, not so much by its size as by its international quality. The distinction of that first meeting made it memorable, he said, adding that men were there from sixteen Continental churches, from nine in the United Kingdom and from eight in the United States, as well as from Canada, Africa, Australia, New Zealand and many mission fields.

Only three, as far as he knew, who were on the roll of that first council survived to this hour. There had been hope almost to the last that the venerable Francis Patton, former President of Princeton and the oldest living Moderator of the American Assembly, would be able to cross the Atlantic to speak to them, but age and infirmity had to their sorrow prevented him from coming.

"Greatly daring, I take courage from Paul's example and raise the question that is in many minds whether the reformed church has any future if the tendency to put the creature in place of the Creator or, to put it otherwise, to found salvation upon a diminished idea of God and an exaggerated importance of man's triumphs.

"Whenever in the course of human events thought movements arise which tend to dilute the conception of the Deity and to over-emphasize the importance of man, then there is need for the protest which lies at the root of the reformed faith and is the positive principle which animates our religious convictions. The present-day form of idolatry is worse than that of the sixteenth century, which justified the reform position, since it is not a matter within the church only, but is opposition not only to the church but to the very idea of God itself.

DEFERS ADAPTATION OF OLD JEWISH LAW

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 6.—After a two-hour discussion in a closed session this afternoon the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Rabbinical Assembly of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America delayed until tomorrow final decision on what course the proposed assembly committee should take in preparing a proposed code to adapt the old Jewish law to modern conditions in America.

While the majority of the rabbis attending the convention, which represents conservative Judaism, are in accord that an interpretation of Judaism in a modern light is essential, there is a difference of opinion as to what action the rabbinical assembly should take. Those who favor a modern interpretation of Jewish law are seeking a supporting vote of the assembly to instruct the proposed committee as to what course it should pursue in its study. Some oppose the assembly's recording itself at all, holding that a formal interpretation is unnecessary. Others fear that a breach over theological and philosophical views will result.

Today's session of the assembly was devoted to a discussion of problems of American Jewry and conditions in Palestine. Election of officers takes place tomorrow. A lively contest is forecast in the selection of an executive committee. It has been charged that 25 per cent. of the members of the present committee are graduates of the class of 1922 of the Jewish Theological Seminary. A movement to obtain a more representative committee of the various classes is headed by Rabbi Israel Goldstein of the Congregation Bnai Jeshurun of New York.

HEALTH TRIP AN ELOPEMENT

Wedding of Piano Teacher in Iowa Complete Surprise to Parents.

Special to The New York Times.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, July 6.—After failing to have the marriage ceremony performed secretly, Christopher Evangel, 30 years old, of New York, and Sara Franck, 28, of Brooklyn were married openly here today and left for San Francisco on a honeymoon. The couple, who refused their New York addresses in applying for a marriage license, seemed to have plenty of money.

They arrived in Council Bluffs this morning and Evangel spent half the morning in the public library studying Iowa marriage laws. He found one which permitted a marriage without witnesses, but when he applied for his license he found the law had been changed. After a long conference with his bride they obtained the license and were married in the presence of witnesses.

The parents of Sara Franck, when reached last night at their home, 44 Vernon Avenue, Brooklyn, professed to be completely surprised at word of the wedding. Both Charles Franck, the young woman's father, and Mrs. Franck said they did not know Christopher Evangel. Mrs. Franck declared that her daughter, who gave piano lessons, had left alone last Saturday supposedly for Colorado. She was making the trip for her health, the mother declared, and had sufficient money for the trip.

SCHURMAN IN RAIL CRASH.

RIGA, Latvia, July 6 (AP).—Jacob G. Schurman, American Ambassador to Germany, was slightly jolted when a sleeping car of the Berlin-Riga express left the rails last night at the Lithuanian frontier station of Jasiskiai, it was learned today upon the arrival here of the Ambassador.

None of the passengers on the train was injured. They were transferred to other cars and the train proceeded eventually, two hours late.

HERBERT MYRICK, 66, PUBLISHER, IS DEAD

Backed Agricultural Periodicals and Founded Farmers' Political League in 1901.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 6 (AP).—According to a cablegram received here Herbert Myrick, 66 years old, President of the Phelps Publishing Company of this city and publisher of The New England Homestead, died today in Bad Nauheim, Germany. The cablegram was sent to Mr. Myrick's secretary.

Having been in poor health for some time Mr. Myrick went to Europe to undergo treatment at the German bath resort. He was accompanied by his wife and two daughters, Christine and Helen. Mr. Myrick is also survived by a son, Donald, Vice President of the First National Bank of Santa Barbara, Cal.

Herbert Myrick was born at Arlington, Mass., Aug. 20, 1860, and was educated at the Massachusetts Agricultural College and Boston University. He had been President of the American Education Press and publisher of many periodicals whose primary circulation was among the farmers and their wives. Among these were The Dakota Farmer, Orange Judd Farmer, Farm and Home and The American Agriculturist. He also had been publisher of Good Housekeeping from 1900 to 1911 and founded the Good Housekeeping Institute.

He advocated that the farmer take an active part in politics for the solution of his own problems and founded in 1901 the Farmers' Political League, the beginning of the Agricultural bloc which in later years was to become a source of difficulty for politicians. Among the forward looking plans which he supported and fought for in his publications were a system of cooperative dairying, tariff on farm products, Federal system of agricultural experiment stations, rural free delivery, cooperative buying and selling by farmers, the Federal Farm Loan act, and other ideas intended to improve the conditions of the farmer and to enlarge his educational opportunities.

He had also written books on agricultural topics, particularly those applying economic theories to the problems to be solved by agriculture.

EDWARD W. DAVIS DEAD.

Edward W. Davis, who retired eight years ago as senior member of the firm of E. W. Davis & Co., wholesale provision merchants at the foot of West Thirty-ninth Street, died on Tuesday night at his home, 1,088 Park Avenue. He was 71 years old.

Mr. Davis was born in Cambridge, Mass., and when a young man entered the provision business under his father, the late Edward W. Davis Sr. The firm was then known as Davis & Atwood and was located on the same site occupied by the present firm. Soon after the formation of E. W. Davis & Co. Mr. Davis became President and had remained in active charge until his retirement.

He was a member of the New York Produce Exchange and for more than forty years had been Chairman of the Ushers' Committee of the Brick Presbyterian Church, of which he was also an Elder.

He left two sister, Mrs. C. Alfred Capen and Miss Lillian A. Davis, both of this city. Funeral services will be held in the chapel of the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, tomorrow morning. Burial will be at the Mount Auburn Cemetery in Cambridge, Mass.

Dies at Grand Central Terminal.

Barret V. A. Lyon, 75 years old, a retired business man of New Rochelle, collapsed early yesterday evening at the Grand Central Terminal. He died of heart disease before he could be taken to the emergency room in the terminal. Mr. Lyon lived at 436 Main Street.

CALLS PARKING FIRE HAZARD

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 6.—Director of Public Safety Cuthbert said today that as a result of the difficulties experienced by firemen yesterday, when fire swept part of the block between Arkansas and Missouri Avenues, facing the Boardwalk, drastic parking regulations would be formulated for cross-town streets between the Boardwalk and Pacific Avenue. Fire Chief Barnett, after a conference with insurance adjusters, said the loss would not exceed $300,000.

Firemen were greatly hampered in reaching the scene by hundreds of automobiles parked in the streets. Mr. Cuthbert suggested that the city maintain open air parking spaces near the Boardwalk.

"If this fire had come on the Fourth of July, when thousands of cars were parked on all cross-town streets," Mr. Cuthbert said, "I fear we would have had a great conflagration." He added that in rebuilding the burned area the city would insist on fireproof buildings of brick or concrete.

An investigation is under way to determine the cause of the fire.

CONFIRM FRENCH ARMY CUT.

Deputies Approve Reduction of Active Service to One Year.

PARIS, July 6.—By unanimous vote the Chamber of Deputies today confirmed its decision of some weeks ago to reduce the term of military service in France to twelve months.

The article of the Military Reorganization bill which stipulates this reduction, is, of course, only a part of the whole fabric, and today's decision will not be definite until the whole reorganized scheme has been adopted. There is, however, every likelihood that the bill as at present framed will be finally passed before the end of the session and will in the Fall receive the approval of the Senate.

Frenchmen will, under the new law, be liable for military service for twenty-eight years, divided as follows: Active service, one year; available for service, three years; first reserve, sixteen years; second reserve, eight years.

HEAT KILLS 3 IN CHICAGO.

Mercury Hits 90 at 4 P. M.—Will Be Warmer Today.

CHICAGO, July 6 (AP).—Three deaths were attributed tonight to a new heat wave which struck Chicago today and sent the mercury up to the 90 mark at 4 P. M.

Tomorrow will be warm and fair and the temperature may be higher than today, the Weather Bureau indicated.

HAROLD RANDOLPH, NOTED IN MUSIC, DIES

WIDELY KNOWN AS ORGANIST

He Came of Distinguished Virginia Family and Was a Figure in Society—Born in 1862.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 6.—Harold Randolph, director since 1898 of the Peabody Conservatory of Music here, died suddenly of heart disease today at his cottage at Northeast Harbor, Maine. He was regarded as a leading example of the product of American training in music.

Besides his widow, who was Miss Emma Gary, a daughter of the late General James A. Gary, onetime Postmaster General, Mr. Randolph leaves one sister, Mrs. Thomas H. Symington.

He was born in 1862 in Richmond, Va., the son of Innes Randolph, for many years chief editorial writer on The Baltimore American. Mr. Randolph obtained his education in music at the institution of which he was the head. He was known widely both as an organist and as a pianist before he became the director of the Peabody Conservatory. He succeeded Oscar Hamerik as director of Peabody.

When Mr. Randolph became head of the Peabody Conservatory of Music in 1898 he was serving as Professor of Piano in the conservatory. He was a member of a distinguished Virginia family and well known in society circles of Baltimore and Newport. The year before his appointment as director of the conservatory he had played a season with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

From 1885 to 1890 he had been organist at the Roman Catholic Cathedral in Baltimore, and from 1890 to 1906 was organist and choir master of Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church, and he had also served for Oheb Hashalom Synagogue.

A solemn high requiem mass was sung at the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Sixteenth Street near Sixth Avenue, yesterday at the funeral services for Dr. Antonio Stella, who died Saturday night at the Post Graduate Hospital following an illness of three days. The Rev. Father Francis P. Grassi of the Church of St. Anthony was celebrant.

More than 1,000 persons, including Commander Emilio Axerio, Italian Consul General; Romolo Angelone, Commercial Attaché of the Italian Embassy, representing the Italian Ambassador, and a delegation of 500 from the Societa Muro Lucano attended the services.

Assisting the celebration of mass were the Rev. Father Peter M. Telese, as deacon, and the Rev. Father John Martinez, as sub-deacon. Mgr. Joseph Silipigni of the Church of Our Lady of Loretto, the Rev. Father Caffuzzi of the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel and the Rev. Father Zolin attended the services in the sanctuary.

The honorary bearers were Commander Axerio, Justice S. A. Cotillo, Luigi Barzini, Dr. John H. Finley, Justice Francis X. Mancuso, Dr. Nicholas M. De Sanctis, Nathaniel Phillips, Harold Fields, Dr. Carlo Savini, Dr. Alberto Bonaschi, F. M. Ferrari, Mario De Biasi, Count Thaon De Revel, Dr. A. H. Giannini, Thomas Chamberlain, Frank H. Cooper, Pasquale Sominelli, Marziale Sisca, Angelo Sola, Dr. G. Ippolito, Dr. M. Caturani, Dr. G. Tomasulo, Dr. G. Atonna, John H. Freschi, Dr. Filippo Cassola and William Dean Embree.

Burial was in the Stella mausoleum in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Hamilton Pearsall.

Funeral services will be held tonight for Hamilton Pearsall, a Civil War veteran, at his late home, 150-12 Hillside Avenue, Jamaica. Interment will be tomorrow morning at Springfield Cemetery, Queens. Mr. Pearsall, who was born in Astoria in 1842, died Tuesday after a short illness. He was a leader of the Republican Party in the old Village of Jamaica of many years. Later he was Overseer of the Poor. He was a member of the Veteran Firemen's Association in Jamaica and the Jamaica Lodge, F. and A. M.

L. S. Conley, Hammonton Official.

HAMMONTON, N. J., July 6.—Lewis S. Conley, 55 years old, Overseer of the Poor of this municipality and a former motor racing star, died of a heart attack last night in an automobile driven by Vincent Marinelli of Hammonton. Conley, a widower without children, was one of the hardest hitting outfielders in South Jersey twenty-odd years ago and frequently was in the winning car in the 200-mile races in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

Dr. T. E. Wright.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 6.—Dr. T. E. Wright of Monroe, La., one of the foremost authorities in the State on malaria and hookworm, died at his home yesterday. He was a graduate of Tulane University of New Orleans. He developed, among other things, a process for injecting quinine into the veins of sufferers from malaria.

John E. Paden.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 6 (AP).—John E. Paden, Treasurer of the Endicott-Johnson Corporation, died from septicemia in the Johnson City General Hospital early today. He had been connected with Endicott-Johnson for eighteen years, and had been Treasurer for six years. He was a resident of Endicott, a suburb of Binghamton.

Major Julius Ramsey.

CHICAGO, July 6 (AP).—Major Julius Ramsey, negro, who in nearly a quarter of a century as commandant of cadets at Tuskegee Institute trained more than 25,000 negro boys and girls, died suddenly last night. Major Ramsey was an intimate of the late Booker T. Washington.

WILLIAM CHARLES KIDD.

Prominent in Railway Supply Field, He Dies at 69.

William Charles Kidd, connected for more than forty-six years with the Ramapo Ajax Corporation of Hillburn, N. Y., died at his home at Suffern, N. Y., on Tuesday after an illness of several months. Mr. Kidd, known to his many associates in railway and supply companies as "Captain Kidd," was born at Burnley, England, April 23, 1858. He came to this country when a young man. In 1881 he entered the employ of the Ramapo Iron Works, now the Ramapo Ajax Corporation at Hillburn, as a machinist and was instrumental in the development of the Ramapo automatic safety switch stand, now in use on many railroads throughout the country.

Mr. Kidd was Secretary-Treasurer of the Track Supply Association and was an organizer of the Metropolitan Track Supervisors' Club of New York. Early this year he was made honorary Secretary-Treasurer of this organization for life.

He leaves his widow, Elizabeth M. Wright Kidd, one son, W. Ellsworth Kidd, and two daughters, Mrs. A. A. Butterworth and Mrs. Elizabeth Kidd Pulis, all of Suffern. Funeral services will be held at his late home at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Captain Joshua S. Nickerson.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., July 6 (AP).—Captain Joshua Stickney Nickerson, 85, last of the native Provincetown whaling captains, died here yesterday.

Captain Nickerson retired from active business as a fisherman ten years ago, having lived to see the whaling industry shrink from world importance to the mere ghost of itself. In his prime he was master of famous whaling ships, including the Gage Phillips, the F. R. Soper and the French bark Chelohes. His last craft was the Angelia B. Nickerson, which he built for fishing around the Cape. His son now runs this vessel. Captain Nickerson was for fifty years a Mason. He was also an Odd Fellow.

Judge James Porter Parker.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 6.—Judge James Porter Parker, brother of ex-Governor John Parker of Louisiana, died Monday night after a long illness. Judge Parker had been on the bench of the Civil Court of Orleans Parish for sixteen years. He was 56 years old. After graduating from Princeton, where he played on the varsity football team, Mr. Parker took up law. He represented New Orleans districts in the State Legislature for several terms and served as District Attorney for Orleans Parish before being elevated to the bench.

POSTOFFICE INQUIRES INTO HEFLIN'S OFFER

CAN BE BOUGHT IN BULK

Mailing Privilege Is Thrown In, According to the Senator's Secretary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The fact that circular letters have been sent out from the office of Senator Heflin of Alabama, advising anyone that the Senator's speeches attacking President Coolidge and the Catholic Church may be obtained under his frank, has attracted attention in Washington, and, it is said, has led to scrutiny by the Postoffice Department.

A part of the letter advising that the speeches, if bought in bulk, can be addressed by the purchaser and mailed under the frank is the portion which is now undergoing inspection.

The postal authorities do not question Senator Heflin's right to mail his speeches under his own frank, but whether any purchaser of the speech may do this is in question.

Senator Heflin has had a 188-page pamphlet printed by the Public Printer, in accordance with Section 37 of the Standing Rules of the Senate, which provides that it is lawful for the Public Printer, "upon the order of any Senator or Representative," to print extracts from The Congressional Record, "the person ordering the same paying the cost thereof." It is also provided in the same section as follows:

"The Public Printer may furnish without cost to Senators, Members and Delegates, envelopes ready for mailing The Congressional Record or any part thereof, or speeches or reports therein contained."

According to a letter sent out by his secretary, Mr. Heflin now offers his speeches in pamphlet form, as follows:

"In lots of 250, $11.
"In lots of 100, $4.40."

The letter then continues:

"The speeches carry his frank, which does not require postage for mailing and can be sent to any one by addressing the envelope. They may be sent to you in bulk."

London Exhibitions

copyrighted 1927 John Wanamaker New York

There is a most interesting exhibition where flower paintings of all the ages are being shown. It gives one somewhat of a shock to see a Jan Van Huysum within a few feet of a Marie Laurencin. It seems to symbolise exactly the change which has taken place in decoration. Exquisite detail belongs to the past, exquisite colouring to the present and future. For those in search of colour schemes, the exhibition provides endless material. Van Huysum, Van Os, de Heem, etc., the traditional flower painters of the 17th Century, are worthily represented, and there are beautiful examples of the moderns; Manet, Van Gogh, Gaugin, Matisse, Renoir and Sargent, have all contributed to this delicate and delightful art—and the Marie Laurencin, an arrangement all tender blues and pinks, instantly suggested a white room.

At one of the recent sales, the important feature was a set of Chinese painted wall panels; each twelve feet by four feet; belonging to the Duke of Atholl. These were brought from China in the 18th Century for the decoration of Old Dunkeld House, but were never used. They brought a price of 1,020 guineas.

Other items sold in this extremely interesting sale were a set of William the Third chairs in the style of Daniel Marot, the tall shaped backs with scroll uprights and fiddle shaped splats richly carved. These brought 850 guineas. A pair of very beautiful Chinese famille rose mandarin vases, 56 inches high, 430 guineas. A William the Third Mirror 210 guineas; an early Georgian Mahogany side table £1550; a Chippendale settee, belonging to Lady Manvers, £310; and a Chippendale centre table, once the property of the 1st Earl of Chatham, 660 guineas.

ENGINEER DISAVOWS TRAIN CRASH FAULT

SAYS TRACK WAS CLEAR

And First Intimation of Peril Was Near Switch of Siding Where Four Died in Wreck.

FIREMAN BACKS TESTIMONY

Coroner Withholds His Verdict—Railroad Begins Inquiry and Another Will Start Today.

William Brandt of Middletown, N. Y., engineer of the New York, Ontario & Western express which crashed into a "switcher" train on a siding at Iona Island station, forty-two miles from New York on the west bank of the Hudson, causing the death of four persons and injuries to twenty-three on Tuesday afternoon, denied yesterday that he had run past caution and danger signals as alleged by railroad officials. A formal statement Tuesday night from the New York Central Lines, which control the West Shore tracks where the accident occurred, had blamed Brandt for the wreck.

Brandt testified yesterday at an inquest before Coroner George B. Dutcher of Rockland County in the Town Hall at Stony Point, N. Y. After taking the testimony of Brandt and other railroad employes, Coroner Dutcher adjourned the inquest without date, and announced that he would give no verdict for the present.

The engineer said that when he passed the "approach" signal near Bear Mountain, about a mile from the scene of the wreck, it showed "All clear." This directly contradicted the railroad statement, which asserted that the "approach" signal was yellow, which was a caution to slow down and get his train under control.

First Intimation of Danger.

Brandt declared that his first intimation of danger was when he came to the "home" signal only a short distance from the open switch leading from the main southbound track to the siding where the "switcher" was waiting. The signal was red, he continued, but the signal arm was only half raised. He explained that this was a "permissive" signal which permitted him to proceed with caution, and was not a danger signal requiring him to come to a complete and immediate stop.

As soon as he saw the "permissive" signal, Brandt testified, he applied the air service brakes, which slowed down the train as his engine rounded a curve leading to the switch. Then, he said, he saw B. F. Palmentier of West Haverstraw, flagman of the "switcher," standing near the "home" signal with a red flag. He said he could not see the switch target.

Brandt testified that he jammed on the emergency brakes as quickly as he could, but that the engine was already running through the switch into the siding. He stuck to his post and was doing his best to stop the train, he went on, when it crashed into the rear of the "switcher" 100 feet down the siding from the switch.

Fireman Corroborates Him.

Howard Atwood of Middletown, fireman of the express, corroborated Brandt's testimony. He denied that the "approach" signal was set against the express train, and declared that the "home" signal was set as Brandt testified. He also said Palmentier was near the signal, that view of the switch target was obstructed, that Brandt put on the service brakes at the "permissive" signal, and that Brandt applied the emergency brakes as the train crossed the switch.

Palmentier's testimony differed from that of Brandt and Atwood with respect to his position when he flagged the express. He said that he was on the eastern end of the trestle which the express crossed just before the wreck, and that he was "a considerable distance" west of the signal and the switch. He said Brandt blew his whistle acknowledging the red flag.

W. N. Havens, conductor of the "switcher," testified to his efforts to close the switch before the express reached it. If he had succeeded, the express would have continued on the main track for Weehawken and the accident would have been avoided. He said the switcher had just pulled into the siding when he first saw and heard the express and that he was unable to throw the switch completely over because the last car of the "switcher" was still on the key rail of the siding. If he had thrown the switch all the way over under those circumstances, he explained, the car would have been derailed and the switch would have been jammed open. He was waiting for the "switcher" to move further down the siding so that he could close the switch, when the express thundered down upon him and he had to jump down the embankment to save himself. The rest of the crews of both trains also testified.

Railroad Inquiry Is Begun.

After the inquest the railroad employes went to Weehawken, N. J., where the New York, Ontario & Western began its own investigation.

W. Dinan, general manager of the New York Central, and other railroad officials were present. The railroad investigation was postponed until 10 o'clock this morning after a preliminary questioning of railroad employes yesterday.

Railroad executives after the Weehawken meeting said that the automatic semaphore signal nearest to the scene of the wreck was fifty feet west of the switch, and that the other was 2,760 feet west of the switch. They also said the engineer had a clear view for at least one quarter of a mile before he reached the switch. According to the railroad officials, the signals were tested after the wreck and functioned perfectly for twenty-four hours while they were being watched. They declined to comment further on the engineer's testimony.

The joint official investigation to be held by the New York Public Service Commission, the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission, and the Interstate Commerce Commission, will begin this morning at Weehawken.

The woman killed in the wreck was still unidentified yesterday. She was about 50 years old, but no other description of her was available. At the three hospitals to which victims were taken after the accident, it was said yesterday that the injured were recovering, and probably all would pull through. It was feared Tuesday night that at least one and perhaps four of the injured would die. These four were unconscious for hours after the wreck, but recovered consciousness yesterday.

MOTORMAN BLAMED IN ELEVATED CRASH

Superiors Find Excuse He 'Didn't See Train Ahead in Time' Inadequate and Suspend Him.

Michael Joyce, motorman of the Lexington Avenue elevated train which rammed a Myrtle Avenue train at St. Edward Street, Brooklyn, Monday night, was suspended from duty yesterday while the company and other agencies investigated the cause of the accident in which ten persons were injured.

It was said by his superiors that Joyce appeared plainly at fault in not having halted his train in time. The Myrtle Avenue train, operated by Motorman Walter Meridan, had been stalled. Although the trains, which there operate over the same tracks, were on a straightaway and on an upgrade to the Vanderbilt Avenue station, Joyce put on his brakes too late. His only explanation was that he "did not see in time," an excuse which officials did not consider satisfactory.

Assistant District Attorney Sylvester Sabbatino said yesterday after a preliminary inquiry that it looked like an ordinary accident due to human failings and that the District Attorney's office would probably find no cause for action. The only possible charge against the motorman at fault, he said, was third degree assault, a misdemeanor.

John F. Gilchrist, Chairman of the Transit Commission, ordered an investigation of the accident. A. A. Papps, an equipment inspector of the commission, found in a preliminary survey that there was no fault in the equipment and that the accident seemed to have been due to failure of the human element.

All cars involved in the crash were old, Mr. Gilchrist said. Two of the three cars in the rear train were put into service in 1657 and one in 1893. In the forward train, he said, two cars were put into service in 1658 and one each in 1689, 1891, 1893 and 1901.

Mr. Gilchrist said the accident emphasized the need for the use of light steel cars on the elevated tracks, as recommended by the commission. The elevated structures are not strong enough to carry the heavy steel subway cars and the commission is now discussing with representatives of car manufacturing companies a new type of light steel car. Mr. Gilchrist also emphasized the need for automatic stop signals to stop collisions.

OLD TRAINING PLANES TO GO

Army and Navy Scrapping JN Type as Too Dangerous for Further Use.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—All JN type land and sea planes in the army and navy are rapidly being disposed of as part of a plan to promote efficiency and safety in the air. The War Department announced today that "in keeping with its constant endeavor to decrease the element of danger in aviation," the JN planes on hand Sept. 1, will be scrapped regardless of condition or flying needs, and none will be flown after that date. This type has been used for training. The planes were acquired during and immediately after the war and most of them have been rebuilt one or several times to keep them in service.

Assistant Secretary Warner of the Navy Department said today that all but two of the JN type of seaplanes in the navy's air service have been taken out of use. On June 1 seven were left but five were "stricken off" during the month in line with the policy of getting rid of old airplanes brought down from the war period.

A large number of the 900 planes belonging to the navy are classified as obsolete for military purposes although not considered actually unsafe for flying. Mr. Warner said that a year or so ago there were 150 planes of the single and twin engine type, but these had dropped to 50. The navy is letting them disappear as they need repairs.

Of the 900 now obsolete, only about 120 are of wartime design and more than one-half are of a single seat type of training machine.

Mr. Warner said that during the war it was necessary to overhaul an engine after it had gone fifty hours, that seventy-five hours was considered a long time for service and 100 hours unusual, but that engines now run from 250 to 300 hours before being overhauled.

"It would be more economical to burn up some of the wartime equipment than to keep it," he declared. He said that 500 of the 900 naval planes were of the "non-obsolete" type, and that 320 of the 500 had been equipped with air-cooled engines, either of the Wright Whirlwind or the Wasp type.

800 COAL MINERS STRIKE.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 6 (AP).—Eight hundred anthracite miners, employed by the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company at Sugar Notch, went on strike today for more pay for larger cars.

Rinaldo Capelini, union President of District No. 1, said he would make an immediate investigation and have the men returned to their posts.

Twenty thousand employes of the Pennsylvania and Hillside Coal Company in the Pittston Field will be idle until next Monday as a result of the decision of officials to keep the operations down, due to market conditions.

Council of Red Men Sues For Right to Use Password

A suit for a password was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by the Kiowa Council, No. 147, of the Degree of Pocahontas of New York State, of the Improved Order of Red Men against the Great Council of the order.

The application, to be heard tomorrow by Justice Townley, alleges that the plaintiffs are entitled to the password for the current term, and that although the lodge is in good standing the Great Council has refused to give the countersign to it.

DEFAULTER PLEADS GUILTY AS WIFE DIES

BOTH IN MARITAL TANGLE

Coincident with the entering of a plea of guilty yesterday in General Sessions, by William S. Bennett, who stole $53,000 from Babcock, Rushton & Co., brokers, of 7 Wall Street, where he was employed as a cashier, it was learned that his wife died at her home in Westfield, N. J., on Monday night.

Mrs. Bennett's death was believed to have been due partly to shock at her husband's arrest. Bennett had been implicitly trusted by his employers and had thus been able to cover his defalcations over a period of seven years. When they were discovered, he disappeared and it was by trailing his wife that detectives were able to capture him in Philadelphia.

When Mrs. Bennett went to meet him in the Reading railroad station there several days ago, the detectives were close by. A moment after the couple, who had not seen each other since Bennett's defalcations were uncovered, embraced warmly, the detectives put Bennett under arrest. Mrs. Bennett displayed considerable emotion. While arrangements were being made to return Bennett to New York she returned to Westfield.

Had Suffered from Cancer.

She had been suffering from cancer for some time, but the shock of the arrest aggravated her condition, and on Monday night she died. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hooton of Westfield, her parents, kept the death a secret as long as they could.

The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Frank White, at 315 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. Burial will be today in Greenwood Cemetery.

The body was brought to Brooklyn because Mrs. Bennett had lived in that borough for several years with her first husband, Adolph W. Rottger, who for more than thirty-five years was Superintendent of Post-office Station C, at Sixth Avenue and Fifty-first Street, Brooklyn.

A marital tangle in which Mrs. Bennett and the cashier had been involved was recalled by Harry E. Shirk, attorney for Mr. Rottger, during the lengthy litigation in the case. Mr. Shirk, whose offices are at 44 Court Street, Brooklyn, gave the following version of the affair which included, he alleged, two spurious divorces and the conviction of Mrs. Bennett on a perjury charge in connection with them.

She married Rottger in Brooklyn in 1891. They had one daughter, who later became a school teacher. Mrs. Rottger had known Bennett before her marriage and had kept up the friendship. In 1905 the Rottgers separated and the husband began making weekly payments to his wife.

Obtained a Divorce.

In 1918 the then Mrs. Rottger obtained a divorce in Lancaster, Pa. At the divorce hearing, according to the attorney, she testified that Rottger had deserted her and that she had no knowledge of his whereabouts. She also testified that she had been married in Philadelphia and that her husband was a jewel setter employed by a Lancaster watch company. Bennett testified in her behalf claiming to be her brother. A young woman who it later developed was the woman's daughter, testified for her mother.

Soon after this Bennett obtained a divorce from his first wife, May Ellis Bennett of Hollis, Queens. This decree was obtained in Trenton, N. J. Then Mrs. Rottger testified for Bennett.

The couple were married in Jersey City in December of 1918. The next year, Mr. Shirk said, Mr. Rottger came to him and told him that Bennett and the woman were living together in Brooklyn. He started an action to nullify her divorce and obtain one on his own account. An investigation brought to light the alleged fraudulent Pennsylvania divorce.

With the discovery of this evidence, Mr. Shirk presented the case to William Sproul, who was then Governor of Pennsylvania. Mr. Shirk was appointeda special prosecutor and the woman was placed on trial charged with perjury. She was convicted, and not long after Rottger obtained his divorce in Brooklyn. No charge was placed against the daughter, who died a few years later.

Bought Home in Jersey.

Several years ago Bennett and his wife bought a home at 550 Cumberland Avenue, Westfield, where they lived until Bennett's disappearance after his thefts at the brokerage company were discovered.

Bennett managed to conceal his peculations until Jan. 7 of this year, when a customer demanded the immediate delivery of $10,000 in bonds which had been in the custody of the company. Bennett promised to produce the missing bonds the next day. Instead of doing so he drove off in his automobile, leaving behind a ten-year-old adopted daughter and his wife, who, it was said, had known nothing of his thefts.

Bennett became an itinerant paint salesman, occasionally writing to his wife from different cities, but never remaining in one place long enough for detectives to catch up with him. Several weeks ago he again wrote to his wife, asking her to meet him in the railroad station in Philadelphia. The detectives shadowed her and made the arrest. Her death followed.

Bennett's plea of guilty before Judge Koenig was to two indictments covering specifically thefts in the past year. The first indictment charged the theft of eight Belgian Government bonds worth $1,100 each, on Dec. 26, 1926, and a General Asphalt Company bond worth $1,100. The second indictment charged the theft of a $1,000 mortgage bond. Bennett was remanded to the Tombs without bail pending sentence on J y 20. The penalty is imprisonment from eighteen months to ten years.

John H. Holden, a member of the brokerage firm, said that Bennett forged entries in his books to conceal his defalcations of small amounts from time to time. Bennett's largest defalcation, he said, was of securities between audits. The latter theft occurred some time ago, he said. Mr. Holden explained that the report that Bennett conducted his own audit of his books was incorrect.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 6.—The Metropolitan Museum of New York has bought eight of the most famous Gobelin tapestries in Austria from the Benedictine monks at the monastery of Krems Muenster, in lower Austria. The price paid to the monks was $80,000, which most conservative experts regard as less than their real value.

The Gobelins are seventeenth century products and depict scenes from battles of the Mongol conqueror Timerlane. They are well known to connoisseurs, who have made several offers for them since the war.

The tapestries hung for more than 200 years without being removed in the "Kaisers' hall" of the monastery, where the Holy Roman emperors were housed when visiting the monks.

The monastery is one of the oldest and most noted in Austria. Since its foundation in 777 by Duke Tassilo of Bavaria it has been filled with art treasures, most of which remain.

Krems Muenster, like most of the religious houses in Austria, has lost much of its revenue since the war and the monks are unable to keep up their magnificent buildings and treasures without gradually selling off their possessions. They are now arranging a sale of their famous Roman candlesticks, which are valued at $30,000.

GAMBLING IN NASSAU BEFORE GRAND JURY

District Attorney Issues 26 Summonses After Visits to Suspected Inns.

TWO RAIDS ON SUNDAY NIGHT

Not a Gambling House in County Two Weeks Ago, Official Says—One Opened and Many Followed.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 6.—District Attorney Elvin I. Edwards of Nassau County announced today that the Grand Jury would hear twenty-six witnesses next Monday, who will be ordered to tell what they know about gambling activities in the county.

Mr. Edwards said that he was beginning a drive against gambling, because he had received information that in recent weeks many New York gamblers had been moving into Nassau County.

"Until two weeks ago," he said, "there were no gambling houses in the county. The opening of a new gambling house about a fortnight ago, however, was the signal for the outfitting of many elaborate establishments. We have issued subpoenas to men whom we have seen coming out of suspected places."

Mr. Edwards talked about two raids, made by twenty Nassau County policemen, which he led last Sunday night. Chief of Police Abram Skidmore and Captain of Detectives Harold King accompanied him. The first place visited was the Venice Inn, at Island Park, near Long Beach, where the police made no arrests, but found two roulette wheels and a truckload of other gambling equipment. They walked quietly in at the front door, but their approach was signaled by an employe and no one was caught gambling. The place was crowded with well-dressed men and women.

The raiders then visited the Abbey, an inn near Island Park. William Harris and John Shaughnessy, the alleged proprietors, were given subpoenas for their appearance before the Grand Jury next Monday. No gambling equipment was found at the inn.

MAURICE'S WILL IS FILED.

Dancer's Widow to Share Estate With His Brother.

Mrs. Eleanora Ambrose Mouvet, widow and last of the celebrated partners of Maurice, the dancer, will share his estate with his brother, Oscar Mouvet Jr., by the terms of his will filed for probate yesterday. Maurice, whose full name was Maurice Mouvet, left his property to his widow and brother to be divided equally and directed that his body be buried in France.

Although no estimate as to the value of his estate could be obtained yesterday, the will discloses that the famous ballroom dancer owned a factory in Villamoison, France, which is given in a separate paragraph of the will, together with all its appurtenances, to the two beneficiaries. The will, only six paragraphs long, was made last October. Maurice died in Switzerland on May 18 last.

Although the dancer was born in New York of Belgian parents, he explained in his will that he wanted to be buried in France, where he first won renown. He appointed as executors of his estate his "dear friends" Armin H. Mittlemann of 300 Madison Avenue and Ray Dennis of Morristown, N. J.

CAMP MOORE IS OPENED.

Gen. Gilmore Arrives With Staff—First Troops Due Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP MOORE, Seagirt, N. J., July 6.—Major Gen. Quincy A. Gillmore, commanding the Forty-fourth Division, National Guard, arrived here today and established headquarters at the New Jersey State Military Camp, where on Saturday manoeuvres of the season will start with the arrival of about 1,000 men of the 114th Infantry, N. J. N. G., in command of Colonel Edward Stone of Burlington.

With General Gilmore were Colonel Herbert D. Forrest, who again will act as Camp Adjutant; Lieutenant Colonel Edward L. Edwards Jr., son of United States Senator Edwards, who will be camp supply officer, and a detachment of non-commissioned officers for the clerical work.

The raising of the camp flag was delayed because the flagpole back of the Little White House, the Summer home of Governor and Mrs. A. Harry Moore, had just been painted. Colonel Forrest said the flag would be raised tomorrow.

$15,000,000 CREDIT ALLOWED POLAND

Bankers Trust Co. and Others Arrange Financing to Run for Six Months.

PART OF $60,000,000 LOAN

Bond Issue Will Be Sold Later—Pilsudski Accepts Terms After Long Negotiation.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, July 6.—After one and a half years of negotiations an agreement between the Polish Government and a group of American financiers for a loan of $15,000,000 was concluded today. Mr. Fisher signed the document as the representative of the American interests, among which are the Bankers Trust Company, the Chase Security Corporation and Blair & Co. of New York.

By the terms arranged the money will be made available for use by the Bank of Poland about October, and the remainder of a contemplated loan of $60,000,000 will be made available when the market is more favorable. The purpose of the loan is to stabilize the zloty.

During the last six months progress in the negotiations was blocked by the refusal of General Pilsudski to grant the Americans permission to have an observer on the board of the Bank of Poland. Only a short time ago were the financial experts able to budge him from his adamantine stand and to get his consent to the Americans' demands.

Statement for Bankers.

"During the last few months the Polish Government has been defining a comprehensive financial program which will be taken as the economic policy of the country, and I believe it will strengthen Poland both at home and abroad. The American banking group was glad to cooperate with Poland in preparing the program and it was fortunate in securing for the Government the first international committee of experts to give advice on the subject. Preliminary measures for the loan have been taken, but Poland wishes to wait to market the issue until the market is more favorable."

Mr. Fisher and the other Americans connected with the negotiations left Warsaw tonight.

As soon as the news was given out that the contract had been signed the Stock Exchange took a sharp rise and the Bank of Poland recovered from the slump which it suffered several days ago.

Bonds to Follow Credit.

An international banking group headed by the Bankers Trust Company, which for months has been negotiating a large loan to Poland, has arranged to advance a six months' credit of $15,000,000 to the Polish Government as preliminary to the long-term bond issue. The loan, which is now expected to amount to $60,000,000, will be offered publicly early next Fall, according to present plans.

In addition to the credit advanced by these bankers the Bank of Poland is arranging with central banks of several countries for credits of $20,000,000 to bridge the gap until the proceeds of this loan become available. The bulk of the central bank credits will be obtained in London, whose bankers also will participate in the loan to be floated this year.

The private banking credit will not be secured by specific pledge of revenues, but it is understood that specific revenues will be the security for the bond issue. The price and terms of the bond issue will not be determined until shortly before the time of the public offering.

Negotiations for the Polish loan have been carried on abroad and have been delayed several times by conflicting views as to the outside supervision to be given to the expenditure of the proceeds. These points are understood now to have been cleared up. The financial and economic position of Poland has improved greatly in the last year. The budget has been balanced, the trade balance is in favor of Poland and exchange is stable.

Striking Painters in Court.

Magistrate Fish in Fifth Avenue Court, Brooklyn, reserved decision yesterday in the case of nine striking painters arrested on June 27 on charges of disorderly conduct for picketing. Magistrate Fish instructed their counsel to submit a brief. The Court paroled the defendants in the custody of their attorney.

FAKE LORD HAUGHTY EVEN IN THE LINE-UP

LONG LIST OF CONQUESTS

He Is Said to Have Got $1,000,000 From Many Wives and Fiancees—Will Get Hearing Tomorrow.

With head and shoulders thrown five or ten degrees further back than erect and with a general air of Charles I approaching the block, a short, slender man ascended a low platform in the basement at Police Headquarters yesterday and faced more than 100 detectives in black masks.

The detectives studied the man's features with uncommon interest because he was accused of leading more than fifty women to the altar and of leaving an equal number waiting at the church. He is said to have made matrimony and courtship pay to an extent considerably more than $1,000,000. He is under arrest here on the specific charge of obtaining jewels worth $90,000 under false pretenses from Mrs. Rose Durkin, a grandmother.

The prisoner's real name is unknown. His aliases in this country included "Lord Beaverbrook" and "Robert Whitman." He is wanted in Austria as "Sigmund Engel" and "Baron Short." Scotland Yard wants him under the name of "Alexander Gordon." He has been traced under fully a score of other assumed names.

Bearing His Chief Asset.

A distinguished bearing is his chief asset. Even at the police line-up yesterday, he looked as distinguished as a man with a three day's growth of beard could under those circumstances. He did not display the slightest self-consciousness or embarrassment, even when chucked under the chin to make him tilt his head still further back so as to give the detectives a good view of a dimple, one of the chief identifying marks on his face. The left eyelid drooped until it nearly closed over one of the prisoner's large blue eyes, and the other watched the ceremony with some amusement and a touch of superciliousness.

Beaverbrook, or von Weldemier, or Sigmund Segal, or John Gray, or Arthur Brooks, to give a representative selection of his names—has thin, yellow-brown hair, plastered back tightly on his head. He is becoming bald in front, enlarging a rather ample forehead. His nose is high-bridged, long and thin—his most aristocratic feature. This and his blue eyes have enabled him to pass as a British nobleman of pure Norman stock, although he is said to have been born in Czechoslovakia.

Beard Forced on Him.

The three-day growth of beard, which is due to the exacting police schedule which has been forced on him in the last three days, spoiled the lower part of his countenance. The Detective Bureau did not think it necessary to shave him before placing him in the line-up, because the Baron sometimes goes clean-shaven, sometimes raises a mustache and sometimes wears a beard.

The stubble did not conceal his mouth, which is large and expressive. His lips are ornately curved, with little sympathetic lines at the corners of his mouth. Women have told the police that his large eyes fill with tears easily, and that his features assume an irresistible expression of anxiety, tenderness and sympathy. Two deep stubble-blackened dimples in his cheeks are said to be important emotional assets when he is well groomed and barbered.

After he had been subjected to detailed study in the police line-up, Dr. von Edwards, Vernon Richard or J. J. King—to adopt a few of his other names—was taken to the Court of General Sessions to answer a charge of grand larceny. He was remanded to the Tombs until tomorrow.

Says He Is Without Funds.

Frederick B. Stanley—a name that he sometimes married under—said that he was without funds, but that he expected to obtain considerable money as soon as he was free. Kruger (Frederick B.) has great hopes of defeating this charge. In conversation yesterday before his case was called von Elder said that he had not stolen the jewels from Mrs. Durkin, but that she had loaned them to him for investment purposes and that the investment had unfortunately miscarried. As he explained it yesterday, Sidney Renee said he never robbed any of the scores of women that he married or wooed, but always borrowed from them for investments, and his investments had been very unfortunate. Wallace was not represented by any lawyer on his appearance yesterday to answer Mrs. Durkin's charge.

The man with the assorted names asserted that he had been a theatrical manager up to ten years ago, when he first discovered what an asset he had in his confidential and sympathetic manner. As soon as he is out of trouble, he said, he would return to the stage and never go up to another altar.

In spite of his commercial success in courtship and marriage, the Baron has never accumulated. One reason is that he usually spent nearly all that he stole from one woman on his courtship of the next one. He sent hundreds of dollars' worth of flowers a day. His slogan was "Treat 'em like queens." When he took a prospective Mrs. King or von Edwards, Gray or Brooks to lunch, he tipped the headwaiter $20 to insure that a fuss that would be worthy of her should be made over his companion. He liked to give tips of $20 to barbers and manicures, checking their effusive thanks with a haughty expression which implied that it was a routine thing for him to tip in that manner and that it displeased him to have any notice taken of it.

Versatile in His Approach.

Detectives who investigated the Baron's career found that he was versatile in the selection of methods of approach. For example, he called on Mrs. Minnie K. Strangman of Buffalo, just after the death of her husband, a wealthy brewer, and said he wished to buy the brewery. During the negotiations a friendship sprang up between them. He proposed marriage. He had no difficulty in obtaining $35,000 from her. He was caught, however, and sent to Sing Sing for that. According to the detectives, he formed one of his friendships by introducing himself on a sidewalk in Buffalo. Noticing a woman wearing diamonds, the Baron followed her.

"Why, hello, Elsie," he whispered in her ear. She turned about in surprise.

"Sorry, I took you for Elsie Janis," he said. All his dimples and sympathetic lines were brought into play as he elaborated on his apologies and on the singular resemblance which made the mistake in identity almost inevitable. The Baron has a low, resonant, velvety voice, with an English "s" and a German "w" which are the result of having been educated in a large number of universities on the Continent and in England. The mistake in identity in this case cost the woman upward of $50,000.

Many Marriages Here and Abroad.

The Baron obtained several diamond rings and other objects of jewelry, but no large amount of property or cash, by a number of quick marriages in this country and Europe under the representation that he was a big film producer. This particular line of wives and fiancees were found, for the most part, in music halls and cabarets. His approach in these cases was a direct offer to sign a contract with him and go to Hollywood. With or without marriage, he was usually able to obtain the jewels. Generally he respected the conventions. He was always ready to marry a woman if his attentions caused her to be talked about.

He appeared in a humble incarnation as a mere scenario writer when he married Esther Wexler, in St. Louis, in 1924. He was plain Arthur Brooks. He wore a small mustache and literary glasses and carried a large briefcase which he said was full of scenarios. He obtained $13,000 of her foster parent's money. In her divorce suit, Mrs. Brooks said she had learned of earlier marriages by the man to a Miss Duncan in St. Paul, from whom he obtained $9,000; an Olga Fuerth, from whom he obtained $6,000; a Virginia Cameron, whom he robbed of $40,000, and some twenty others. Scores of his other marriages have since come to light.

TRY PILSUDSKI'S FOE ON CORRUPTION CHARGE

General Who Held Warsaw Against Dictator May Get Prison Sentence for Graft.

WARSAW, July 6.—The trial of General Zymierski, who defended the city of Warsaw against Marshal Pilsudski during the May revolution last year, continued its gruelling examination of witnesses today, though the majority of the long cross-examinations seemed irrelevant to the charge against the General of corruption in the purchase of 1,000,000 gas masks for the Polish Army from 1924 to 1926.

It is said that Zymierski awarded the contract to a firm which had to await advance payments from the Government before the factory buildings could even be built for executing the large order. It is claimed that the masks cost at least 1 zloty more than the bids from competitors.

Zymierski is also accused of accepting handsome presents of money from the chosen firm. Colonel Burgill-Monchzinski is also being tried on the same charges. The court can pass sentence of from four to eight years if the accused are found guilty.

Zymierski was thrown into prison at Vilna shortly after his stand with the Government against Pilsudski's invasion. As soon as the Dictator had affairs in hand the Marshal ordered him arrested with other opposers. He spent nine months in jail without the charges being stated and as soon as he was released he was rearrested on the corruption charge.

WOMEN'S SMUGGLING FAILS.

Two Tried to Pass Customs With Brandy in Petticoats.

Two women who described themselves as Miss Rene Du Pratt, 40 years old, and Mrs. Emily Marthe, 42 years old, both of 140 West Sixty-third Street, were detained by customs inspectors yesterday as they were attempting to smuggle several small bottles of brandy-bisque de boucher from the French liner France.

Inspectors John McAdams and William Mangan, on duty at Pier 57, North River, where the France docked, noticed that the women were bulging skirts and walked awkwardly as they left the pier. Apparently by accident McAdams brushed against one of them and his knee struck a hard object hidden underneath her dress. Both women were taken to the barge office at South Ferry where a woman inspector found they were wearing petticoats of heavy drill, each containing pockets in which the brandy was secreted.

The women were fined $5 for each bottle and the liquor was taken from them.

Berlin Grocery Boy Gets Department to Rescue Horse From Swarm.

BERLIN, July 6.—When a grocery delivery boy returned leisurely to his horse and wagon from the cool kitchen of a customer he found a swarm of bees settled on his steed. Neither insects nor animal showed the slightest concern, but the lad saw trouble coming with a rush. He followed the course Berliners always take when in doubt and called out the fire department.

This organized "maid of all work" for the public immediately improvised a hive from a grocery basket in the delivery wagon and persuaded the busy bees to enter. Then the firemen took the hive to an engine house.

Thinks this was their first job of the kind, the firemen were able to complete the task without either horse or men getting a single sting.

1,000 FUR STRIKERS PROTEST TO MAYOR

PICKETS PARADE ON PLAZA

Give Peaceful Demonstration as Committee of Three Presents Petition.

ARRESTS ARE DENOUNCED

Immediate Relief Urged—Walker's Secretary Says Subject Will Receive Consideration.

More than 1,000 fur strikers affiliated with the deposed Joint Board of the Furriers' Union marched to the City Hall yesterday afternoon to petition Mayor Walker to protect them from police "persecution" and gangster raids. A committee of seven was admitted, and three of the members, Max Ackerman, Mrs. Margaret Bandili and Mrs. Sarah Gross, each of the women carrying an infant, entered the office of Edward L. Stanton, the Mayor's Secretary, and gave to him a letter to the Mayor from the striking fur workers.

The committee remained in the City Hall only a few minutes, but while it was there strike pickets with relatives and sympathizers, young and old, marched two abreast back and forth across the City Hall Plaza displaying placards which they had concealed in newspapers when they marched there. The placards read: "Strikers and not criminals."

Ten patrolmen and nine detectives from the Oak Street Station were stationed along the Plaza before the pickets arrived, but there was no disorder.

Tells of Their Grievances.

"For five weeks," the letter to the Mayor said, "thousands of us fur workers have been on strike against the members of the Associated Fur Manufacturers, who have broken their agreement with our Joint Board. We have been peacefully picketing our shops during these weeks, but ever since the strike began a deliberate effort has been made to deny us this and all other rights and an unprecedented succession of outrages has been committed upon peaceful strikers and officers of the union.

"More than 1,500 arrests have occurred, and the majority of these have resulted in convictions, although absolutely no crime was committed. Hundreds of workers have gone to jail, some for six months and dozens for ten and fifteen days. Yet in all these cases the arresting officer has proved no disorder, and upon cross-examination has even denied that the workers in any way interfered with traffic.

"Police officers have committed brutal assaults upon innocent men and women before and after arrest. Scores of our workers have been assaulted by hired gangsters, both on the picket line and in their homes. Many times such crimes have been committed in the presence of policemen and they did not interfere or attempt to make an arrest after the attack had occurred. Sometimes when they were forced to make arrests of these criminals they freed them on the way to the police station in spite of the protest of our workers.

Immediate Action Urged.

"We come here today to respectfully ask that you take some immediate action in regard to this systematic persecution of the fur strikers. With us come the wives, mothers, sisters and children of men in jail and men who have suffered serious bodily injury in this strike, and they join in our request for our rights as citizens.

"We ask you to see that the right of peaceful picketing—a fundamental right of all workers which recently has been upheld by the Court of Appeals in New York State—shall not be denied to the workers of New York City through the arbitrary action of the police and the courts.

"We ask that immediate measures be taken to stop the activities of gangsters on the picket lines and in the homes of the workers."

The Mayor's secretary told the committee that its petition would receive due consideration.

Magistrate Abraham Rosenbluth, in Jefferson Market Court, adjourned until next Wednesday the hearings of 109 men and women fur strikers arrested last week. The defendants are at liberty on $25 bail each. Before court opened Deputy Chief Police Inspector James S. Bolan was in conference with the Magistrate and informed him that the fur district had been quiet for a week and that there was little mass picketing.

MYSTERIOUS KILLING SIFTED

The police of Newark, Summit and the Township of Springfield, N. J., are making a joint investigation of the murder of an unidentified man, between 25 and 30 years old, whose body, covered with stab wounds, was found yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a clump of woods near Commonwealth Stone Quarry, on the borderline between Summit and Springfield Township. The body was lying about 100 feet off Orchard Street, Springfield, and about 300 yards from the Summit line.

There were fifteen wounds in the back of the neck and elsewhere on the body. Near by was a stiletto case, 8 inches long. The body was found by a man passing through the woods.

The dead man was dressed in clothes of good material and wore a ring with the initials "F. F." and a belt buckle with the letter "F." engraved on it. In a pocket was 15 cents. The police also found a gold watch. The body was taken to Brewster's Morgue at Summit.

A tailor's trademark on the coat bore the name and address of St. Lifers, 232 Market Street, Newark, but at that store nothing was known of the wearer.

Police Chief Rubins of Springfield expressed the belief that the man was murdered for vengeance. He said the body of another murder victim, Carmine Spinello, a contractor, of Newark, was found not far from the same spot a few months ago. The man charged with the murder of Spinello was tried and sent to the New Jersey State prison at Trenton.

WOULD GAS A CITY TO PROVE IT HUMANE

NEW MASK IS PERFECTED

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 6 (AP).—Bombardment of some city of 10,000 population with tear gas as a means of convincing the public of the humanity and effectiveness of gas warfare, was suggested tonight by Dr. Harry N. Holmes, Professor of Chemistry at Oberlin College, Ohio, in an address before the Institute of Chemistry of the American Chemical Society.

Dr Holmes declared that gas warfare, although brutal like all warfare, is really less brutal than other types of fighting.

The tear gas test on some American city could be made without serious danger to life or health, Dr. Holmes said, and would go a long way toward eradicating opinions now based upon prejudice and unreasoning fear.

As proof that the general feeling that gas is "devilish, brutal and should be abolished" is erroneous, Dr. Holmes said that the Surgeon General of the United States reports that in the American Army, 24 per cent. of all the casualty caused from wounds and other agencies than gas died, while only 2 per cent. of the gas casualties resulted fatally.

Outlining his test plan, Dr. Holmes said:

"It would be well worth while to drop tear gas as one that is obnoxious but not dangerous on a civilian population which has been given about as much warning as they would get in warfare. Every citizen should have been provided with a gas mask supplied by the War Department and he should have been educated in methods of quickly adjusting the mask and in a knowledge of the very great protection obtained in a house with closed windows and doors.

"It would be most interesting to see how quickly a population of 10,000, for example, could protect itself from tear gas. The protection might possibly be extended to horses, although this is less important. From such experiments on a large scale we might arrange for a thoroughly tested conclusion as to the real merits of gas warfare. In the meantime the public bases its opinion upon prejudice and unreasoning fears."

Colonel H. E. Howe of the Chemical Warfare Reserve said that little was being done by the reserve along offensive lines, "partly because the appropriations for the Chemical Warfare Reserve are less than that for the feeding of army mules. No new offensive gases had been produced," he said, "but a new and more effective gas might be obtained at any time, possibly by a chemist working with some other aim."

Neutralizing Gases Developed.

Some neutralizing gases have been developed for the purpose of being laid down after an enemy gas attack for the purpose of clearing out trenches and fields and making them safe for troops, Colonel Howe said. Also clothing which could not be burned by gas was being perfected.

The most valuable defensive development recently, he said, has been the perfecting of a speaking gas mask. In the great war, officers were unable to give verbal orders during gas attacks because of the cumbersome enveloping masks which they were compelled to wear. Now lighter, more efficient masks, through which the wearer can speak without difficulty, have been evolved.

Colonel Howe supported Dr. Holmes in the idea that gas warfare is not nearly so brutal or horrible as the public believes. He asserted that had a few tear bombs been used in recent minor engagements between British soldiers and Chinese mobs in China, loss of life would have been wholly avoided, together with the resulting bad feeling between the Chinese and occupants of the foreign concessions.

Dr. L. V. Redman, Vice President and Director of Research of the General Bakelite Corporation, New York, discussed the manner in which researchers and inventors may obtain financial support and reviewed the manner in which this has been accomplished in the past.

"Surely scientific research will pay a country enormously," he said, "but no private concern for private gain can hope to undertake it. Finding the wild grape root at Concord which gave grapes to this continent was true research and is of enormous value to this country, but you can't make money out of it. The country can, but no private individual can, because the minute he gives you ten grape vines you can start a thousand growing from slips and he can't control it."

Likens Research to Panning Gold.

Dr. C. E. K. Mees, Director of Research of the Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y., said research was like panning gold from a stream.

"One lives from the gold dust collected but one always seeks nuggets," he said. "These nuggets of research are the result of long-time research."

Dr. Charles H. Herty, formerly President of the society, said the present shortage of men qualified for research was a danger to industrial progress.

"The Government," Dr. Hery said, "is not the place for industrial research but for investigations in pure science. The function of Government is the support of research in fundamental science from which the people of the nation may profit greatly but from which the individual will profit only incidentally."

A warning that industries are threatened with a serious set-back unless intensive research in pure science, as opposed to "subsidized industrial research," is actively prosecuted, was voiced by William Haynes, publisher of Chemical Markets, New York.

"The great chemical discoveries of the past were the result of painstaking personal efforts of great chemists," Mr. Haynes said. "Today in great industrial laboratories whole corps of chemical specialists attack specific problems with the result that in many instances the empirical, practical knowledge of our industries has already run ahead of our knowledge of the chemistry involved. The use of catalysis and of solvents, for example, is ahead of our knowledge of catalytic or solvent reactions."

The high respect in which the motion picture is held by the world of science is being demonstrated here at the institute. Every evening world-famous chemists go to the Nittany Theatre to view films depicting new developments in the various sciences.

One film, made by the General Electric Company, amazed even the learned audience by reason of the clearness and vividness with which the electron theory of atoms was demonstrated by means of animated drawings.

WHAP ASKS FUNDS FOR NEW STATION

Plans to Move Outside the City Because of Wave Length Obstacle, Ford Announces.

PHILHARMONIC ON TONIGHT

Concert to Be Broadcast by WJZ and Others—Fifteenth Link Is Added to Columbia Chain.

An appeal for funds with which to build a new broadcasting station outside of New York City was made yesterday by Franklin Ford, manager of Station WHAP, in several thousand letters to friends of that station.

"We now face a new obstacle," said Mr. Ford. "The Federal Radio Commission has ordered us to use the channel of 236.1 meters. On this wave our present transmitting plant on West Thirty-first Street, on the roof of a fifteen-story building, is ineffective, although it was satisfactory on our former high wave. The steel building absorbs so much of the power on the new wave that we cannot be heard except in a few districts. This means that WHAP must build a new station outside of New York. We must purchase land, erect new towers, build a new concrete plant and move our transmitter to the new site. WHAP must raise $25,000 for its new building."

Mr. Ford said he hoped to move the station to New Jersey, but the studio will remain at 9 West Ninety-sixth Street, New York.

He said that the operating expenses of WHAP in the past and at present have been partly defrayed through voluntary contributions.

"Funds were were not solicited at first," Mr. Ford said. "Small donations began to come in from various unrecognized sources; finally we started this campaign to finance a new station, which we hope will be entirely self-supporting through donations. If so, it will be, as far as I know, the first station to be directly supported by its listeners. WHAP sells no time on the air. We have received more than $13,000 since June 1 and more than $25,000 since Jan. 1."

The first broadcast of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra Summer concert series will begin tonight at 9 o'clock through WJZ and associated stations. The concert will be under direction of William van Hoogstraten at the Lewisohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, beginning at 8:30 o'clock, but the radio audience will not hear the program until one-half hour later. The stations which will transmit simultaneously with WJZ between 9 and 10:30 o'clock are WBZ, WBZA, KDKA, KYW and WEBH. WJR and KSD will be included in the chain between 9 and 10 o'clock.

The fifteenth link, WCAO of Baltimore, has just been added to the new chain of radio stations which will begin operating in the eastern part of the United States on Sept. 4, as the Columbia Broadcasting System. Headquarters are in the Paramount Building.

Assemblyman LaGuardia, Lucien B. Price, editor-in-chief of The Boston Globe; Upton Sinclair, author; Clarence Darrow, Oswald Garrison Villard and others are scheduled to speak tonight before a Sacco-Vanzetti mass meeting to be held by the Cooper Union in Webster Hall, Union Square, the proceedings of which will be broadcast through WPCH between 5 and 6 and between 7 and 7:30 o'clock.

WIDOW RECOVERS JEWELRY.

Mrs. Reba E. Minford's attempt to gain possession of $60,000 worth of stock in the Thomas Realty Company and jewelry which belonged to her husband, Richard Levis Minford, who died in Detroit in 1925, met with partial success yesterday when Surrogate Foley ordered her brother-in-law, Levis Monford 2d, to turn over the jewelry to her and suggested that she bring action against her sister-in-law for the stock certificates.

Mrs. Minford had been separated from her husband, and she contends she did not learn of his death until long afterward. Mr. Minford, her brother-in-law, a real estate broker of Scarsdale, testified that he bought a pawn ticket for the jewelry and obtained the stock certificates from a woman with whom his brother was living at the time of his death. The stock certificates are made out in the name of the sister-in-law, Mrs. Agnes M. Martinsen, it is contended. Mrs. Minford alleges that this was done so that her husband's estate would not appear to warrant the payment of a large alimony allowance.

Two Forest Fires in New Jersey.

HAMMONTON, N. J., July 6.—Two forest fires are burning in this vicinity. One, in the Weymouth swamp, was started by campers, and has been burning for eighteen hours. The other, at Laurel Road, started this afternoon but is now under control. The fire in the Weymouth swamp is burning in the direction of Weymouth, an all-but-abandoned town. Scores of deer and thousands of rabbits have been seen fleeing from the fire zone.

Erie Gets Old Gunboat for Museum.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—The old gunboat Wolverine, which was decommissioned last year after nearly eighty years of service, was ordered turned over to the city of Erie, Pa., today for use as a museum. The Wolverine, formerly the Michigan, was last used as a training ship for naval reserves on the Great Lakes.

TWO ST. PAUL WOMEN MYSTERIOUSLY SLAIN

Male Friend and Taxi Driver Find Bodies Twelve Hours After the Killing.

ST. PAUL, July 6 (AP).—Two women were found slain in an apartment here early today under circumstances that apparently baffled the police, who said tonight they were without a tangible clue.

Mrs. Sadie Bell (Teddy) Dubois, 32 years old, and Miss Anne Grenville, aged 30, were the victims. They had been dead more than twelve hours when Charles M. Hutchinson, a friend of Miss Grenville, and Al Beck, a taxicab driver, who had taken Hutchinson to the women's home, found the bodies. Hutchinson, who is held by the police, declared he knew nothing of the slaying.

Mrs. Dubois had apparently been dragged from her bed partly clad and shot through the head. Two more bullets had been fired into her body as it lay on the floor.

From the position of Miss Grenville's body, which was fully clad, police surmised she had unwittingly surprised the assassin and had been shot down to silence her. Her left hand clasped a package of cigarettes, while her right held a cigarette apparently just extracted from the package. Four bullets had entered her body, which lay just inside the door leading to the bedroom.

Robbery was not the motive, as about $35 and a diamond ring were untouched.

Mrs. Dubois formerly operated a small downtown hotel, and Miss Grenville was the daughter of a labor organizer, George Grenville, now believed to be in Harvey, Ill.

While the police alluded to "gang warfare" as a possible element in the crime, they offered nothing tangible in support of this theory and admitted they had nothing definite on which to hang a motive.

In searching the residence they found a gallon and partly filled quart bottle of alcohol and a small quantity of "near beer."

HELD IN BANK FORGERY.

Foreign Exchange Manager Said to Have Altered Patron's Account.

Dominick Istorico, 37 years old, of 3,223 Bronxwood Avenue, the Bronx, manager of the foreign exchange department of the Melrose National Bank, 560 Melrose Avenue, was held yesterday in $5,000 bail by Magistrate Stern in Morrisania Court for a hearing July 13 on a charge of third degree forgery.

Istorico was arrested at the bank after an investigation had disclosed deficits and false entries in the books amounting to $9,000.

According to an affidavit, Edward Cleary, cashier of the bank, charges that on Jan. 23 last Istorico drew an order for 20,000 lire from the Bianca Commerciale Italiano, 60 William Street, and charged it to the Melrose Bank. Then, he says, in order to cover the withdrawal Istorico altered the account of Semplicco Savirano, 260 East 151st Street, making the books show that Savirano had drawn 20,000 lire. Officials of the bank did not grow suspicious until a few days ago, when another depositor found money falsely drawn from his account.

Ossining Man Strangely Stabbed.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 6.—Martin Purcell, 51 years old, a contracting superintendent of Croton, was stabbed in the abdomen by an unknown assailant on a public highway in Croton early yesterday morning. He was taken to the Ossining Hospital and the police and Dr. Edwin Huntington, acting medical examiner of Westchester County, are investigating the assault. It is believed that the stabber mistook Mr. Purcell for someone else. The man came upon him suddenly in the dark and after stabbing him said, "There, take that," and ran off.

INVITES WOMEN VOTERS.

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt Offers Use of Her Home for Board Meeting.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has invited the State Board of the League of Women Voters to hold its October meeting at her home in Hyde Park. Mrs. Henry Goodard Leach, new State Chairman, inaugurated last year the custom of holding board meetings in different parts of the State, instead of at the New York City State headquarters of the league.

Thirteen counties will send delegates to the October meeting. The Chairmen of league organizations included in this territory are: Mrs. David Newland, Menards; Mrs. Fred M. Bennett, Amsterdam; Mrs. C. A. Richmond, Schenectady; Mrs. Myrta Gibbs Green, Middletown; Mrs. M. D. Birdsall, Central Valley; Mrs. George M. Dickerson, Nanuet; Mrs. William H. Lough, New Rochelle; Mrs. Seaman Miller, Linlithgo; Mrs. Louis B. Hill, Millbrook, and Mrs. Norman

STADIUM CONCERTS OPEN IN GREAT HALL

WELCOMED BY LEWISOHN

Orchestra Gives a Novelty in Elgar's Arrangement of Handel's Overture in D Minor.

The tenth season of the stadium concerts given by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under the baton of Willem van Hoogstraten opened last night in the Great Hall of the College of the City of New York. Three thousand persons crowded the huge auditorium and more than 1,000 others had to be turned away. It was apparent as the hour drew near for the beginning of the program that the weather would not permit an outdoor performance in the Lewisohn Stadium and signs were put up directing patrons to repair to the Great Hall.

Despite the rain and the discomfort it caused, the audience was enthusiastic and gave every indication of pleasure at the prospect of another season of these orchestral concerts that, except for the Goldman Band and occasional performances of outdoor opera, provide the only musical recreation for the Summer dwellers in the city. Mr. van Hoogstraten and the orchestra received a rousing welcome as they took their places on the platform.

At the end of the first group Adolph Lewisohn, honorary Chairman of the stadium concerts, welcomed the audience. He said in part:

"I again have the great pleasure of greeting this interesting Stadium audience at the commencement of the tenth season of the Stadium concerts, every year more interest is shown by the public in these fine concerts and every effort is made as usual to produce the very best music for the benefit of the people who remain in town during the Summer season.

"It is most gratifying to be able to attract the large and high-class audiences that attend these concerts, and equally pleasing that we have been able to secure the best musical talent. We have had the valuable cooperation of the Philharmonic Orchestra which enjoys the distinction of being one of the best orchestras in the world. This season the Stadium concerts will be given every night for eight weeks. Mr. Willem Van Hoogstraten will be the conductor for this season and there will be two guest conductors: Mr. Frederick Stock of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for two weeks and Mr. Pierre Monteux, formerly conductor at the Metropolitan Opera House and the Boston Symphony Orchestra for one week.

"I regard it as a great privilege to be able to render this service to the people of New York, and it is a particular pleasure to be able to offer these splendid concerts at a moderate entrance fee to ever-increasing audiences, who are thus given the opportunity to enjoy the best quality of music in the Summer-time, in the open air amid beautiful surroundings, at moderate prices. The programs will be given free of charge.

"The influence of good music is very beneficial to the large audiences who attend these concerts and also to the much larger radio audiences in New York and all over the country. I hope that you will come to these concerts as often as you can and that you will all derive the greatest pleasure out of them."

Mr. Van Hoogstraten also responded to the applause of the audience in a brief address of thanks to the public for its support and to Mr. Lewisohn for his generous cooperation in making the concerts possible.

The program contained one selection new to Stadium audiences, Sir Edward Elgar's arrangement for full orchestra of Handel's overture in D minor, originally an introductory movement for strings and oboe to an anthem "In the Lord Put I My Trust." The playing of the orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Van Hoogstraten, who arrived from Europe only a day or two ago, showed little evidence of lack of rehearsals, and was characterized by its usual smoothness and finish of tone and ensemble. Other selections included Debussy's "Fêtes," the second of three nocturnes, the Prelude and Liebestod from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Fifth Symphony of Beethoven.

HAYS NOTES FILM ABUSE.

Says Foreign Producers Sell Their Pictures as Coming From America.

Will H. Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributers of America, Inc., in a statement issued yesterday declared that foreign producers, taking advantage of the popularity of American films, were selling their productions as coming from this country. Mr. Hays says that this was indicated in the advices from Delhi, printed yesterday morning, in which it was set forth that Hindus had protested against a film called "The Moon of Israel" as an American production, whereas this picture was made by the Sascha Film Company of Vienna. It is based on Sir H. Rider Haggard's story and was exhibited at the Roxy Theatre a week ago.

"Americans," says Mr. Hays, "had nothing whatever to do with its production. Why it is designated in India as an American production I do not know, unless it was falsely branded by persons who wished to take advantage of the popularity of American films. Either that, or the report charging that the riot was due to an American film may be another exhibition of the organized effort to discredit American films in some countries."

'Aida' at Starlight Stadium Tonight.

A free open-air performance of "Aida" will take place tonight at Starlight Stadium. The cast will include Alma Dormagen, Martha Mellis, Salvatore Sciaretti, Giuseppe Maero, E. Palazzi, L. Delle Moli, Maud Webber and P. Calvini. The orchestra will be under the direction of G. Simeoni. Paul Cremoneni is the stage director.

"Aida" is the first of a series of ten performances that will be staged every Thursday night during the Summer through the efforts of Captain E. W. Whitwell and a number of prominent persons who are interested in music.

Canadians to Make Air Survey For 18 Months at Hudson Bay

OTTAWA, July 6 (AP).—Six planes with pilots and mechanics of the Royal Canadian Air Force will sail from Halifax on July 14 on board two Government ships for Hudson Strait to make a day to day survey for eighteen months of ice and fog conditions in the 500 mile stretch of water which links the North Atlantic with Hudson Bay.

Three bases will be established at intervals of 250 miles, with all fuel, food and equipment for the entire period. Radio, under the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, will keep the expedition in daily communication with headquarters in Ottawa. Several Government departments, including Marine and Fisheries, Railways and Canals and National Defense, have contributed to the personnel.

The object of the work is to determine the exact aids to navigation required for seagoing traffic in and out of Hudson Bay.

CORNELL ENGINEERS OPEN SUMMER CLASS

New Technical School Begins After Long Investigation—Big Enrolment in Other Courses.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, July 6.—Cornell University today started its first Summer school for engineering as the result of an investigation by the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education in a general survey of technical education in this country and abroad. Dexter S. Kimball, Dean of the College of Engineering at Cornell University, is directing the work of the new session.

As a modest beginning the two schools for engineering teachers, one at Cornell and the other at the University of Wisconsin, are confining their initial activities to an analysis of the content and method of instruction in engineering mechanics. Funds to conduct the school for one year have been appropriated by the Carnegie Foundation.

H. P. Hammond, associate director of investigation of the society, in officially declaring the school launched outlined the purposes and aims of the Summer School for Engineering Teachers. He said in part:

"The purpose to improve the methods of teaching the subjects of the engineering curriculum has been a dominant motive in the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education since its inception.

"No matter what may be the future solution of the problems of the engineering college, the real work of engineering education is done in the class room and laboratory and the real, immediate, fundamental problems are those concerned with teaching methods and content of courses and, most important of all, with the personality and competence of our teachers. The present project is the outgrowth of that conception."

Betterment of last year's enrolment of 2,023 students is indicated by last-minute registration figures for the thirty-sixth annual Summer session at Cornell. Instruction began today by a Faculty of 132, including a large number of teachers from other institutions.

GENERAL WOOD REPORTS TO WAR DEPARTMENT

Declares He Will Return to the Philippines as Urged by Coolidge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—General Leonard Wood arrived in Washington from New York late today to make his first report in person to the War Department on the Philippine Islands since he became Governor General six years ago.

Attended by his daughter, Miss Louise Wood, and accompanied by aides, he was met at Union Station by Brig. Gen. E. D. Rockenbach, commander of the military district of Washington, and by Major Gen. Frank McIntyre, chief of the Insular Affairs Bureau of the War Department. He will call upon Secretary of War Davis tomorrow.

General Wood declared he would return to the Philippines in September, "for several years," as urged by President Coolidge and at the invitation of the President would again visit him in the Black Hills on his way west. He plans to return to New York tomorrow night or Friday and spend the intervening weeks in rest.

General Wood reiterated his opinion that the Filipinos were not yet fitted for self-government, but had make remarkable progress, were prosperous and happy. More Americans should go there, he said, particularly persons of prominence and ability, who should remain long enough to visit all parts of the islands. More American capital was also needed, as well as permanent professional residents from the United States, physicians, school teachers and nurses.

Great as had been the work of this country in the Philippines, he said, the greatest accomplishment was in its fight against tropical diseases, especially leprosy.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Woman of Bronze" will end its engagement at the Lyric Theatre on Saturday night.

Joan McLean will arrive tomorrow on the Aquitania to appear in the play known both as "Ex-Officer X" and "The Solitaire Man," which will open out of town on Aug. 1.

Edith Meiser leaves the cast of "Peggy-Ann" to open in vaudeville in Cleveland next week.

Fokine and Fokina will appear under the management of S. Hurok during the coming season.

The Frohman office announces that it was in error in stating that Sir Guy Standing, who is to act in "The Constant Wife," visited this country with the British War Mission in 1917-18, as was printed in yesterday's TIMES.

Several of the entertainers who appeared at the old Weber & Fields Music Hall are scheduled to hold a reunion at today's performance of "The Grand Street Follies." Among them are Joe Weber, William Collier, Frankie Bailey and Ed Wolf Hopper.

'MADAME X' REVIVED, STILL BRINGS TEARS

MADAME X, a play in three acts, adapted by John Raphael from the French of Alexandre Bisson. Staged by Cecil Owen; produced by Murray Phillips. At the Earl Carroll Theatre.

Rose	Mabel Montgomery
Dr. Chennel	Donald Campbell
Florlot	Charles Waldron
Gerrold	Carroll McComas
Noel	Reginald Goode
La Rocque	Douglas Wood
Victor	Arthur C. Morris

Amid the gaudy Spanish trappings of the Earl Carroll Theatre they revived "Madame X" last night as the latest of Murray Phillips's projects to bring back the drama of yesteryear to a public presumably interested enough to pay $2 for the best seats. This time it is Carroll McComas who acts the title rôle, in which Bernhardt, Dorothy Donnelly and others renowned have given free vent to their emotions, while Rex Cherryman appears in the part of the son.

This melodramatic play by Alexandre Bisson naturally shows the effects of the years. Contrasted to the nervous, topical pieces which have superseded it in the theatre of today, it appears to labor strenuously for its effects and to creak in handling them. But its ability to react upon its audience is still considerable and the end last night again put its usual premium upon available handkerchiefs. Even hardened veterans were seen to wipe suspiciously at their eyes, although, what with one thing and another, tears have not become the customary concomitant of performances at the Carroll playhouse.

The chief honor last night seemed to go to Mr. Cherryman, just as they went to William Elliott some seventeen years ago for his portrayal of the son, although Miss McComas came in for a generous portion, particularly in the final scene. But her performance was just a bit monotonous in the first act, without the lights and shadows that such a part affords.

Mr. Cherryman's sincerity and freshness made his work stand out, and these qualities particularly showed in the way he handled the stilted oratory of the trial scene. The other members of the cast were, at best, competent, and around the presentation there hung at times the suspicion that it was being done by a stock company a fairly good distance away from New York.

FLORENCE REED STRICKEN.

Actress Has Nervous Break-Down Following Throat Trouble.

LOS ANGELES, July 6 (AP).—The illness of Florence Reed, actress, who collapsed Sunday night at the close of the first act of "The Shanghai Gesture," in which she is starred, was diagnosed today by her physician as a nervous break-down and her condition was said to be critical. The nervous break-down was said to have followed an abcessed condition of the throat.

N. Y. U. to Hear Norfleet Trio.

The first musical recital for the 4,500 students in the Summer School of New York University will be given tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the University Playhouse by the Norfleet Trio. The musical programs will be given on five afternoons during the session, which runs from July 5 to Aug. 12. The Norfleet Trio is composed of Catherine Norfleet, violinist; Helen Norfleet, pianist, and Leeper Norfleet, 'cellist.

UNITED STATES LINES SHOW PROFIT FOR '26

Net Gain Over the Deficit of the Previous Fiscal Year Is Nearly $1,000,000.

REFUSE CARGO SHIP BID

Two Offers Rejected by Shipping Board for Victor—Economy in Pulverized Coal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6. — The United States Lines, according to preliminary figures, had a net profit of between $300,000 and $500,000 during the fiscal year ending June 30, as contrasted with a loss of $645,280 last year—an apparent net gain of approximately $1,000,000 in earnings in twelve months.

Five passenger ships, the Leviathan, George Washington, Republic, President Harding and President Roosevelt, had an operating expense of $13,137,438 in the first ten months of the fiscal year and a net profit of $137,825. The months of May and June are believed to have been the most profitable of the fiscal year.

The Shipping Board today refused to sell the steel cargo steamship Eastern Victor for $185,000 and ordered it re-advertised.

There were only two bidders. The Forrest Transport Company of Portland, Ore., offered $185,000, payable one-fourth in cash. The Tankers Corporations of New York offered $181,500, payable 10 per cent. cash.

The Eastern Victor is of 8,460 deadweight tons, has reciprocating engines, Scotch boilers and was designed to steam at 10¼ knots on 29.8 tons of oil a day.

An offer of Charles L. Hazelton of East Boston, Mass., to pay $20,000 for the Guaro, now laid up at Staten Island, was turned down as too low.

Recent experiments with pulverized coal today resulted in the Shipping Board authorizing the installation of apparatus for its use as fuel on the steamship Mercer. The tests indicated that economies could be effected by using this method. Other ships may be similarly equipped if the apparatus is successful.

Plaque at Andree's Birthplace Honors Lost Polar Balloonist

GRAENNA, Sweden, July 6 (AP).—The unknown fate of the Swedish explorer Salomon August Andree, who was the first of the air pioneers to attempt a flight to the North Pole, has been recalled here by the unveiling of a plaque to his memory. The plaque is attached to the house in which Andree was born in 1854.

It was on July 1, 1897, that Andree set out in a balloon, the Eagle, from Spitsbergen, having as companions K. Fraenkel and N. Strindberg. A message carried by a pigeon, sent from 82 degrees north, was the last word from the party. The next year two lifebuoys of the Eagle were found by a whaler, but there was no indication that they had been used.

Several expeditions have searched for the lost explorers without success.

PRINCE SIGISMUND DIES AFTER RIDING ACCIDENT

Ex-Kaiser's Cousin Was Famous in Athletics and Popular Throughout Germany.

BERLIN, July 6.—Prince Friedrich Sigismund of Prussia died today at a hospital in Lucerne, Switzerland, from injuries received yesterday while riding in the Concourse Hippique. The news of his death has cast a spirit of sorrow over the entire German sporting world.

The popular scion of the royal house of Hohenzollern was recognized as one of the best, if not the best, horseman in the Fatherland. In addition, he was a recognized star in football, hockey and other branches of athletics. His good nature and democratic manner made him one of the most popular men in Germany.

Sigismund and the ex-Kaiser were cousins once removed. The former Emperor often warned his fearless relative against his daring riding. His wife, Marie Louise, Princess of Schaumburg-Lippe, also is an ardent rider, and the two spent most of their time riding or training horses on their Mecklenburg estate. They also occupied Castle Glienicke near Potsdam.

Sigismund's accident occurred yesterday. He won the first prize with his horse Hellinger Speer in the Olympic proving event Sunday. During practice with another horse yesterday morning he was thrown at a difficult jump. The Prince's foot hung in a stirrup, and before he was able to free himself the horse had trodden on his chest a number of times, breaking five ribs and otherwise injuring him internally.

When aid reached him he was unconscious, in which state he remained until he succumbed. Sigismund's wife accompanied him to Lucerne. His two children, Louise, 9, and Fritz Karl, 8, remained in Potsdam. It is believed that the Prince will be buried in Potsdam, though the funeral arrangements are not completed.

MEANEY AGAIN ON STAND.

Tells How He Got $2,600 He Says Troopers Took From Him.

Special to The New York Times.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 6.—Timothy J. Meaney who held off the State troopers in an all-night siege, and who holds that a pocketbook containing about $2,600 and a roll of bills amounting to $70 or $80 was taken from a pair of overalls he wore when searched following the siege, remained upon the witness stand nearly all of today under cross examination. The examination was largely as to Meaney's earnings.

He testified that about one-half of the sum missing was acquired through the sale of personal property and real estate. James Meaney, his brother, gave similar testimony as to the amounts Timothy had received through the sales.

Major Mark O. Kimberling, Deputy Superintendent of the State Police, was called for the State. When court adjourned the State was endeavoring to have admitted as evidence the book of rules and regulation of the State police. Former Judge George K. Large, who is assisting Prosecuter Johnson V. Aller, requested Major Kimberling to produce in court tomorrow morning anything that might have been taken from Timothy Meaney during the alleged search. The trial of the four State troopers, charged with taking the money, will probably end tomorrow.

HOLDS PATRIOTIC EXERCISES

Mechanics Society Observes 151st Anniversary of Independence.

Exercises commemorating the one hundred and fifty-first anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence were held last night by the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen in the institute building at 20 West Forty-fourth Street.

The Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan read the Declaration of Independence following the salute to the flag by the audience and the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." Wing Tabor Wetmore, who was President of the Minute Men of America during the World War, made a patriotic address.

Harry Bailey was Chairman of the committee in charge.

New Role for Margaret Anglin.

Margaret Anglin, who closes in the revival of "The Woman of Bronze" on Saturday night, will immediately turn her attention to a new play in which she will be seen under the management of Carl Reed. This is "Gipsy April," by Lois Compton Fuller, and it will open in Long Branch on July 25.

'Scandals' Cast Leaves for Chicago.

The cast of George White's "Scandals" left yesterday on a special train for Chicago where the revue will open on Sunday night. In the company are Ann Pennington, Harry Richman, the Howard brothers, Tom Patricola, Frances Williams and the McCarthy sisters. Mr. White, who went along to attend the opening, will return next Tuesday to continue preparations for "Manhattan Mary."

SWIM STIRS LAKE GEORGE.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., July 6 (AP).—With 120 athletes already entered for the Lake George marathon swim next Tuesday, Summer residents of this village are taking an unusual interest in aquatic sports.

The swimming season, which customarily does not open until the water has been warmed for a fortnight or two of Summer sun, is now in full swing. Villagers report that more persons, especially girls and women, are learning to swim this year than ever before, apparently inspired by the example of entrants in the 24-mile race, many of whom have been in training for some time at the various communities along the lake.

Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmel, inventor of the grease bathing suit, who will contest for the prize money, was preceded here by her father, Ernest Moore of New York City, and by her two sisters and a brother. All five are entered in the marathon. Moore is a former deep sea diver and has also essayed the English Channel swim. His son, Ernest Moore Jr., is a theological student. Mrs. Schoemmel's sisters, Miss Ethel Moore and Mrs. Grace Moore Shaw, both live in New York City. One-fifth of the entries have been filed by women.

WINS DETROIT BALLOON RACE

DETROIT, July 6 (AP).—Svend A. U. Rasmussen of Detroit won the annual Detroit News balloon race with a distance of 580 miles, outstripping by more than 100 miles his nearest competitor. The last entry to report was J. A. Boettner, pilot of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company entry, who landed at Fayetteville, W. Va.

Rasmussen, in landing thirteen miles from Kingston, N. C., established a new distance record for balloons of 1,200 cubic meters.

His time in the air, twenty-five hours and thirty-five minutes, was bettered slightly more than an hour by E. J. Hill and A. G. Schloesser, who landed at Montvale, Va.

Dr. George M. Legalles came down at Bothwell, Ont., and Walter W. Morton, in the Goodyear IV., landed at Stoutsville, Ohio.

BERNHARD WILL OFFERED.

Banker's Estate to Be Shared by Widow and Sons.

The will of Abraham Bernhard, investment banker and member of Colvin & Co., who died on June 22 last, was filed for probate yesterday, leaving the bulk of his estate in trust for his wife, Mrs. Mollie Klee Bernhard. She inherits 20 per cent. of the estate during her life and another 65 per cent. until she remarries. Three sons inherit 5 per cent. each and will share the principal upon the termination of the trust funds.

The sons are George K. Bernhard, of 45 East Eighty-fifth Street, who inherits his share in trust until he becomes 45 years old, and Richard Jacques Bernhard, of 139 East Sixty-sixth Street, and Edgar B. Bernhard, of 21 East Sixty-ninth Street, who get their shares outright. The value of the estate was not disclosed.

LAWES ACTS TO AVERT TRAGEDIES AT PRISON

Drowning of Three Canoeists in River Brings Order for Quick Report to Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 6.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes issued an order today to guard against a recurrence of the situation of last Monday when three canoeists drowned while 1,200 Sing Sing convicts were held from rescue attempt by the rifles of prison keepers. The identity of the canoeists remained unsolved, although the body of one had been recovered yesterday.

The Warden's order was that in any emergency he was to be notified at once. If he could not be found, the order directed that the acting warden be informed so that instructions would not be delayed.

Frank Minnerly, Chief of Police, expressed surprise that no relatives of the dead man had come forward. He said he thought the canoeists were residents of New York City who were paddling homeward after participating in a canoe regatta that was held on July 4 at Cruger's, just north of the prison. The only clue to the identity of the man whose body was recovered from the Hudson was the word "Rex" on the back of his gray sweater.

Two other canoeists, who had been thought lost when they failed to return to their home in Yonkers, Joseph Gannon and Albert Healey, each 19 years old, reached home today. They had been visiting friends in Haverstraw.

$4,500 AWARDED TO ARTIST.

Brush Gets Verdict in Suit Over a Painting of Mrs. Aten.

The jury which heard testimony before Supreme Court Justice Joseph D. Senn as to whether or not Mrs. Florence Brooks Aten of 55 Park Avenue should pay $7,000 to George De Forest Brush, an artist of Dublin, N. H., for his work in altering a portrait he painted of her in 1925, returned a verdict requiring Mrs. Aten to pay $4,500. The verdict was opened in court yesterday.

The artist who sued Mrs. Aten, founder of the Brooks-Bruce Foundation, holding that his time and labor in retouching the painting was worth $7,000, although he had received $10,000 for the original work, said he was "quite satisfied" with the verdict. Counsel for Mr. Brush expressed the same view.

Medals to Be Given to Blast Heroes.

J. S. McCulloh, President of the New York Telephone Company, will award silver and bronze Theodore N. Vail medals to the telephone heroes of the Lake Denmark explosion of a year ago, on the lawn of the Municipal Building at Morristown Saturday afternoon. Wire Chief Clayton P. Plumsted and Repairman H. R. Horn and H. T. Wyckoff will be the recipients of the silver medals, which carry $250 in cash with them. The three ran lines into the naval reservation, and established emergency service within an hour of the first explosions. The three bronze medals will each be awarded to groups, one composed of plant men and the other two of telephone operators.

TWO BOROUGHS PLAN NEW TRAFFIC ROUTES

TO AID LOWER MANHATTAN

Road May Begin Between Prospect Park Plaza and Flatbush Avenue Station of Long Island Railroad.

A conference regarding establishment of an express highway between Long Island City and Brooklyn and building of a series of through traffic arteries between the two boroughs was held yesterday afternoon by the City Plan Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce and the Highways and Bridges Committee of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce in Long Island City. Elmer F. Andrews, engineer of the Highways and Bridges Bureau, was ordered to prepare a sketch of the proposed improvements, which will be submitted at another meeting of the two organizations early next week.

The need for an express highway was strongly emphasized, so that a direct route would be provided from Brooklyn through Queens to the Tri-Borough Bridge, thus aiding in the relief of congestion in downtown Manhattan.

Lawrence A. Coleman, Chairman of the Highways and Bridges Committee of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce, presided at the meeting.

Lawson H. Brown, a representative of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, declared the proposed highway would not only aid Brooklyn and Queens, but Richmond as well. This highway, he said, should start somewhere between Prospect Park Plaza and the Flatbush Avenue station of the Long Island Railroad, going from there into Queens and by the Tri-Borough Bridge into the Bronx.

RECORD TRAFFIC ON BRIDGE.

Queensboro Crossed by 200,000 Cars July 2 and 3.

Traffic over the Queensboro Bridge between Manhattan and Long Island City reached the highest point since the bridge's opening, in 1908, on last Saturday and Monday, according to the police. On each day more than 100,000 automobiles crossed the structure. Congestion was so great that lines of waiting automobiles extended for many blocks on both sides of the bridge. Nearly fifty policemen were required at times to keep traffic moving.

William E. McGuirk, President of the Thirty-fourth Street Ferry Company, which has a franchise to operate a ferry for trucks between Borden Avenue in Long Island City and East Thirty-fourth Street in Manhattan, said the ferry would be in operation by Aug. 15.

MAY GET CARNEGIE MEDAL.

Reward Suggested for Mrs. H. R. Rathbone of Chicago for Saving Boy

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Mrs. Henry Riggs Rathbone, wife of Representative Rathbone, and head of the Illinois Chapter of the American League of Pen Women, has been recommended for a Carnegie Medal for saving the life of a 5-year-old boy from drowning.

Mrs. Rathbone was swimming in a Palm Beach pool recently when she noticed that the youngster was frantically trying to treadwater in an effort to save himself. Although not an expert swimmer and handicapped at the time by a temporary injury to her arm, Mrs. Rathbone went to the rescue and persuaded the boy to cling to her while she swam to safety.

Mrs. Rathbone announced recently that she had resigned as head of the Illinois Branch of the American League of Pen Women so as to have more time for literary work. The resignation will not take effect until October. She retains her position on the National Board of the organization and her membership in the Chicago chapter.

104, NO WORRY HER MAXIM.

Keyport (N. J.) Woman Also Advises Simple Living for Longevity.

Special to The New York Times.

KEYPORT, N. J., July 6.—"Don't worry," was the recipe for longevity given today by Mrs. Matilda Voorhees, who celebrated her 104th birthday at the home of Mrs. William H. Heyer Sr., her daughter, in Hazlet, near here. "And live simply," she added as she turned to her daily task, watering the flowers in the garden.

Mrs. Voorhees was left a widow sixty years ago. She had nine children, only one of whom, Mrs. Heyer Sr., is living. She is in good health although slightly deaf. Having acquired a reputation of longevity, she received many postcards and was host to several hundred callers who came to congratulate her.

She expects to vote for President Coolidge in 1928, she says. She is a member of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church in Hazlet, where she was born.

INJUNCTION BARS NOISE.

Sanitarium Says Night Work on New Building Disturbed Patients.

Blasting and derrick operations beginning at 6 A. M. and lasting until 11 P. M. on a new building being erected at 21-25 East Sixtieth Street resulted in a temporary injunction being filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by the proprietors of The Harbor, a sanitarium at 667 Madison Avenue. The Thomas Drimmins Contracting Company and the Sixtieth Street Madison Corporation, owner of the property, are restrained from conducting building operations before 8 A. M. and after 6 P. M. Justice Townley will hear argument today on an application to continue the injunction pending the trial.

The Harbor is conducted by Sylvester Haberman, Sarah Fisher and Sol Richman. Haberman said that the 100 beds in the hospital were nearly always occupied, but that pneumatic drills, ponderous steam machinery and constant blasting late at night and early in the morning had disturbed the patients.

And now 15 Salesmen Will make their day 2 hours longer...!

Two hours more each day when they need them most—morning and evening. Two hours more for important calls, for recreation and for rest. Their prosperity, their health and happiness will be increased by the time they save in getting to their work and home again.

And that because they are among the 150 who have leased apartments in Tudor City, just three blocks east of Grand Central. They can walk to the midtown business zone in 4 minutes. They can get to the theatre section in less than 15. Their wives can walk to the shopping districts in 15 or 20. Think of the aggregate time saved, the greater opportunities for work and pleasure. And you can do the same.

Park Avenue standards at better rentals. And the famously efficient service accorded to all buildings under the single control of the FRED F. FRENCH COMPANIES.

The first group will be ready in September . . . The Manor, cozy apartments with small but fully equipped kitchens. Prospect Tower, hotel apartments. 1 to 4 rooms, from $875 to $3100.

Ends Hygienic Worry for Women Wearing Thin, Summer Dresses

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

THE lovely flowered chiffons and pastel crepes of this season—one loves their gay lightness, but sometimes fears to wear them.

Kotex makes them safe. Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the world's super-absorbent, it ends the risk of old-time "sanitary pads" by being 5 times more absorbent!

Deodorizes, too. Discards easily as tissue; no laundry or embarrassment. And thus ends most women's greatest hygienic worries.

To 8 in 10 better-class women, Kotex means more than a mere sanitary pad—it means proved and positive scientific protection. See that you get the genuine. If name "Kotex" is not on the box, don't accept it.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The character of yesterday's stock market, in which prices of a long list of shares rose 1 to 4 points, with two of them rising 14 and 16 points by way of special flourish, was somewhat different from recent speculative demonstrations. It was neither a uniform upward sweep which carried all active stocks along with it, nor the kind of movement which Wall Street lately christened a "selective market." What seemed mostly to be happening yesterday was the bidding-up, by outside speculators or by professional operators or by both, of stocks which for some time past had been inanimate. The majority of the day's emphatic advances were in stocks which had hardly figured in the activities of the last few months.

Many of these rose 3 and 4 points; not because of anything in the condition of the companies or because of anything in the general business situation, but, apparently, because speculative support could be best attracted by bringing novelties to the front. The familiar performers of recent weeks were not altogether neglected; in addition to the particularly rapid rise of Commercial Solvents and Laclede Gas, one of the oil shares rose 8 points and old-fashioned speculators who dislike innovation were accommodated by a 4-point advance in "Baldwin." But stocks which were lately leading the rise, such as General Motors, du Pont and United States Steel, either stood motionless or declined; thus giving rather unmistakable evidence of sales by previous speculative buyers.

After its habit, Wall Street's spirits revived to an extent which might have surprised visitors who listened to Stock Exchange views of the outlook a week or two ago. But rising or falling stock markets are possibly more potent in creating financial sentiment than sentiment is in creating markets. There was practically no increase in actual total transactions in the stock market, and the bond market continued dull and hesitant. Call money, as there was reason to expect, dropped back to 4 per cent.

If iron production were any longer a safe basis to foreshadow the country's industrial trend (it used to be so considered before the war), then the unusually large curtailment in last month's output, as reported yesterday, would be disquieting. A decrease of 10 per cent. from May in total production and of nearly 6 per cent. in the daily average is pretty large; the actual reduction is in fact the largest for the month since the war began. But the ratio of decrease in June even of 1925 was similarly large, and it did not prevent rapid expansion in the prosperous last half of the year. The reduction this year undoubtedly indicates uncertainty on the part of both producers and consumers, which is even more strongly suggested by The Iron Age's estimate that the Steel Corporation is now working at only 55 per cent. of capacity, whereas even in January and February the ratio was 85. Probably the steel trade is more concerned over the question whether efforts to rehabilitate the rate of output will or will not involve further concession in prices.

The statement given out from Washington yesterday, that loadings of freight for transportation on the railways have broken all records in the completed half-year, tells only part of the period's story. The complete figures show, to be sure, an increase in the first four months of 481,000 cars; but the last two months of the half-year period show decrease of 184,000. It is true that a large part of the very recent decrease was in coal; but for May and June as a whole, and excluding coal traffic, there was still a decrease of more than 60,000 cars. This is not a very startling change, but it contrasts with the fact that every month of 1926 after January reported large increase in loadings.

$1,517,245 NET FOR LOEW'S.

Loew's, Inc., reports a net profit of $1,517,245 for the twelve weeks ended on June 5, 1927, after depreciation and Federal taxes, as compared with $1,624,719 in the same period of 1926 and $982,840 in the same period of 1925. Operating profit was $2,118,041, against $2,068,901 and $1,284,600 respectively.

For the forty weeks ended on the same date the company reports a net profit of $5,404,809 after charges, equivalent to $5.09 a share earned on 1,060,820 no par shares of stock, comparing with $5,244,193, or $4.94 a share, in the same period of 1926.

The Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation reports a net profit of $1,136,490 in the twelve weeks ended on June 5, 1927, after expenses but before Federal taxes. Gross profit was $2,476,784 and operating profit was $972,764.

Cravath to Direct Westinghouse.

Paul D. Cravath, a director and for more than thirty years general counsel of the company, has been elected acting Chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to succeed the late General Guy E. Tripp until a permanent chairman is chosen. It was said no one was in view for the office. W. L. Mellon of Pittsburg was elected a director. The retiring directors were reelected.

In the Stock Loan Market.

Demand for stocks in the stock loan market yesterday was light. The average rate for industrial shares was 4 per cent. and for rails 1 per cent. Wheeling & Lake Erie was loaning at a premium of 1-32. Simmons, Continental Baking A, Canadian Pacific, American Woolen preferred, American Brake Shoe, National Lead, Savage Arms and Western Union were among the issues that loaned flat.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

The recovery in the stock market gained momentum yesterday. With the better-grade stocks furnishing the stimulus, there was a brisk advance on the Stock Exchange that met only occasional interruptions as profit-taking cut into the plans of the market's sponsors. Aside from the drop in call money from 4½ to 4 per cent. there was no visible development to encourage bullish activities. At the close of the day a long list of active stocks showed net gains ranging from 2 to more than 8 points. These included Houston Oil, which distinguished itself by a run-up of 8¼ points; Baldwin Locomotive, up 3½; Consolidated Cigar A, 4, Continental Baking A 2¾, Paramount-Famous-Lasky 3, Timken Roller Bearing 2⅞, United States Industrial Alcohol 2½, Westinghouse Air Brake 4½, Laclede Gas 14 and Commercial Solvents B 15.

Giving Up Guessing.

Several traders who have been attempting to "catch the moves" in many of the specialty stocks have given up in disgust and have just about reached the conclusion that it cannot be done. They find themselves usually too late for the move and that they have purchased stock at about the day's high or sold it at the day's low. Usually the readjustments which occur just before the close leave them with a small loss. A good sized number of traders is taking these "small losses" without being able to "hit a winner."

Baldwin Preferred Rises.

The unexpectedly sharp advance in Baldwin Locomotive preferred yesterday gave rise to predictions that the directors soon will present a plan for the retirement of this stock. At the day's high of 128¼ this stock was within 1½ points of the callable price of 125. There has been much talk lately that the preferred, of which 200,000 shares of $100 par stock are outstanding, would be retired in the near future. Wall Street had in mind yesterday, however, that the company was not in a position to bring about this retirement without the sale of its real estate in Philadelphia. Should that property be sold at anything like its presumed value of $30,000,000 or $32,000,000, the company very easily could eliminate all the preferred stock, leaving the 200,000 shares of common as the sole outstanding issue.

Steel Tonnage Figures.

Estimates of the actual decline in unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation during June were lacking until yesterday when predictions were made that the falling off would amount to 150,000 tons. Such a decrease would bring the total of unfinished business below the 3,000,000-ton mark for the first time since 1910. There is still, however, some hope that the corporation's recent efforts to add to its bookings will keep the total above that figure.

Some Market Paradoxes.

Even to some Wall Street watchers, the most surprising thing about the present stock market is its seemingly complete indifference to the day-to-day financial news which comes dribbling in from all parts of the country about actual conditions in industry as a whole. It is generally conceded that business in the main is not up to the level at which it was at this time last year and that many industries are struggling against obstacles which will probably have tangible effects on operating results in the last six months of 1927, yet the market forges ahead without any reference to these developments. Yesterday's report had it that the United States Steel Corporation is working at about 55 per cent. of capacity, but Steel shares entirely ignored this development. Baldwin Locomotive is operating at 10 per cent. of capacity, and the stock sold at a new high record yesterday. The President of the Paramount-Famous-Lasky Company has publicly expressed the need of economies in the operation of that industry, and yesterday the stock advanced 3 points. These occurrences have given the present market a puzzling appearance to the average observer.

Reporting More "Split-Ups."

It had been generally believed that by the turn of the half year most of the important split-ups of stock which are to be undertaken this year would have been accomplished, but if yesterday's Wall Street report is to be believed, there may be several more in the near future. It is this factor, quite likely, which has been back of the violent advance in a half-dozen recent favorites. Among the issues which, according to Wall Street report, may be split into smaller units before Fall are General Motors, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Harvester Company, Westinghouse and Vacuum Oil.

Bank Clearings at Record.

The extraordinary growth in New York City's banking business, as shown by expanding deposits and resources of many of the large institutions, is being reflected in unusually large bank clearings. On last Saturday the clearings were the largest of any day in history, amounting to $1,950,423,204, which compared with a previous high record of $1,874,981,250, made on Jan. 2, 1926. It is usual for the clearings to show large increases on Jan. 2 and July 2, but the expansion of last week had never before been equaled. As the statement of clearings always applies to the previous day's business, the increases are due to the heavy drawings of checks on July 1 and Jan. 1. These are the dates on which the heaviest disbursements of dividends and interest are made.

The St. Paul Battle Begins.

The opening guns in the battle over the St. Paul's reorganization were fired in Washington yesterday, but the reverberations failed to carry as far as Wall Street, judging from the responses of the St. Paul issues on both the big board and the Curb, all of which noted fractional gains on the day. Most of the comment on the case made by railroad men took for its chief point of interest the watchfulness of Colonel Henry W. Anderson of Nickel Plate and Chesapeake & Ohio fame, who, in guiding the destinies of the St. Paul minority, let no detail of the opening proceeding escape his scrutiny. Even so early as the present moment more than one railroad man in the financial district expressed perplexity as to whether the St. Paul's reorganization managers had a strong enough case to overcome the objections of the opposition.

Loans on Stocks and Bonds.

The Federal Reserve's weekly statement of loans on stocks and bonds by member banks for their own account showed changes in the last week of June varying considerably from the statement of New York City loans to brokers and dealers, published several days ago. That statement reported an increase of only $2,050,000; made up, however, from a decrease in out-of-town bank loans offset by an increase of $47,937,000 in loans for account of the New York institutions. Yesterday's statement of loans secured by stocks and bonds by the fifty-four member banks in New York City made the week's increase $44,629,000. In the whole system the week's increase of loans by member banks on stocks and bonds was $65,411,000, bringing the total $847,406,000 above the same date last year. Loans on stocks and bonds by all member banks in the system now stand at the highest point on record; similar loans by member banks in New York City are at the highest since January, 1926.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1927.

Stock Exchange call money continued easy, the surplus of funds forcing a break in the rate to 4 per cent., after renewals had been arranged at 4½. In the street trading, as low as 3¾ per cent. was paid. Withdrawals were small. In fixed periods, 60 days was done at 4½, and reports were heard of 90 days' at the same figure, but only for a light amount. Distant maturities were offered at 4¾ per cent. and a number of trades made that way. No changes were reported in business money, commercial paper and acceptances ruling quiet and unchanged.

" " " "	July 1, 1932 at $20.00 " "

All proceeds of stock purchased under this privilege will be used to retire bonds.

A Sinking Fund is provided sufficient to retire a substantial amount of these bonds by maturity without taking into consideration any additional monies resulting from purchase of stock.

BUSINESS: Nedick's Incorporated, a Delaware Corporation, has been formed to acquire the entire capital stock of the Burnee Corporation (a New York corporation), which for the past 13 years has successfully developed the chain store sale of Orange Drink under the trade name "Nedick's."

The Burnee Corporation was organized in 1914 by myself and associates with a capital of $25,000 to distribute under the most approved hygienic methods, a pure, wholesome Orange Drink which could be retailed to the public at a popular price.

During the first full year of operation 12 Nedick's Stores were opened doing a gross business of $63,181.76. Each succeeding year has shown a marked increase in stores and sales, 125 units today rendering service with a total business for the year which it is estimated will approximate $2,500,000, representing an increase of over 3,800% in sales since the first year. Today the employees number 603, and the customers served yearly are estimated to exceed twenty-five million. This growth has been accomplished entirely from earnings and without recourse to any financing other than the original investment of $25,000.

The Burnee Corporation's business today is confined to the sale over the counter of Orange Drink, Package Goods and Frankfurters, of which Orange Drink represents 65% of the total sales. The limited number of articles handled plus the cash feature of the business permits unusual economy in operation, the average daily inventory at the busiest time of the year not exceeding $40,000.

ASSETS: Other than this issue, neither this Company nor the operating Company will have any funded debt outstanding. The Burnee Corporation as of May 31, 1927, giving effect to the value of the Company's leaseholds as determined by Charles F. Noyes Co., Inc., on June 24, 1927, of $1,505,700, showed total assets of $4,108,812.27 and liabilities amounting to only $654,005.16. All cases are made direct by the Burnee Corporation, which conducts its own real estate business, profits from the sale of such leases and profits from subleasing, contributing to income.

EARNINGS: The net earnings of the Burnee Corporation, as certified to by Niles & Niles, certified public accountants, before Federal Income Taxes and after giving effect to the elimination of certain non-recurring charges are indicated below:

	1924	1925	(First 10 Months) *1926

* On October 31, 1926, the Burnee Corporation changed its fiscal year and started a new fiscal year as of that date.

The net earnings as shown above for the calendar years 1924 and 1925 and the first ten months of 1926, average $305,200.31, or over 4 times the interest requirements on these bonds.

The net earnings for the present fiscal year beginning October 31, 1926, including seven months of actual operation and five months estimated, are indicated to be in excess of $450,000, or over 6 times such interest requirements.

SECURITY: These bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by the pledge with The National City Bank of New York, Trustee, of the entire capital stock of the Burnee Corporation. The indenture will impose conservative restrictions as covered more fully in any letter.

MANAGEMENT: The business continues in the hands of myself as President, and Benjamin Natkins, General Manager, the executives principally responsible for the Company's successful development. No change in policy is planned, the proper expansion of the business being continued as favorable opportunities are found.

We offer these bonds for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us subject to the approval of counsel. Delivery of temporary or definitive certificates expected on or about July 28th. Audits of the Company's books by Niles & Niles. Leasehold appraisal by Charles F. Noyes Co., Inc. Legal details in connection with this issue will be passed upon by Beekman, Dogue, Clark & Griscom of New York for the Bankers, and Barber, Fackenthal & Giddings for the Company.

This offering does not represent new financing on the part of the Company, but is for the account of individuals.

NEW ISSUE

Western Power Light & Telephone Company

Two Year 6% Gold Notes

Listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange

Coupon notes in denominations of $500 and $1,000, interchangeable. Registerable as to principal only. Interest payable January 1 and July 1 in Chicago, without deduction for Normal Federal Income Tax not exceeding 2%. Central Trust Company of Illinois, Chicago, Trustee. Provision is made for redemption.

Business: Western Power Light & Telephone Company, incorporated under the laws of Delaware, was organized to acquire and consolidate under single management through stock ownership, a group of public utilities formerly controlled and operated by The Central States Telephone and Power Company and its subsidiaries, and other independent public utilities. The Company will own all the capital stocks of the subsidiary companies, except directors' qualifying shares.

The subsidiaries to be acquired own and operate public utility properties supplying 36 communities in Kansas and Oklahoma with one or more classes of service. Electric light and power is furnished in 18 communities and telephone service in 24 communities. The population served is estimated at more than 50,000 and the number of customers on June 15, 1927, was 11,061.

Security: These notes, in the opinion of counsel, will be a direct obligation of the Company and will be secured by deposit with the Trustee of all outstanding capital stocks of the subsidiary companies, except directors' qualifying shares.

The properties have been examined by Messrs. Hagenah & Erickson, Engineers, whose preliminary report states that the fair depreciated value of these properties, in part as of January 1, 1927, and in part as of June 1, 1927, was $2,166,316. This issue is less than 46.2% of the valuation given. The Company will have no other funded debt and the subsidiaries to be acquired will have no funded or other debt outstanding in the hands of the public.

Earnings: The combined earnings of the subsidiaries to be acquired by the Company, for the year ended May 31, 1927, as reported by Messrs. Edward Gore & Co., Certified Public Accountants, after giving effect to $9,510.51 of non-recurring expenses and before depreciation and Federal Taxes, are as follows:

Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes	195,128.72
Net Income before such Depreciation and Federal Taxes	$130,314.12
Annual Interest Requirement on $1,000,000 Two Year 6% Notes	$ 60,000.00

The above net income before depreciation and Federal Taxes for the year ended May 31, 1927, is equal to 2.17 times the annual interest requirement on this issue of notes.

Purpose of Issue: The proceeds from these notes, together with other financing, will be used to acquire stock ownership of the subsidiaries referred to above, retire $714,200 of bonds, provide additional working capital, and for other corporate purposes.

Management: The Company will be managed and the properties operated by men experienced in the public utility business.

All legal matters in connection with this issue under the direction of Messrs. Newman, Poppenhusen, Stern & Johnston, Chicago, for the Bankers and Burch, Litowich & Reyes, Salina, Kansas, for the Company. These notes are offered for delivery if, when and as issued and received by us, subject to approval of counsel. It is expected that permanent notes will be ready for delivery on or about July 14, 1927.

TO ACT ON REQUEST FOR OIL RESTRICTION

Oklahoma Commission to Meet to Consider Seminole Area Production Curtailment.

UMPIRE ASKS FURTHER CUT

Says the Greater Field is Still an "Unknown Quantity"—Lessors Make Problem Difficult.

The Oklahoma Corporation Commission has called a meeting for July 10 and 11 to act on the request of Ray M. Collins, umpire in the Seminole area, to curtail further production in the area.

Mr. Collins has asked that restrictions be applied to pipe line companies as well as to operators in the field, and that oil runs be prorated in all areas now listed as wildcat. He says that the greater Seminole field is still an unknown quantity.

"Not long ago we believed it to be practically outlined and that production would never reach the 400,000 barrels-a-day mark. Now we have quit guessing," he said.

"The new well of the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil Company in section 1-7-6, about 2½ miles south of Bowlegs pool, which is producing around 14,000 barrels a day of 40.7 gravity crude, brought things to a head. Innumerable oil companies and individuals own small leases in that immediate vicinity, and each will be eager to develop his property and obtain as much oil as possible in the shortest possible time."

What has made curtailment next to impossible has been the demands of lessors and royalty owners, especially when nearly expired leases may be difficult of renewal unless the property is developed to the fullest degree.

Crude oil production in the Seminole area was more than 2,000 barrels under the new peak of 432,590 barrels made in the 24 hours ended 7 A. M. on July 4, in the succeeding 24 hours to July 5, according to reports for both days which reached New York yesterday. The figures for districts by barrels follow, for the 24 hours ended 7 A. M. on the three days stated:

	July 5.	July 4.	July 3.
Seminole	101,000	102,000	101,000
Searight	24,000	36,000	35,000
Earlsboro	80,000	97,000	90,000
Bowlegs	183,000	*194,000	182,000
†Little River	13,450	13,590	*13,794
Total	430,450	*432,590	430,794

*Peak. †Name assigned new Cities Service pool.

The Independent Oil and Gas Company completed a well extending the Earlsboro pool one-fourth mile north on Tuesday night for 500 barrels an hour, and the flow increased to the rate of 15,000 barrels daily. Following the two 11,000 barrel wells of Amerada and Empire Gas and Fuel to the south, it is believed to indicate that big production in this field will be to the north.

Fuller Companies' Operations.

The George A. Fuller Company and the George A. Fuller Company, Ltd., reported unfinished business on April 30 as amounting to $34,641,913, against $50,802,998 at the same time in 1926. New business booked during the year amounted to $31,345,641, and work executed, to $47,506,726.

ASSAILS REVENUE HEAD FOR 'FUTILE' LETTERS

D. H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, has been sharply criticized by W. J. L. Banham, President of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, for sending "futile" communications to taxpayers.

"In this age of business efficiency why is your department sending out letters assuring those making correct income tax returns that the return has been examined and is considered to be correct as submitted?" says President Banham in a letter sent to Mr. Blair. "In another paragraph: 'The Commissioner reserves the right to reopen the case.'

"Why is such a futile thing as this type of communication permitted?

"If an income taxpayer has made an error in the return there would be need of communication, but why the Federal Government should go to the expense of paper and labor to do such a thing is past my understanding.

"This is certainly far from the realm of economy; indeed, it is mighty poor practice. It would seem as if the Internal Revenue Department of the Treasury has an excess of labor on its hands, and it would certainly be better for them to do absolutely nothing than to put in the time on such a futile undertaking as this."

ENJOINS 'WOLF OF WALL ST.'

Following his decision last month to enjoin David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," from fraudulent practices, Supreme Court Justice Callaghan in Brooklyn yesterday signed a formal order to that effect submitted by Attorney General Albert Ottinger.

Ayres, Wright & Co., Inc., a brokerage house, is enjoined with Lamar against further "wash" sales of the stock of the Consolidated Distributors, Inc. A raid on the brokerage house several months ago disclosed the evidence on which the court proceeding was based. Lamar was found in the offices at 115 Broadway. Action against Jesse Froelich, President of Consolidated Distributors, and also President of the Long Beach (L. I.) Board of Education, was dismissed on the ground that he was merely one of Lamar's victims.

NATIONAL POTTERS ELECT.

Also Adopt Resolution for American Valuation at Port of Entry.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 6.—The closing session of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters at the Odd Fellows' Hall today was marked by election of officers and the adoption of a resolution authorizing the Executive Committee to formulate plans to urge the American valuation of potteries at the port of entry.

The officers, who were installed immediately following the adoption of the resolution, include Thomas H. Durfey, Buffalo, N. Y., President; George H. Cartlidge, Trenton; George Chadwick, East Liverpool, Ohio; Louis Driver, Trenton; William H. Hill, Trenton; Joseph Smith, Philadelphia; Thomas Woods, Sebring, Ohio, and Frank Hull, East Liverpool, Ohio, Vice Presidents, and John D. McGillavary, Secretary-Treasurer.

$3,700,000 IN STOCKS TO BE OFFERED TODAY

Two stock offerings amounting to more than $3,700,000 are to be made today, one for a candy company and the other for an aluminum company.

An offering of 30,000 shares of Class A convertible preference stock and 30,000 shares of Class B common stock of the Schutter-Johnson Candy Company in units of one share of each class, priced at $41 a unit, to yield more than 8¼ per cent., will be made by Baker, Simonds & Co., Inc., and Nicol-Ford & Co., Inc., of Detroit and New York, and Crane, Parris & Co. of Washington, D. C. The proceeds will be used to consolidate the businesses and properties of the Schutter-Johnson Candy Company of Chicago, the Jefferson Candy Company of Illinois and the Schutter-Johnson Candy Company of this city.

George H. Burr & Co. will offer 75,000 shares of common stock of the Club Aluminum Utensil Company at $33 a share. In April, 1923, the company was organized with a capital of $10,000. This later was increased to $25,000. With this capital a $1,000,000 business has been built up within four years and a cash dividend of $100,000 has been paid. The company manufactures and sells heavy molded aluminum cooking utensils. It has two factories.

Two issues of stock of the National Manufacture and Stores Corporation will be offered soon, one an issue of $1,600,000 7 per cent. convertible first preferred stock, and the other 46,000 shares of common stock, both to be offered simultaneously by Watson & White. The company is being organized to acquire the Fox Manufacturing Company and eighteen retail furniture stores in the South. Owners of the Fox Manufacturing Company are accepting part of the common stock of the new corporation in full payment for all the stock of their company.

COURT ORDERS MOTT SALE.

Pottery Co. Must Pay $2,181,163 Within 5 Days or Lose Property.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 6.—Unless a mortgage for $2,000,000 held by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and interest aggregating $181,163.08, are satisfied within five days the real and personal property of the J. L. Mott Company, pottery manufacturers, is to be sold and the purchase price applied to liquidation of the debt, under a decree issued by Federal Judge John Rellstab.

It is understood that an effort is being made to reorganize the company, pay off the mortgage and keep the plant in operation. It is now in the hands of Charles H. Baker and Robert K. Bowman as receivers.

Former Judge George W. MacPherson, as special master, was assigned to conduct the sale. The property is to be disposed of at the main office of the plant here on a day to be designated by Mr. MacPherson. The day has not yet been set.

The decree said that the mortgage was made by the Mott Company to the Guaranty Trust, as trustee, on June 1, 1906. The mortgage secured bonds amounting to $2,000,000, all of which were said to be issued and outstanding. On June 1, 1926 the Mott concern defaulted in payment of the principal and $50,000 interest, and since that time the total has grown to a larger sum.

These bonds, in opinion of counsel, are an obligation of the District issued for an income producing public necessity and are payable from advalorem levies which have been levied on every piece of taxable real estate and improvements in the City of Denver and all other territory within the District. By virtue of the law under authority of which the bonds are issued, and the decisions of the Colorado State Supreme Court and the United States Supreme Court, these levies "constitute a perpetual lien on a parity with the tax lien for general state, county, city, town, and school taxes". (Language of the law sustained unanimously by the U. S. Supreme Court). The law provides that all levies are to be made at the same time and in the same manner and collected by the same City and County officers and machinery as all other City and County taxes.

The Moffat Tunnel Improvement District was organized under an Act of the Legislature of Colorado, as a political subdivision of the State of Colorado for the construction of a tunnel through the Continental Divide, which is to "be used for standard gauge railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, the transmission of power and the transportation of water, automobiles and other vehicles." * * * "without monopoly by any use, person or corporation." (Language of the U. S. Supreme Court decision).

COMPLETION AND RENTALS

The District Commission informs us, with the building of the railroad tunnel now practically completed, all engineering and constructional problems are passed and that the District will, in the near future, be receiving rental from a contract that has been made for rail transportation service through the tunnel which will substantially reduce the amount of ad valorem levy to be collected on all taxable real estate and improvements in Denver and other area within the District.

THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT and the Colorado State Supreme Court, by unanimous decisions have sustained the Constitutionality and legality of the Moffat Tunnel law and the levies therein provided. The legality and regularity of the bonds has been approved for us by Messrs. Storey, Thorndike, Palmer & Dodge, of Boston.

Twelve-Year 6% Sinking Fund Debenture Gold Bonds

Dated: July 1, 1927 Due: July 1, 1939

The payment of principal and interest is unconditionally guaranteed by William Randolph Hearst

Trustee: STRAUS TRUST COMPANY, Chicago

Price: Par and accrued interest to yield 6%

Interest coupons payable January 1 and July 1. Registerable as to principal. Principal and interest payable at the Straus Trust Company, Chicago, or at the office of S. W. Straus & Co., Incorporated, New York City. Debenture bonds in coupon form in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100. 2% Federal Income tax paid by the borrowing corporation. The borrowing corporation agrees to reimburse the holders of these debenture bonds, if requested within four months after payment, for the following state taxes: Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Vermont 4 mills taxes; Maryland 4½ mills tax; District of Columbia and Virginia 5 mills taxes; New Hampshire State tax up to 3% of interest per annum; Massachusetts State Income tax up to 6% of interest per annum. Callable as a whole or in part on thirty days' notice at 102½ and interest up to and including July 1, 1931; at 102 and interest after July 1, 1931, and on or before July 1, 1935; and at 101½ and interest after July 1, 1935, and before July 1, 1939.

Borrowing Corporation: These debenture bonds are the direct obligation of the Evening American Publishing Company, publisher of the Chicago Evening American, which has the largest evening newspaper paid circulation in Chicago, averaging 561,796 copies as reported for six months ending March 31, 1927. After completion of the refunding of existing indebtedness these debenture bonds will constitute the company's only funded debt.

All the capital stock of the borrowing corporation except directors' qualifying shares has been pledged with the Trustee as security for these debenture bonds.

Earnings: The Chicago Evening American, founded in 1900, has been built up into one of the most profitable of the Hearst newspapers. Its gross earnings and its net earnings for the calendar years 1924, 1925 and 1926, available for interest, after depreciation and Federal Income taxes, as certified by Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery, accountants and auditors, were as follows:

	GROSS	NET
1924	8,791,491.03	1,239,987.06

This average is more than 3.1 times the interest charges on these debenture bonds. The average net earnings for the years 1925 and 1926 were more than 3.5 times the interest charges.

Sinking Fund: Under the provisions of the trust indenture a sinking fund will be created through which $750,000 in debenture bonds will be retired annually after the first year, leaving a balance maturing July 1, 1939, of $1,500,000. The debenture bonds will be retired by the sinking fund either through purchase at a price not exceeding the prevailing call price or by redemption by lot at call prices as set forth above.

Purpose of Issue: The proceeds of this issue are to be used to retire existing indebtedness and for other corporate purposes.

Guarantee: William Randolph Hearst personally and unconditionally guarantees the payment of principal and interest on the entire issue of debenture bonds. He is the owner of the largest and most valuable group of newspapers and magazines in the world, doing a business in excess of $150,000,000 a year, and of other highly valuable city properties.

Complete information including balance sheet of the Company, as certified to by Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery as of December 31, 1926, adjusted to give effect to this financing, refunding of existing indebtedness, etc., is contained in a descriptive circular, which may be had upon application to the undersigned. $20,602,000 BONDS ON MARKET TODAY

Real Estate, Industrial and Railroad Issues Among Listed Offerings.

$9,000,000 LOAN IN CHICAGO

$2,250,000 and $1,250,000 Items Follow—$1,500,000 Deal With Utility Made.

New issues of bonds offered for public subscription today total $20,602,000 and comprise real estate, municipal, railroad and industrial securities.

The largest single issue is that of $9,000,000 twelve-year 6 per cent. sinking fund debentures of The Chicago American, which is being offered at par and accrued interest by S. W. Straus & Co. The issue is callable as a whole or in part on thirty days' notice at 102½ and interest up to and including July 1, 1931; at 102 and interest after July 1, 1931, to July 1, 1935; at 101½ and interest after July 1, 1935, to July 1, 1939. Proceeds of the issue will be used to retire existing indebtedness and for other corporate purposes.

The bonds are a direct obligation og The Evening American Publishing Company, and are unconditionally guaranteed by William Randolph Hearst. All capital stock of the borrowing corporation, with the exception of directors' shares, has been pledged as security. Average net earnings for the last three years, after depreciation and Federal income taxes, were $1,675,939, and for 1926, they were $1,931,362, or 3.37 interest charges.

Offering of a new issue of $2,250,000 Union Refrigerator Transit Company 5 per cent. equipment trust certificates, Series G, due from Jan. 1, 1928, to July 1, 1942, is being made today by Lee, Higginson & Co. at prices to yield 5.15 per cent. The certificates, issued under the Philadelphia plan, are secured by 1,100 new steel under-frame refrigerator cars costing more than $3,000,000.

The issue of $1,250,000 Nedick's, Inc., ten-year 6 per cent. collateral trust sinking fund bonds, due on July 1, 1937, is offered today at par and interest by R. F. De Vos & Co., Inc., and the Metropolitan Security Company, Inc. Each $1,000 bond will carry a detachable warrant entitling the holder to purchase twenty shares of common stock of the corporation. Up to and including July 1, 1929, the subscription price of the stock will be $13.50 a share; thereafter to and including July 1, 1930, $15 a share; during the following year, $17 a share, and during the next year, at the end of which the warrant will expire, $20 a share. Nedick's, Inc., a Delaware corporation, owns all of the capital stock of the Burnee Corporation, the operating company.

Offering will be made early next week of $1,500,000 of the Pennsylvania State Water Corporation first lien 5½ per cent. gold bonds, Series A, by P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., who announced yesterday that they had purchased the issue. Proceeds of the sale will be employed to retire all outstanding funded debt and for the acquisition of additional properties.

NEW PHILADELPHIA BONDS.

City Will Issue $10,000,000 Aug. 1 to Meet Pressing Needs.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—To meet City Treasury needs for the next few weeks, until tax receipts return to normal, the city will offer for sale $10,000,000 worth of bonds about Aug. 1, it was decided today by Mayor Kendrick.

The issue will comprise bonds authorized but unissued, and supplements a $10,000,000 issue sold in May and a $3,000,000 Councilmanic flotation of last week. The latter has been useless in meeting obligations owing to the refusal of City Controller Hadley to recognize its legality.

The new bonds will be used for the August payroll and toward paying off a $7,847,734 note held by seven local banks.

New Securities on Market Reach $24,307,000 Today

A total of $24,307,000 of new securities will be publicly offered today by New York banking houses and syndicates. This sum is a sharp increase from the meagre offerings of the preceding days of the week. Of the total, $20,602,000 consists of bonds, and the remainder, of stocks, including both common and preferred.

Real estate	$9,000,000
Municipals	8,102,000
Railroad	2,250,000
Industrial	1,250,000

BUDAPEST BONDS DROP ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Bond sales on the New York Stock Exchange were more than $4,000,000 larger yesterday than on the previous day, and firm prices were general, both for foreign and domestic securities.

An exception was furnished by the City of Budapest 6s, which were brought out recently and are being traded in on a when-issued basis. As a result of the dissolution of the syndicate, these bonds, which had been held at the original offering price of 92, broke to 87, later recovering part of the loss. Sales of the Budapest 6s amounted to more than $190,000 face value.

Higher prices were established, however, for German Government 7s, Hungarian 7½s, Japanese 6½s, several French Government and industrial issues and Polish 8s, the last-named being influenced by the arrangement of a credit which will precede a long-term loan to Poland. Several Italian issues were fractionally lower.

Considerable of the activity in domestic bonds centred on convertible issues and others which have been fluctuating rather widely as a result of the dissolution of syndicates, but standard investment issues also were in demand at firm prices. Erie convertible 4s, series D, gained more than a point, and Erie refunding 5s were fractionally higher. There was activity also in Goodyear 5s, Chesapeake Corporation 5s, Union Pacific 4½s, Shell Union 5s and other issues.

COLOMBIAN BONDS GO TO HALLGARTEN & CO.

Award of $25,000,000 Issue Is Made After Delay—Public Offering in Month.

Hallgarten & Co., who headed a banking syndicate which advanced a $5,000,000 short-term loan to the Republic of Colombia last March, have obtained a $25,000,000 issue of the Republic's twenty-five year 6 per cent. bonds. Three New York syndicates submitted bids for the bonds, which were scheduled for award about three weeks ago, but a decision on the tenders was held up by technical details.

The $5,000,000 notes of Colombia were sold in the New York market on a 5 per cent. discount basis. They will mature on Aug. 1. Part of the proceeds of the bond issue will be devoted to taking up these notes, and the remainder will be used principally for the development of the country's railroad facilities.

It is understood that the bonds will not be offered publicly for about a month and that they will be priced in the neighborhood of 95. The group headed by Hallgarten & Co. has been unusually active in South and Central American financing in the last year. It has floated various Colombian department, municipal and bank issues; has sold about $70,000,000 of the bonds of Chile and has underwritten loans to Uruguay and other countries.

TWO SYNDICATES GET CAMDEN BONDS

Most of Three Issues Totaling $2,162,000 to Be Placed on Market Today.

TEACHERS' FUND INVESTS

New Jersey State Organization Takes All of Princeton's $750,000 Offering.

Attention in the municipal bond market yesterday centred on the award of the issue of $2,162,000 City of Camden, N. J., 4¼ per cent. bonds, due serially from 1928 to 1965. Eldredge & Co. and M. M. Freeman & Co. of Philadelphia were high bidders for the $1,466,000 improvement bonds at 100.35, with a syndicate headed by Lehman Brothers second with a tender of 100.11. The issue of $565,000 school bonds went to a syndicate composed of George B. Gibbons & Co., Inc.; E. H. Rollins & Sons and Roosevelt & Son at a joint bid of 100.71, with the Eldredge-Freeman group second with 100.45. The issue of $131,000 water bonds was sold to the Gibbons syndicate at 100.41.

Offering of $1,461,000 of the issue of $1,466,000 City of Camden improvement 4¼s is being made today by the Eldredge-Freeman syndicate at prices to yield 4 to 4.10 per cent. The issues of $565,000 school bonds and $131,000 water bonds are being offered by the Gibbons syndicate at prices to net 4 to 4.10 per cent.

Sale of the issue of $750,000 Town of Princeton, N. J., 4½ per cent. school bonds to the New Jersey State Teachers' Fund was announced yesterday. The price paid was par. This sale was accomplished without advertising for bids.

All bids were rejected on the issue of $250,000 Town of Westfield, N. J., school district 4½s. H. L. Allen & Co. were high bidders at 101.3069, with Lehman Brothers second at 100.26 and Harris, Forbes & Co. third at 100.16. It is understood that the municipality will endeavor to sell the bonds as 4½s.

Offering of the issue of $2,265,000 City of Richmond, Va., 4¼ per cent. bonds, due on July 1, 1961, is being made today at 101.82, to yield 4.15 per cent., by a group composed of the American National Bank, the American Trust Company and Wheat, Gelleher & Co., Inc., of Richmond.

A new issue of $500,000 Roosevelt Water Conservation District, Maricopa County, Ariz., 6 per cent. bonds, maturing serially on July 1, 1933 to 1937, is being offered today by B. J. Van Ingen & Co. and Eastman, Dillon & Co. at par and interest.

J. S. Rippel & Co. are offering today an issue of $430,000 City of Plainfield, N. J., 4¼ per cent. school bonds, due serially on June 1, 1928 to 1954, at prices to yield 4.125 per cent.

A new issue of $2,750,000 Moffat Tunnel Improvement District, Col., 5 per cent. bonds, due from 1974 to 1983, is being offered today by R. M. Grant & Co., at prices to net 4.50 per cent. The district, which includes the City and County of Denver, will soon receive the rental from a contract which has been made for rail transportation service through the tunnel. The construction is of two tunnels, one of which, the water tunnel, was completed on Feb. 18 last. Of the 6.1 miles of railroad tunnel, there remained only sixty-seven feet uncompleted on July 1.

The principal issues which will be awarded today are $1,000,000 High Point, N. C.; $385,000 Porto Rico public improvement and refunding bonds of the municipalities of Ponce and Villalba, and $525,000 Verona, N. J., school district bonds.

Southern California Edison Plan.

The Southern California Edison Company has applied to the California Railroad Commission for authority to sell 400,000 shares of $25 par series C 5% per cent. preferred stock at not less than $23.50 a share. If approved this will be the first offering of this series over the counter. The contemplated offering is half of an authorized issue of 800,000 shares.

These Bonds are a direct and general obligation of the entire City, payable from the levy of an annual unlimited ad valorem tax on all the taxable property of the City. Bonds have been validated by decree of the Circuit Court of Broward County, which under the law provides that thereafter the same are incontestable.

Fort Lauderdale, county seat of Broward County, is rapidly becoming one of the most important cities on the East Coast. It is not only a leading Winter tourist resort, but it is developing rapidly as a leading commercial and business center. Commercial and industrial development of Fort Lauderdale is assured by three important factors: First, it is the natural gateway to a large portion of the great and tremendously fertile Everglades back country; Second, the location of Bay Mabel deep sea harbor partly within the City limits; Third, the very large electrical power plant built here by the Florida Power & Light Co., which, with its transmission lines, will cost $7,500,000.

The present offering is part of an authorized issue of $2,000,000 bonds voted by the taxpayers of the City of Fort Lauderdale towards the construction of Bay Mabel Harbor about two and one-half miles South of the business center of said City and one-half of which harbor is located within the City of Fort Lauderdale, and the other half is located in the City of Hollywood, which City has also voted $2,000,000 of bonds towards its construction. Other leading financial interests have pledged $2,000,000 additional, making $6,000,000 that has been provided for developing Bay Mabel into a 35-foot deep sea harbor with the necessary jetties, wharfs, docks and warehouses capable of handling the largest ocean liners.

It is well known that Venezuela has recently developed into one of the greatest oil producing nations in the world and several of the leading oil companies having production in this territory are already negotiating for sites on Bay Mabel Harbor for storage tanks and terminal facilities with which to serve Florida and the Southeastern portion of the United States. One of the largest of these companies contemplates the construction of a large oil refinery on this harbor to refine crude oil to be brought from Venezuela in its own fleet of large oil tankers.

Early this year Bay Mabel Harbor was visited by practically every member of the Congressional Committee on Rivers and Harbors and they were favorably impressed with the future of this harbor as a U. S. Naval Base, in addition to its strategic position as a large commercial harbor.

The City of Fort Lauderdale, including Bay Mabel Harbor, is served by the main double track line of the Florida East Coast Railroad and by the new line of the Seaboard Air Line Railway. The main line of the Dixie Highway also runs through Fort Lauderdale, connecting it by a net work of hard surfaced motor roads with every important city in Florida.

History and Business: The Club Aluminum Utensil Company was organized this year under the laws of Illinois to take over the assets and business of The Club Aluminum Development Company. The business was started in April, 1923, with an original capital of $10,000, which was later increased to $25,000. With this capital, a net worth of over $1,000,000 has been built up from earnings within four years and a cash dividend of $100,000 has been paid.

The Company is engaged in the manufacture and sale of heavy moulded aluminum cooking utensils. It has two modern factories, one located in Chicago to serve the Middle West, and one in Baltimore to serve the East and the Pacific Coast.

The inherent strength and soundness of the Company's unique merchandising methods have made possible its phenomenal growth. The ideas of health, tastiness and economy in food preparation are impressed on the consumer. By means of demonstration luncheons in private homes, the Company's products have been introduced by its representatives to over 250,000 homes in this country.

Sales and Earnings: The volume of business has shown rapid growth. The following statement shows the Gross Sales as they appear on the records of the Company and Earnings as audited by Certified Public Accountants:

Year ending June 30, 1925	$1,133,177.29	$128,648.09	$.48

(With June, 1927, estimated by the management of the Company)

Earnings for the last four months have been at an annual rate of approximately $4.00 a share on this Common Stock.

Balance Sheet: The audited balance sheet as of May 31, 1927, giving effect to this financing, shows an excellent financial condition with total Current Assets of $1,726,058.18 as against total Current Liabilities of $218,503.99. This is a ratio of over 7.8 to 1 and leaves a net working capital of $1,507,554.19. This compares with a net working capital of $495,330.20 as of June 30, 1926.

Dividends: The management has announced its intention of declaring a quarterly cash dividend on this Common Stock of 50 cents per share payable October 1, 1927.

Management: The men who have been responsible for its profitable development and expansion will continue to manage this enterprise. All of the important executives in both the production and sales divisions of this business have a substantial financial interest in it.

Listing: This Common Stock is listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange. The Company will make application in due course to the New York Stock Exchange for listing these shares there.

All legal details in connection with this issue are subject to the approval of Messrs. Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft for the Bankers and Messrs. Cassel, Potter & Bentley for the Company. We offer this Common Stock if, as and when authorized, issued and received by us, subject to approval of our counsel of all legal proceedings in connection therewith.

TREND UNCERTAIN IN STEEL INDUSTRY

Production at Low Point for Week—Reviews Unable to Predict Future.

LITTLE CHANGE IN PRICES

Producers Reported Attempting to Hold Margin of Profit—Pig Iron Sales Better.

Neither of the weekly iron and steel reviews this week has drawn definite conclusions as to the trend of business. The Iron Trade Review says that on the basis of current operating rates and the experience of the last three years, the decline in pig iron production may be expected to continue through July, but at a diminished pace, while The Iron Age reports that as the trade enters the second half of the year "there are indications of some improvement in business and a broader effort of producers to hold at least the present margin between prices and costs."

"Although the amount of buying repeats the fairly steady rate of the past few weeks," The Iron Age continues, "Chicago reports that the railroads are actively seeking miscellaneous tonnages for maintaining rolling stock. Shipments still exceed orders, but heat and the holiday have cut heavily into operations. As a measure of these adjusting influences is the state of the Steel Corporation's production, which will probably show ten points less for the week, or 55 per cent. of capacity for the time being.

"A balancing of demand and operations is looked for this month. Expansion seems to wait alone on consumers getting a clearer idea than they now have of what will be their needs for the coming months."

"Due to the heat," The Iron Trade Review says, "which has worked the greatest hardship upon steel mills, and the July 4 holiday, the real trend of the iron and steel markets has been obscured during the past week. Pig iron sales are expanding, but the order books of the furnaces are light for the season."

Both of the Iron Age composite prices remain unchanged from last week, that for pig iron at $15.71 a ton and that for finished steel at 2.367 cents a pound.

The Iron Trade Review's composite price on fourteen leading iron and steel products this week is $36.49, comparing with $36.50 last week and $36.70 two weeks previously.

CARRIERS IN STEEL MARKET.

Orders and Inquiries Involve Large Amounts of Metal.

Eastern carriers are in the market for 110,000 tons of rails, according to The Iron Trade Review. Southern alone has placed 42,000 tons. Track fastening orders at Chicago, including some from the New York Central, aggregate 15,000 to 20,000 kegs of spikes and bolts and 4,000 to 5,000 tons of tie plates. Coal mine operators have placed orders for light rails for shipment upon termination of the bituminous coal strike.

Railroads operating in Michigan are adding to their equipment as follows, according to the Michigan Railway Association: Pere Marquette, 1,521 freight cars, 10 switching and 10 freight locomotives; Grand Trunk, 1,120 freight cars, 2 passenger coaches, 12 passenger and 10 switching locomotives; Michigan Central, 25 coaches; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, 250 freight cars, to be assigned to Michigan lines.

The Lehigh Valley inquiry reported yesterday was for repairs on 500 gondolas and 500 box cars, and not for the purchase of 1,000 new box cars. The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe has ordered 10 dining cars, 15 baggage and mail cars and 8 buffet library cars from the Pullman Car and Manufacturing Corporation, involving about $900,000.

The third quarter freight car requirements of the Liquid Carbonic Company are estimated at 240 box cars, of which 25 per cent. consist of 40-foot automobile cars. This estimate is 10 per cent. above the actual number shipped in the third quarter of 1926.

The Worthington Pump and Machinery Corporation has received an order for 204 locomotive feed water heaters from the Boston & Maine, involving about $200,000.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works has placed one of the largest orders for crane equipment in several years, involving 44 ten-ton electric overhead cranes and thirteen crane bridges for the company's new machine shop at Eddystone. The order went to the Niles-Crane Corporation, a Niles-Bement-Pond subsidiary.

The Chicago Northwestern Railway has contracted with the General Railway Signal Company for a system of continuous train control between Chicago and Omaha on the main line.

Bids for the proposed Hudson River bridge at New York are estimated to require 125,000 to 130,000 tons of steel and are expected to be taken from July 15 to Aug. 1.

The New York Central is inquiring for 500 more tons for its new Buffalo station for an underground passageway. The Norfolk & Western is in the market for 1,000 tons for a crane runway. The Lehigh Valley wants 150 tons for a Newark building, the Baltimore & Ohio 300 tons for a bridge and the Pennsylvania 300 tons for bridge work.

The Atlantic Bridge Company has taken a contract for 2,000 tons for a bridge from Norfolk to Portsmouth. Nashville Bridge Works took 300 tons for an Alabama highway bridge, and American Bridge took 150 tons for a Baltimore & Ohio bridge.

JUNE IRON PRODUCTION SHARPLY CURTAILED

Production of pig iron in June, as reported yesterday by The Iron Age, was sharply curtailed, and chiefly by steel companies. The output for the month was 3,089,651 gross tons, or 102,988 tons per day, and compared with 3,390,940 tons, or 109,385 tons a day, in May. Of the reduction of 6,397 tons in the daily average, merchant furnaces accounted for only 21 tons.

On July 1, out of a total of 362 furnaces, 198 were in blast, producing at a rate of 100,240 tons a day. On June 1, the number was 211, at a daily producing rate of 107,445 tons. The net loss of 13 furnaces represented nine Steel Corporation and three independent furnaces and one merchant producer. The last time there were fewer than 200 stacks in service was Sept. 1, 1925, when the number was 192.

While the drop from May to June this year was 5.87 per cent as against 3.97 per cent. last year, the half year's output, 19,431,000 tons, comes to about 2 per cent. under the 19,848,000 tons of the first six months of 1926.

The month's output during the last three years compares as follows, in tons:

April	3,422,226	3,450,122	3,258,958

December	3,091,663	3,220,448	2,961,702
November	3,238,707	3,022,606	3,509,673
October	3,334,182	3,023,370	2,471,127
September	3,136,293	2,726,108	2,063,264
August	3,200,479	2,704,476	1,887,145
July	3,223,388	2,064,024	1,784,899

	1927.	1926.	1925.	1924.

The production of May, 1923, amounting to 3,837,604 tons, was the largest on record. As against that month's daily average of 124,764 tons, the highest of war time was 113,942 in September, 1918. The smallest since the war was 27,889 tons, in July, 1921, which was also the lowest since December, 1908.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY MORE WIDELY OWNED

The Southern Railway now has the largest number of stockholders in its history, totaling about 16,800, as compared with 14,876 at the time of the annual meeting last October, 14,215 at the end of 1925, 14,726 at the end of 1924, and 14,917 at the end of 1923. It is understood that the National City Company placed approximately 100,000 shares with 2,000 investors.

The following table gives the twenty largest registered holders at the time of the annual meeting in October and a year previously. They held 352,526 shares of the then outstanding 1,200,000 shares, or 29.4 per cent., against 370,966, or 31 per cent. for the leading twenty in 1925, and 445,992, or 37.1 per cent. for the leaders in 1924.

It is assumed that much of the stock listed in the table in the names of brokerage houses is for the account of Case, Pomeroy & Co., Inc., which house interested clients in the stock several years ago. Frederick H. Brownell and Thomas A. Dooling are understood to be nominees for Jeremiah Milbank. George F. Baker is shown as having disposed of his 10,000 shares of stock. The table follows:

SOUTHERN PACIFIC DIVIDEND

Wall Street Hears Annual Rate Will Be Raised in November.

Rumors persist in the financial district that the Southern Pacific Company may increase its dividend rate this year. The next dividend meeting will be on Aug. 15. It is predicted that only the regular $1.50 disbursement will be declared then but that at the meeting in November an increase in the annual rate to 7 per cent. from 6 per cent. will be ordered.

The termination of the company's building program in Mexico after years of development is seen as one reason for a higher dividend. The last 100 miles of track have just been completed by the Southern Pacific of Mexico, linking the Southern Pacific system with the National Railways of Mexico and establishing through traffic to Mexico City.

I. C. C. Values St. Louis & Eastern.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—Tentative valuation of $1,460,788 has been fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on property owned and used by the St. Louis, Troy and Eastern Railroad, as of June, 1918. The company's capitalization on the same date was $1,450,000 and its book investment account $1,592,068. For the St. Louis and Illinois belt line, a subsidiary, the commission fixed a valuation of $170,000. The belt line's capitalization at the valuation date was $250,000 and its book investment $229,050.

Discuss Refunding New Haven Debt.

Officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad were here yesterday for another conference with their bankers in connection with the proposed refunding of the $87,000,000 Government debt of the railroad. It is expected that two or three months will be required to complete the negotiations for the repayment of this obligation.

HISTORY: The Schutter-Johnson Candy Company of Delaware was incorporated in June, 1927, to consolidate the following three companies: The Schutter-Johnson Candy Co. of Chicago, The Jefferson Candy Co. of Illinois and the Schutter-Johnson Candy Co. of New York. The consolidated Company will have plants located in Chicago and New York, which are strategic centers for distribution.

The Company, which is one of the largest manufacturers of bar candies, produces and markets such nationally known candy bars as "Old Nick," "Bit-O-Honey" and "Orange Grove."

EARNINGS: Business of the consolidated companies has grown steadily. The consolidated statement of earnings after Federal Taxes of the Companies which now constitute Schutter-Johnson Candy Co. for the two years and three months ending March 31st, 1927, based on audits by Lawrence Scudder & Co., after eliminating certain non-recurring charges, are as follows:

Year	Sales	Net Profit After Taxes	"A" Dividend Times Earned	Per Share Class "B"
First quarter, 1927	812,178	78,641	*4.36	†.60

*Number of times "A" dividend for quarter was earned.
†After "A" dividend for quarter.

During 1926 an extensive merchandising campaign in New England was carried on, the cost of which is reflected in the slightly lower earnings for that year. The benefits from the campaign are reflected in the results for the first quarter of 1927.

BALANCE SHEET: The balance sheet shows total current assets of $664,415.11 and current liabilities of $208,011.77, a ratio of more than 3 to 1. Net working capital amounts to $456,403.34.

DIVIDENDS: Dividends on the Class "A" Convertible Preference Stock accumulate from July 1, 1927, at $2.40 per share per annum. The first quarterly dividend is to be payable October 1, 1927.

The directors have announced their intention of placing the Class "B" common stock on a $1.00 annual dividend basis with an initial payment of 25c per share on October 1, 1927.

MANAGEMENT: No change is contemplated in the management and those who have been identified with the success of the business are continuing in the management.

Legal details subject to approval by Messrs. Campbell, Bulkley & Ledyard, Detroit, and Messrs. Katz & Sommerich, New York, counsel for the Bankers, and Messrs. McNab, Holmes & Long, Chicago, counsel for the Company. Auditors—Lawrence Scudder & Co., Chicago and New York.

I.C.C. HEARS ST. PAUL ON REORGANIZATION

New Company's Application for Termination of Receivership Is Made.

BITTER STRUGGLE EXPECTED

Minority Bondholders Oppose Plan Outlined by Kuhn, Loeb and National City Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Termination of the receivership of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, which is being sought by interests represented by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Company of New York, was the subject of hearings begun today before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The question came before the commission on application of the newly formed Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad to take over the properties and obligations and refund the finances of the old Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, which operates 11,000 miles in twelve Northwestern States.

Opposition to the plan of reorganization was voiced today by a Bondholders' Defense Committee, represented by Colonel Henry W. Anderson, who fought the Nickel Plate merger as counsel for minority interests and who likewise has been appearing for the minority group fighting the proposed unification of the Chesapeake & Ohio with the Pere Marquette and Erie railroads.

The Bondholders' Defense Committee, headed by Edwin C. Jameson of New York, is said to control some $17,000,000 in Milwaukee bonds, of which more than 14,000,000 constitute Mr. Jameson's personal or corporate holdings.

The applicant was represented before the commission by Robert T. Swaine of the New York firm of Cravath, Henderson & De Gersdorff. Thomas B. Gay of Richmond was associated with Colonel Anderson in the legal array retained by the Bondholders' Defense Committee. Charles D. Mahaffie, director of the commission's finance division, presided at the hearing, which is expected to continue at least two weeks and possibly throughout July.

Bitter Struggle Is Indicated.

That the hearing may develop into a bitterly contested struggle between opponents and proponents of the plan of reorganization was indicated at today's session. Counsel came to grips over testimony offered by Mr. Swaine in support of the pending application.

Colonel Anderson objected to the incorporation in the record of testimony on the Gooding bill, which proposed to extend the life and reduce the interest rate on Government loans to railroads. He also objected to the introduction of the commission's report on its inquiry into the affairs of the Milwaukee. These objections were sustained by Mr. Mahaffie. Thereupon, Mr. Swaine gave notice that he would ask the commission as a whole to rule on the admissibility of the proposed evidence.

Three witnesses were heard today. Walter V. Wilson, Controller of the Milwaukee receivers, identified a statement dealing with interest charges and another showing the comparison of the road.

A. E. Lodge of Chicago, a road engineer, expressed the opinion that the value of the property under consideration, as of Jan. 21, 1927, based on the rules laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the O'Fallon case, was $640,000,000 as a minimum. This figure, he said, included only the property used for transportation purposes. If other factors were given weight, he testified, the value could be fixed at $1,500,000,000.

William W. K. Sparrow, a former Vice President of the Milwaukee, now chief of the road's accounting division, was cross-examined as to the operations of the road under the receivers. He said $17,000,000 was expended by the receivers on betterments since June 1, 1925. Mr. Sparrow was still on the stand when hearings adjourned for the day at 4:30 o'clock.

An outstanding feature of the Pacific Company was a provision asking authority to issue several classes of new securities. They included $106,-300,096, principal amount, of fifty-year 5 per cent. mortgage bonds, $182,873,693 of 6 per cent. convertible bonds, $118,845,800 par amount of preferred stock and 1,174,060 shares of common stock without nominal or par value.

Authority also was asked for the issuance from time to time of such additional amounts of preferred stock up to $91,436,900 and of such additional amounts of common stock up to 914,369 shares as may be necessary to effect the conversion of the convertible adjustment mortgage bonds. The application pointed out that provision has been made for raising by assessments about $10,000,-000 in cash, of which a large amount was to be set aside for additions and betterments.

Would Pay Debt to Government.

The reorganization plan contemplated the immediate adjustment of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul's debt of $55,000,000 to the Government. Among the objects sought by the plan of reorganization were:

A net reduction in the amount of fixed interest-bearing securities of approximately $180,000,000 and a net reduction of annual fixed interest charges of funded debts from about $21,800,000 to less than $14,000,000.

Release of $18,000,000 of general mortgage bonds to secure the notes held by the United States Government.

Provision for future requirements.

At the time of the receivership the Milwaukee had no means of providing for its capital requirements. The present earnings of the road are about $20,000,000 a year.

The reorganization plan was approved by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson at Chicago. It is designed to meet all problems through the agency of the "Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Company," which seeks the commission's authority to take over the property of the old road, operate its lines, assume contracts and mortgages and issue additional stocks and bonds. John J. McCloy, 52 William Street, New York City, signed the pending application as President of the new company.

When the Milwaukee was offered for sale at auction at Butte, Mont., in November, 1926, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Company submitted the only bid. The purchase price was $140,000,000. The purchasers were to assume all outstanding obligations. The two New York firms represent a major portion of the security holders joined together with a view to rehabilitating the property.

Pullman's Income Increased.

The report of the Pullman Company for May shows gross earnings of $6,418,514, against $6,470,376 in May, 1926, and net income of $868,465 after taxes, against $583,483. For the first five months of 1927, gross earnings were $32,470,879, against $32,321,990 in five months of 1926, and net income after taxes was $3,400,751, against $2,837,212.

NET INCOME IN MAY LESS FOR CARRIERS

Class I Roads Report Decline of $2,465,799 to Total of $85,663,999.

RETURN OF 4.70% YEARLY

Gross Operating Revenues Gain One-tenth of 1%—Twenty-eight Lines Run at Loss.

Class I railroads of the United States earned a net operating income in May, 1927, aggregating $85,663,-999, which represented a decrease of $2,465,799 from the $88,129,798 reported for May, 1926. The income in last May was at the annual rate of return of 4.70 per cent. on the property investment of the carriers, as compared to a rate of 4.96 per cent. in the like month of last year. These figures, made public yesterday by the Bureau of Railway Economics, are based on the reports of 183 railroads, representing a total mileage of 238,267 miles.

Gross operating revenues for May, 1927, of these roads totaled $518,568,-951, as against $518,042,260 in May, 1926, or an increase of one-tenth of 1 per cent.

The following table shows the results of operations of the Class I roads in May and in the first five months of 1927 as compared with the same periods last year:

Twenty-eight Class I railroads operated at a loss in May, 1927, of which ten were in the Eastern district, four in the Southern district and fourteen in the Western district.

The net railway operating income of the carriers by districts for the first five months of 1927, together with the rate of return on property investment, is shown in the following table:

	Net Income.	Per cent. Return
New England Region.....	$15,684,242	5.48

The Bureau of Economics holds that, as railway earnings and business fluctuate from year to year, only the showing of results over a period of years can indicate the real trend of railway returns, and in this connection it reports that the rate of return on property investment of the Class I roads of the country for the five years ended on May 31, 1927, has averaged 4.55 per cent.

Surplus Freight Cars Increase.

Surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service on the Class I railroads of the United States on June 23 totaled 281,702, as compared with 277,115 on June 15, the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association reports.

LONG ISLAND R. R. FREIGHT.

Through Service to Be Handled With Electric Locomotives.

The Long Island Railroad Company announced yesterday that beginning tomorrow through freight traffic will be interchanged between that road, the Pennsylvania and the New York, New Haven & Hartford by the use solely of electrically operated trains. Electrification of the Bay Ridge division of the Long Island, between the transfer bridges at Bay Ridge and Fresh Pond is nearing completion, according to the announcement, and within a few weeks electric operation will be extended to include the entire freight service on this division.

Electric locomotives will displace steam engines in moving freight from Bay Ridge to Port Morris, the Bronx, via the Bay Ridge division, and the Hell Gate Bridge route of the New York Connecting Railroad. This service will provide for the handling of freight electrically between the waterfront at Bay Ridge and points on the New Haven as far east as New Haven, Conn.

The Long Island has purchased fourteen electric locomotives in connection with the Bay Ridge electrification, all of which have been delivered and some of which are in service. The estimated cost of the Bay Ridge program is more than $4,000,-000, it is reported. More than eighty-five miles of main track are included in the program. The single phase system with overhead catenary construction, similar to that in use by the Pennsylvania and the New Haven, has been adopted.

TRAIN PORTERS TO PROTEST

Meet Tonight to Oppose Pullman Co. Statement on Wage Question.

The Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters will hold a mass meeting at Grace Congregational Church, 308 West 139th Street, at 8:30 o'clock tonight in protest, it was announced, against what was termed the Pullman Company's false announcements that the United States Board of Mediation had favored the Pullman Company's Union as the official spokesman of its employes.

A. Phillip Randolph, general organizer of the brotherhood, who said his organization represented 65 per cent. of the Pullman porters and maids, asserted that no decision on the brotherhood's demands was expected until next month. He said the brotherhood sought an increase in pay, the abolition of tips, reduction of hours to the time of other classes of employes and the elimination of occupational expenses which were given as averaging $32.45 monthly from an average wage of $72.

WILL COLOR LOCOMOTIVES.

Boston & Maine Announces New Style for Its Fast Trains.

The Boston & Maine Railroad announced yesterday that the Minute Man, that road's crack passenger train, will be hauled daily, beginning next Saturday, between Boston and Troy, N. Y., by engines painted with broad bands of buff and blue with a red stripe between.

The sections of the Minute Man, which will run each way daily between Boston and Troy, have been named Paul Revere and William Dawes Jr., in view of the fact that their route more or less follows ground ridden over by those two historical figures. The color scheme for the locomotives was worked out by Captain H. Ledyard Towle of New York, Chairman of the du Pont Color Advisory Service.

Erie Railroad Equipment Trust, Series "NN"

4½% Equipment Trust Gold Certificates

To be issued by Bank of North America and Trust Company, Philadelphia, as Trustee under an Equipment Trust Agreement dated July 15, 1927

(Philadelphia Plan)

Dated July 15, 1927. Payable semi-annually in serial installments of $247,000, January 15, 1930 to July 15, 1942, both inclusive. Payable to bearer, with optional registration, in denomination of $1000. Certificates and dividend warrants (January 15 and July 15) payable at the office of the Trustee.

ISSUANCE SUBJECT TO AUTHORIZATION BY THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

The Certificates are to be issued in part payment for the standard railway equipment mentioned below. The title to the equipment is to be vested in the Trustee and the equipment is to be leased to Erie Railroad Company at a rental sufficient to pay these Certificates and the dividend warrants and other charges as they come due. Payment of the certificates and dividend warrants will be unconditionally guaranteed by Erie Railroad Company by endorsement on the Certificates.

The equipment subject to this Trust will be as follows:

50 type 2-8-4 freight locomotives
30 type 0-8-0 switching locomotives
2 100-ton oil-electric switching locomotives
25 all-steel suburban passenger coaches
25 70-ft. steel express cars
4 all-steel dining cars

The equipment subject to this Trust will be new, (with the exception of the dining cars which were constructed in December, 1925), and will cost at least $8,027,500 of which approximately $1,605,500 is to be paid by the Railroad Company in cash, such payment being not less than 20% of the cost of the equipment and not less than 25% of the face amount of the Certificates.

During the five-year period ended December 31, 1926, the annual income of Erie Railroad Company applicable to fixed charges averaged $21,962,108 or about 1⅔ times its total fixed charges. In 1926 such income amounted to $24,027,370 or over 1⅔ times total fixed charges.

These Certificates are offered subject to sale and when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, of the form and validity of the documents and proceedings, at prices to yield 4.60% for all maturities, plus accrued dividends.

ICE

MANUFACTURING

The South

THE Manufactured Ice Industry is conducted under most favorable conditions in the South—long periods of warm weather, low labor costs, excellent possibilities of increased per capita consumption—are factors present to a greater extent in the South than in other parts of the country.

These conditions together with the rapidly growing industrial activity of the South, lead us to forecast a steady and profitable expansion of the Manufactured Ice Industry in this section.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

British Stock Trading Remains Dull—Paris Has Gains —Berlin Is Weak.

LONDON, July 6.—Business on the Stock Exchange was subdued to-day on the approach of settlements. British Government loans were dull, being still under the influence of the Australian Commonwealth action and lack of monetary ease. There was a fall of 1-16 to ⅛ a point in most gilt edge securities.

Some support appeared for leading oil shares and Shell closed firm with a rise of 1-16. Rubber shares were idle.

In the more speculative markets some selling was in evidence, but prices showed few large movements. Courtaulds was offered in the earlier dealings and the quotation fell, but rallied and closed unchanged on the day. British Celanese rose sixpence and American Celanese was finally quoted at 5½. Canadian Celanese hardened to 12⅝. Dunlop Rubber was in demand and advanced sixpence.

In Lombard Street, loans were in good demand and renewals were arranged at 3½ to 3¾ per cent. and fresh advances at 3½ to 4 per cent. Discount rates were firm. The New York exchange rate closed at $4.85⅝.

Paris Bourse Shows Recovery.

PARIS, July 6.—The Bourse today broke away somewhat from the weakness which has characterized it recently. During the past few weeks there has been so much selling that a period of repurchase was inevitable. It began at least tentatively this morning, and the tendency was confirmed by better news from London.

The internal political tension which has developed as a result of the attacks on the Poincaré Government and a slight shaking of confidence in the Premier's policy, owing to its bad effects on the tourist and other business, had a certain influence on the home market.

French banking and industrial securities, however, continued strong during the day, the former especially being considered in a very favorable position as a result of the Government's policy.

Reaction Hits Berlin Market.

BERLIN, July 6.—The Stock Exchange opened fairly firm today, but lack of purchasers and various disquieting rumors soon brought a reaction and fluctuations. It was reported that advances to brokers would be further restricted, and the effect of this was general, although the Commerzbank issued a denial.

A few specialties, such as Glazed Textiles, were active, but the market generally was at almost stagnation point. A slight improvement was visible only at the closing hour.

Bank stocks gained an average of 2 to 3 points; mining, 3 to 4; chemicals, 2; textiles, 6 to 10; breweries, 2 to 3. Electro values were 2 to 3 points lower; chemicals, 1 to 2, and paper pulp, 2.

The money market was easier, day-to-day funds being freely offered at 7 to 8½ per cent. and lower for large amounts.

Baltimore & Ohio closed at 98.05; Canadian Pacific, at 75.05.

LINER ILE DE FRANCE TO LAY OFF ONE TRIP

Interior Work Will Be Finished at Havre—To Leave for New York on Aug. 10.

Arthur T. Henderson, general passenger manager of the French Line, announced yesterday that the new liner Ile de France would be laid up in Havre on her arrival there tomorrow until Aug. 10 to complete the interior work.

"This has nothing to do with the machinery of the Ile de France," Mr. Henderson said. "She made the passage to New York in five days and eight hours with three propellers, and is making fast time eastbound under the same conditions. President Dal Diaz, who is now in Philadelphia, decided that the only way the liner could have every detail of the interior decorations attended to was to lay up for the next trip.

"The France, which sails on Saturday for Havre, will be switched to take the place of the Ile de France, but she cannot carry all the passengers booked for the new ship. Those who cannot be taken on the France will be provided with accommodation on other steamship lines. The Ile de France will leave Havre on Aug. 10 and sail from New York ten days later."

Chicago Advertising Firms Merge.

The consolidation of two Chicago advertising agencies, Benson & Gamble, of 7 South Dearborn Street, and Johnson & Read, of 202 South State Street, was announced yesterday. The name of the new company is Benson, Gamble, Johnson & Read and offices have been established at the Adams-Franklin Building, 222 West Adams Street, Chicago. The men who head the consolidated organization as partners are John Benson, Thomas S. Gamble, Carl P. Johnson and George H. Read. Mr. Benson is past President of the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

Universal Pipe Earns $645,637.

The Universal Pipe and Radiator Company and subsidiaries report a net profit of $645,637 after charges, depreciation and taxes for the first half of 1927, partly estimated, equivalent, after allowing for dividends on the preferred stock, to $1.65 a share earned on 308,258 shares of no par common stock. This compares with a net profit of $584,048, or $1.19 a share, earned on the common stock in the first half of 1926.

Gatineau Power Increases Output.

The third unit in the power house of the Gatineau Power Company at Chelsea, Quebec, has been started and is supplying power to the Gatineau mill of the Canadian International Paper Company now nearing completion. The first unit was turned over on Jan. 4, little more than a year after the beginning of construction.

CARTEL IS NO PANACEA, BERLIN PARLEY DECIDES

British and German Industrial Associations Agree to Exchange Data as Conference Ends.

BERLIN, July 6.—International trusts and agreements, while possibly means to increase production, certainly are not a cure-all for present economic ills, the conference between the British Federation of Industries and the National Association of German Industries decided in its final session today.

To solve the question of international cartels fully it was resolved to establish a system of exchange of statistics and to give them the widest publicity.

Discussion of the control of national and international fairs occupied a large part of the last session. The British delegates agreed that the methods of the German Exhibitions and Fairs Office are admirable and worthy to be followed internationally. The result of a long debate was a resolution to resume negotiations in this respect where they had been stopped in 1912, and to bring about the establishment of an international fairs commission.

The last subject discussed was double taxation. The delegates decided to urge their respective Governments to make treaties to prevent double taxation on capital and investments. At present money invested by a foreigner is taxed at home and abroad. The same applies to business transactions between two countries. The conference believes that the treaties already in existence between Germany and Czechoslovakia and Germany and Austria, which do away with this system, should be made universal.

In this connection it became known today from an authoritative source that Germany is seeking foreign loans of $100,000,000 for building purposes, giving first mortgages as security. As an inducement Germany offers to cancel the 10 per cent. capital tax in this case if the money is forthcoming.

LIBERIA PAYS OFF DEBT.

Negro Republic Is Second Country to Settle Completely With Us.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The Republic of Liberia through Consul General Ernest Lyon today turned over to Acting Secretary Mills of the Treasury Department a draft for $35,610 in full payment of indebtedness to the United States under the Liberty Loan acts.

Liberia remained neutral in the World War until the United States severed relations with Germany, and when this country went to war with Germany followed the same course.

Under the provisions of the Liberty Loan acts Liberia endeavored to borrow an allotment of $5,000 from the United States, but this request was contested in Congress and only a small installment was obtained. In repaying this loan today, Consul Lyon said:

"You will be pleased to know that the republic is entering upon a prosperous career, that her economic conditions have been wonderfully improved since the close of the war, that the opening up of the country to American capitalists marks a new day for the government and the people of the republic."

A letter written by Secretary Mellon, thanking the republic and calling attention to the fact that but one other nation has made payment of its indebtedness without recourse to funding agreements, was handed to Consul Lyon. The other nation is Cuba.

The principal amount of Liberia's debt was $26,000, the remainder of the payment representing interest.

MACY TEA CONCERNS MERGE

Oliver C. Macy Recovers Control of Carter, Macy & Co.

Oliver C. Macy and Brooke, Bond & Co., Ltd., of London, as Oliver C. Macy, Inc., have taken over all interests and assets of Carter, Macy & Co., Inc., it was announced yesterday.

The arrangement returns to the management of Mr. Macy, a concern which has been a factor in the tea business in this country more than fifty years. The organization was founded in 1858 as Kellogg, Carter & Hawley, but was reorganized in 1860 as Carter & Hawley. The name Carter, Macy & Co. was adopted in 1886, when George H. Macy was senior partner. The business was incorporated in 1916. At the death of George H. Macy in 1918, Oliver C. Macy and T. Ridgway Macy disposed of their and the family interests in the concern to the American International Corporation.

Oliver C. Macy retained his interest in tea, and in 1920 he entered business under his own name. He founded Oliver C. Macy, Inc., on Jan. 1, 1926, under the joint control of Brooke, Bond & Co., Ltd., and himself. A new corporation of Oliver Carter Macy, Inc., has been formed.

Equitable Surety Raises Capital.

Equitable Surety Company has announced a capital increase from $250,000 to $550,000 and an amendment to its present charter which will permit it to write all forms of public liability, automobile and collision business in addition to the present forms of fidelity and surety lines. The company's deposit with the State Insurance Department at Albany has also been increased to $250,000 as required by law, for taking on the additional lines.

Radiator Makers May Merge.

It is reported that negotiations are well advanced for a merger of Pierce, Butler & Pierce of New York and Syracuse, the National Radiator Company of Johnstown, Pa., and Trenton, N. J.; the Union Radiator Company of Johnstown, the Niagara Radiator Company of Niagara Falls, the Utica Radiator Company of Utica, N. Y., and the Gurney Heater Company of Boston.

Devoe & Raynolds's Profit.

The Devoe & Raynolds Company, Inc., and subsidiaries report for the six months to May 31 a net profit of $541,805 after expenses and charges but before Federal taxes, as compared with $623,586 in the first half of the previous fiscal year. Net sales for the period were $5,499,851, against $5,533,507 in the previous like period, and the operating profit was $628,607, against $678,702.

Hardware Trade Substantial.

Leading hardware markets report that the majority of wholesale dealers had a substantial trade in June, Hardware Age says. The volume is estimated at about 10 per cent. more than in June, 1926. Prices generally are very firm, with a few minor adjustments in some markets. Collections show some improvement.

BELGIAN BANK HEAD MAY JOIN CONFERENCE

Possibility that the conferences of the heads of the central banks of England, France and Germany at the New York Federal Reserve Bank will be enlarged to include a representative of Belgian banking interests developed yesterday, when it was announced that Louis Frank, Governor of the Bank of Belgium, will sail for the United States on July 15.

While his visit was not arranged specifically to enable him to take part in the conferences, he is expected to attend if the bankers are still in session at the time of his arrival. At any rate, Mr. Frank will make his headquarters at the Federal Reserve Bank and will meet many of the leading New York financiers during his visit here.

The conferences of Montague Norman, Governor of the Bank of England; Hjalmar Schacht, President of the Reichsbank, and Deputy Governor Rist of the Bank of France with executives of the Federal Reserve Bank continued yesterday, but the utmost secrecy was maintained as to what subjects were discussed. Each of the bankers attending the conferences has been pledged not to discuss any of the developments for publication, and at the Reserve Bank it was impossible to learn even the whereabouts of the financiers, or when they will visit Washington to confer with Treasury and Reserve Board officials, as they are expected to do.

Despite the lack of announcement regarding the agenda of the conferences, it is taken for granted in Wall Street that an informal understanding will be reached as to means of checking the influx of gold to the United States, which has been of large proportions since the first of the year, and of promoting financial cooperation among the nations of Europe.

ACQUIRES MANILA GAS CO.

Southern Cities Utilities Corporation Takes Over Philippines Concern.

The Southern Cities Utilities Corporation a company affiliated with the Southern Cities Utilities Company, announced yesterday the acquisition of the Manila Gas company, which supplies the capital of the Philippines and a suburb known as Passay without competition. The population served totals 340,000.

The Manila Gas Company owns a modern plant on a waterway by which supplies are delivered. Gas oil is obtained from Borneo under long term contract and screened coal is obtained from Australia. The capacity of the plant is 1,750,000 cubic feet daily. Gas is distributed through 103 miles of mains. A semi-anthracite coal mined in the Philippines may be used as generator fuel if necessary.

PLANS PLANT IN SWEDEN.

Willys-Overland Company Opens Negotiations at Stockholm.

STOCKHOLM, July 6 (AP).—The Willys-Overland Company has opened negotiations for the construction of an assembly plant for motor cars here. John N. Willys, President of the company, is now in Stockholm, where he attended the recent congress of the International Chamber of Commerce as a member of the American delegation.

The work on the assembly plant of the General Motors Company, which was contracted for last Spring, is rapidly progressing. The foundations have been completed and the building itself is expected to be finished at the end of the year.

Salvador's Customs Collections.

Customs collections by the Republic of Salvador for the first six months of the year totaled $3,550,982, while the debt service for the same period on the A and B bonds amounted to $524,964, leaving $3,026,018 available for the series C bonds, equivalent to more than 7.37 times the interest and sinking fund requirements on the series C bonds, which amounted to $420,000.

London Wool Sale Favorable.

LONDON, July 6 (AP).—At the wool sales to-day 11,974 bales were offered of which 10,000 were sold. There was a good selection and keen competition from all quarters; the opening advance was well maintained.

Reported Fascist Dissension Breaks Lire—Yen Reacts—Sterling and Franc Steady.

Reports of serious differences in the ranks of the Fascisti caused a sharp break in the Italian lira yesterday, liquidation by previous "longs" and speculative short selling sending the bill off more than 9 points to 5.42¼ cents, lowest since May 25. A rally at the close carried it back to 5.45 cents.

Preliminary business was done around 5.43 cents., in itself an overnight decline of 8 points, reflecting unsettlement in London. Dealers here said that the Government was not officially represented in the market and that it held aloof while buying and selling orders first strengthened and later brought the reaction.

Japanese yen was another weak feature, selling off ¼ cent to 47.15 cents, on fresh rumors of commercial and banking difficulties. The Chinese currencies likewise sagged about ⅛ cent. In the Europeans, rates were maintained, sterling and francs ruling unchanged. Scandinavians and Spanish descriptions were irregular.

DELAYS DIVIDENDS FOR REINCORPORATION

H. Hobart Porter, President of the American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc., of Virginia, announced yesterday, following the regular monthly meeting of directors, that the usual dividend on the 7 per cent. cumulative first preferred stock was not declared, since this stock has been called for redemption on Aug. 15 at $110 a share and accrued dividends to that date, and that the usual common dividend was not declared at this time due to the pending plan for reincorporating the company under the laws of Delaware.

"It is proposed, upon consummation of the plan," Mr. Porter said, "which contemplates the issuance of two shares of no-par value common stock in exchange for each share of the present $20 par common stock, that the reincorporated company shall declare an initial dividend, payable Aug. 15, on the new common stock. This dividend will be the equivalent in cash and new common stock of the present dividend, or 20 cents in cash and 2½ per cent. (one-fortieth share) in new common stock on each share of new stock to be outstanding."

The directors of the Bastian-Blessing Company will meet on July 15 for dividend action, when it is expected that an initial dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock will be declared.

Roosevelt Water Conservation District

Maricopa County, Arizona

6% Bonds

Principal and semi-annual interest payable at the office of the Treasurer of the District, Phoenix, Arizona, or at the Chemical National Bank, in New York City, at the option of the holder. Coupon bonds in $1,000 denomination. Callable in inverse order of numbering at par and accrued interest on sixty days' published notice.

Legal Investment for Savings Banks and Trust Funds in Arizona

These bonds constitute valid and binding obligations of the Roosevelt Water Conservation District, payable from an annual acreage assessment and levy of taxes upon all the real property of the District, which property shall be and remain liable to taxation for such payments. The law provides that all taxes levied and assessed under provisions of the Act under which this District was organized shall become due and delinquent, and shall attach and become a lien on the real property assessed at the same time as State and County taxes.

The Supreme Court of the State of Arizona has approved the constitutionality of the law under which the District was organized and has sanctioned the organization of the District.

The Roosevelt Water Conservation District, containing 41,330 acres, adjoining the Salt River Water Users Association lands, is located in Maricopa County, twenty-two miles southeast of Phoenix, the Capital of Arizona. The District has a favorable contract for water and electric power with the Salt River Water Users Association. This contract has been approved by the Secretary of the Interior of the United States.

The Roosevelt Water Conservation District was organized in 1920 and construction started in December, 1924. The first full crop year, 1926, about 30% of the District was farmed, and this year, 1927, more than 14,000 acres, approximately 60% of the entire District, are under cultivation.

These bonds are issued to complete the lining of the Main Canal of the District with concrete, thereby conserving water lost through seepage at a considerable saving in operating and maintenance expenses. The total bonded indebtedness of the District, including this issue, is $3,500,000.

The sufficiency of the water supply and plan of the original development were favorably passed upon by Messrs. Reed & Baker, Engineers for the District, and approved by the Chief Engineer of the U. S. Reclamation Service and the Chief Engineer of the Salt River Valley Water Users Association, and for the bankers by Messrs. Stone & Webster, Inc., of Boston, and Fred A. Tibbetts, Esq., of Los Angeles.

Legality to be approved by Messrs. Thomson, Wood & Hoffman, Attorneys of New York

DENIES INJUNCTION AGAINST COPPER CO.

Court Refuses Plea of J. F. Galvin to Stay Stock Sale of Buckeye and Subsidiary.

PLAINTIFFS' DEED AN ISSUE

The application by John F. Galvin, Vice Chairman of the New York Port Authority, and others for an injunction to restrain the Buckeye Copper Company and the Copper Exploration Company, which holds 500,000 shares of Buckeye stock, from disposing of any shares except to deliver 110,000 shares to the plaintiffs as agreed, was denied yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Ingraham.

The plaintiffs alleged that they transferred copper mine properties in Arizona for which they were to receive the Buckeye stock, and that under an agreement with the Copper Exploration Company, an alleged subsidiary of the Buckeye Company, it was agreed that the stock was all to be pooled for several years. Mr. Galvin asserted that the brokers for the Buckeye Company are now advertising stock for sale and said he believed that part of the pooled stock would be disposed of.

In opposing the application for the injunction, George F. Shurtleff, President of the Buckeye Company, and an officer of the firm now advertising the stock, said that the company's attorney in Arizona had advised that the title to the property transferred by Mr. Galvin and his associates was not good. He also said that there was no proof that any of the pool stock was being offered for sale, since the company has 1,500,000 shares not affected by any agreement.

In denying the injunction, Justice Ingraham said there was no way of determining from the papers before him whether the deed delivered by the plaintiffs was free from defects, and whether the title conveyed was marketable. He said there was no proof of any violation by the Copper Exploration Company of its agreement with the plaintiffs.

PUBLIC UTILITY EARNINGS.

The report of the Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Company, Ltd., for 1926 shows net income of $11,745,397 (Canadian currency) after charges and reserves, equal to $10.45 a share earned on 1,065,883 shares of ordinary stock, against $8,255,286, or $7.18 a share in 1925. Gross revenue was $12,278,654, against $8,848,594.

The balance sheet shows: Properties, plant and equipment, $140,701,614; securities and advances to subsidiaries, $68,942,222; goodwill, franchises, contracts, etc., $50,811,680; cash, $3,425,817; total assets, $266,104,734. Under liabilities are listed: Depreciation reserves, $31,961,085; other reserves, $51,935,675; surplus, $8,037,506; funded debt, $67,692,707.

The Boston Elevated Railway in May showed receipts exceeding cost of service by $113,285, against $67,010 in May, 1926. Revenue passengers totaled 31,310,257, against 31,576,293.

The West Virginia Water Service Company, a subsidiary of the Federal Water Service Corporation, reports gross revenue of $722,009 in the year to May 31, against $695,232 in the preceding like period. The balance after maintenance, taxes other than Federal taxes and partly estimated expenses was $318,730, an increase of $20,620. Annual interest requirements on outstanding funded debt total $148,750.

DECISION FOR LACLEDE GAS.

Missouri Attorney General Refuses to Attack Charter and Franchises.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—Attorney General Gentry today refused to institute quo warranto proceedings attacking the charter and franchises of the Laclede Gas Light Company of St. Louis, basing his refusal on the ground that the act of 1868 of the Missouri Legislature is constitutional.

This act carried with it the provision that the charter of the gas company is perpetual.

Gentry had been asked by Mayor Miller of St. Louis to take the action before the Supreme Court in his name, seeking to determine whether or not the franchises of the Laclede Company had expired. Mayor Miller contended that the city franchises had expired.

Forecast of the action of the Attorney General appeared on the New York stock market today in a 13-point rise in the quotation of the Laclede Gas stock. The stock had on former occasions reached a high of more than 260 points, and on the announcement of the Miller request for quo warranto proceedings fell to 230. Early today the stock jumped 9 points and later scored a rise of 4 additional points.

UTILITY FINANCING GREATER

Increase of 9 Per Cent. Reported for First Half of 1927.

Financing of electric light and power companies in the first half of this year exceeded that in the same period of last year by more than 9 per cent., Electrical World announces. The total for the last six months was $702,700,000, against $725,800,000 for six months of 1926. An exceedingly favorable market encouraged financing on a large scale in the first few months of 1927, and the first quarter's total was 47 per cent. greater than the total for the first quarter of 1926. Energy sales continue good, and electric construction is keeping pace with the business growth, the publication says.

Financing has been cheaper for the industry this year, with yields averaging from 5.19 per cent. to a high of 5.69 per cent. In nine months of 1926 the average rate of return to the investor was more than 5.50 per cent., and a 6.10 per cent. mark was reached in February. The present favorable market portends heavy financing for the second half of the year, says the magazine.

Joins Prudential Insurance.

Melville P. Dickenson of Binghamton, N. Y., has been appointed an assistant secretary of the Prudential Insurance Company of America. Since his graduation from Princeton in 1922, he has been in the insurance business. His father, David S. Dickenson, is president of the Security Mutual Life Insurance Company of Binghamton.

ARRESTED AS BOND THIEF.

Suspect Is Caught in Street Here After Nation-Wide Search.

Isadore Cohen, alias Isadore Davis, of 8,695 Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, was arrested at Broad and Beaver Streets yesterday charged with the theft of $35,000 in bonds from the brokerage firm of White, Weld & Co., of 14 Wall Street last March.

Detectives said that Cohen and Abraham Goldman had been arrested in Chicago in April when Goldman tried to dispose of some of the bonds and that Cohen jumped his bail of $20,000. Goldman was brought back here and sentenced to prison. A countrywide search was started for the missing man. The detectives and that Cohen is also faced with an indictment charging complicity in concealing the assets of Romois Fronks, Inc., from trustees in bankruptcy early this year.

The bonds which were awaiting delivery were obtained from the brokerage firm by a man who walked into the offices and asked for them, saying he had been sent to get them for another house. A short time later the real messenger appeared.

SEIZED WITH 100 CHECKS.

A woman who described herself as Margaret Donnelly, 52 years old, of 1,304 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, but who, detectives say, is known in police circles as "the woman in black," was arrested yesterday, charged with obtaining merchandise from Stern Brothers' store on a worthless check.

According to detectives, the woman, who is employed as a clerk in the office of Dr. Frank Grauer, 226 West Seventy-first Street, at $20 a week, has collected more than $1,000 monthly, ostensibly for needy persons. More than 100 checks for amounts varying from $5 to $20 were found in her handbag, the detectives said.

The woman ordered three silk garments from the Stern Brothers' store some days ago and when they were delivered at the doctor's office she took them and gave the delivery boy a check for $56. Four days later the check, signed "Davis" was returned by the bank.

INVESTOR ASSEMBLES SITE ON PARK AVENUE

On the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street, just over the crest of the hill where the tracks of the New York Central emerge from the tunnel under Park Avenue, an investor has completed the assembling of a plot 150 by 100 feet at an approximate price of $50 a square foot.

The five-story apartment house with stores at 1,245 Park Avenue, which the late George Ehret held for over twenty years, was sold to the new owner for the George Ehret Estate, Inc., by George S. Runk.

The same broker also sold for the estate the adjoining property at 105 East Ninety-sixth Street, likewise improved with a five-story apartment. Four other houses of similar height, completing the new owner's holdings, were acquired as follows: From the Nosettam Realty Corporation, 107 East Ninety-sixth Street; from the Mubur Real Estate Corporation, 111 on the same street, and from William and Rose Katz, 109 and 113.

George S. Runk, the broker, recently sold 58 to 66 East Ninety-sixth Street, a plot 100 feet square between Madison and Park Avenues, upon which there is now being erected a sixteen-story apartment house by the Barguard Building Corporation.

ANKLES TO VIE AT MEET.

The second annual National Hosiery and Underwear Exposition will be held at the Waldorf from July 18 to July 23. On July 19 artists will judge the prettiest pair of ankles of entrants representing sixty cities. The model of the winner's legs will be used for store window display nationally. Entries thus far include girls from Norfolk, Va.; Dallas, Texas; Atlanta, Ga.; San Francisco, Cal.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Chicago, Boston, Los Angeles and St. Louis.

Exhibits will include stockings with airplane and propeller effects; underwear weighing an ounce and a half which can be put inside a large thimble, fur lined underwear, and so on.

MUST DISPLAY SANKA CARDS

Subway Company Enjoined From Ban on Coffee Corporation.

The application by the Sanka Coffee Corporation for an injunction restraining the Broadway Subway Advertising Company from removing its advertising cards from subway cars was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Ingraham. The Court said the defendant gave no reason why it alleged the Sanka cards were objectionable except that another advertiser "protested against the continued display of plaintiff's cards." The Court directs the redisplay of the cards already removed.

The Sanka company is also suing for $1,000,000 damages, alleging that the defendant removed its cards and broke the contract with the plaintiff because of the influence of another advertiser.

PLANS RYE BUS LINES.

Company's Petition Says Seven Routes Are Contemplated.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., July 6.—A petition has been filed here by the County Transportation Company, Inc., for a certificate of public convenience and necessity to operate bus lines in Rye. Seven routes are outlined.

The petition says that eight buses are to be used and that a twenty-minute schedule will be maintained from 6 A. M. to 8 P. M. and a forty-minute schedule thereafter until midnight. The petition also says the New York & Stamford Railway Company intends to acquire all of the capital stock of this company. A public hearing will be held on the petition.

Insures Employes for $1,000 Each.

The Splitdorf-Bethlehem Electrical Company of Newark has insured each of its employes for $1,000 under its group insurance contract with the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. The plan includes a total permanent disability benefit which provides that if an employe becomes totally and permanently disabled before reaching the age of 60 years the full amount of the insurance will be paid to him in monthly instalments.

WESTCHESTER TO FORM SEWER PLANS IN 60 DAYS

$7,000,000 Project Will Drain 25 Square Miles—To Discharge Into Hudson at Hastings.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 6.—Westchester County Sanitary Sewer Plans, maps and specifications of the proposed Saw Mill River Valley sanitary trunk sewer will be laid before the Westchester County Board of Supervisors for approval and acceptance within the next two months, it was learned at the offices of the Commission following a conference held here today between members of the commission and officials of the town of New Castle, the village of Hastings and the village of Ardsley.

It is expected that the project will cost approximately $7,000,000 as the area to be drained contains twenty-five square miles.

The proposed sewer will discharge through a disposal plant to be erected on the shores of the Hudson River at Hastings.

If the plan to be drafted at a conference with Dr. Matlias Nicoll Jr., State Commissioner of Health, on Saturday meets with the approval of Yonkers and the Board of Supervisors, the disposal plant for the Saw Mill Valley project will be merged with the proposed disposal plant for the Hutchinson Valley project and Yonkers will also be enabled to discharge its sewage through this plant for treatment and purification.

Leases Building on 47th Street.

A five-story business building, 25 by 100 feet, at 17 East Forty-seventh Street, has been leased by J. Hopkins Smith to the Cordelia Realty Corporation, acting for Dr. Nicholas C. Partos, who will pay $300,000 for the first period of the lease, which is for twenty-one years. Butler & Baldwin, Inc., arranged the lease. Dr. Partos recently acquired 5 East Forty-seventh Street in the same block.

Third Avenue Building Leased.

Wormser & Co. have leased for James Rothschild the two-story business building at 3,197 Third Avenue for a term of twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of $100,000.

CHAIN STORE SALES GAIN IN HALF-YEAR

Nine Companies Report Trade From 7 to 33 Per Cent. Ahead of 1926.

JUNE FIGURES BEHIND APRIL

Business Greater, However, Than in Same Month of Last Year—Detailed Results.

Nine chain store organizations issued their reports of sales in June and the first six months of 1927 yesterday, showing in each instance a marked gain over the corresponding periods of a year ago. While in most cases the June figures this year are below the remarkable April sales, they are generally the second highest for any month so far this year, and in one instance are nearly within $1,000 of the April figure. All figures include new stores.

Chief on the list are the sales of the F. W. Woolworth Company, which were $1,284,122 higher than in June, 1926, and $9,564,796 above sales in the first half of last year. The old stores of the company showed a gain of $674,085, or 2.56 per cent., in June, and a gain of $5,774,841, or 5.4 per cent., for the six months' period.

Gross sales of the J. C. Penney Company are about one-third greater for the half year, while June sales were up 26 per cent. This company holds second place among chain store companies based on the volume of sales, and prior to April this year had the third largest business. There are now 767 stores in its group. The organization is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary.

The S. S. Kresge Company, the third largest chain store business in the country, also reports marked gains over a year ago, and is now operating 398 stores.

The Kresge Company reports the opening of four new stores of the 5 and 10 cent type, bringing the total of such stores in operation up to 283 and making the total of all stores 400.

The figures for these and other stores for June and six months are as follow:

ALL GROUPS FIRM IN UNLISTED MARKET

Professional Interest Drives Prices Higher, With Small Number of Losses.

INDUSTRIALS STILL STRONG

More Activity in the Chain Store Issues—Banks and Insurance Stocks Held Steady.

Increasing confidence in the immediate trend of prices was further emphasized in the over-the-counter market yesterday when, under the influence of a dominating professional interest, prices moved upward and firmness was seen in every division of the market. What losses occurred were for the most part in issues concerning which recent favorable news rumors have grown threadbare.

While chief interest remained in the industrials and activity increased among the leaders in the chain store issues, the market was impressed by what appeared to be signs of returning confidence in the sugar list. The banks, trust and insurance companies were again steady, and public utilities witnessed some advances.

A. O. Smith common advanced 10 points, Newport Company prior common gained 4 points and gains were made by Eastern Dairies preferred, Rolls-Royce preferred, Gorham Company common, Babcock & Wilcox and Smith-Corona preferred. Celluloid common and preferred were hardest hit among the list, with the former off 3 and the latter down 7 points. In the public utilities, Columbus Railway Power and Light common was up 5 and preferred A was up a point. Jamaica Water Supply preferred was down 1.

McLellan Stores common A, which has easily held its position in the past few weeks and which has been closely held, was up 5, with stock very scarce. New York Merchandise common was off a point. Metropolitan 5-50 cent Stores A and B common were both up a point, but its preferred slid off a point.

In the bank group, the mid-year statements were further cause for advances, with First National up 50, Commonwealth up 15, Bank of America up 10, Public and Commerce each up 6 and City up 5 points. Bankers Trust was up 25, Manufacturers Trust up 20, New York Trust up 5 and Central Union and Farmers Loan each up 5 points. In the insurances issues, United States Fidelity and Guaranty was down 5 points.

Worcester Gas Against Merger.

The Worcester Gas Light Company has filed with the Department of Public Utilities in Boston a notice of its desire to withdraw from its agreement for a merger with the Worcester Electric Light Company, its stockholders having voted against consolidation at their recent meeting. The department granted permission for the filing of the notice, but will continue its consideration of the petition for the merger and make a decision irrespective of the notice. There is doubt that either company can withdraw legally from the agreement.

INTEREST BROADENS ON CURB EXCHANGE

BONDS CONTINUE IRREGULAR

After a strong opening limited to a few shares, followed by a series of reactions, the New York Curb Exchange firmed up with a much broadened interest, and a wide variety of shares advanced to new highs, most retaining their strength to the end. There were a few weak spots, including two or three leading utilities, but the general undertone at the close was strong, and many gains of 2 to 4 points appeared.

The strength in rails was an interesting feature, due to the influence of new New York Central shares, which ended only ½ point below the day's high. Bucyrus, Dunhill International and General Baking A were all quoted at new highs for the year but closed a little under the best.

American Road Machinery preferred, Royal Typewriter and Transcontinental Oil were only moderately active, but ended at new highs, while Margay Oil new and Carib Syndicate continued their upward trend and ended at highs for the year after active trading.

Firestone and Seiberling were very strong among rubbers, while Massey Harris new, Deere & Co., Celanese shares, Safway Stores and Fulton Syphon were other leaders. Electric Investors and Electric Bond and Share securities were very active and registered broad gains.

On the easy side were Mavis Corporation and Stromberg Carlson, at new low marks, while New England Power, Blackstone Valley Gas and Electric, Columbus Electric Power, Eureka Pipe Line, Benetsky and Mirror preferred practically exhausted the list of weak shares.

FLOCK HEADS BROWN BOVERI

William M. Flock was elected yesterday Chairman of the Board of the American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation. His selection is understood to fit in with the recently announced reorganization plan of the company.

Voting trust certificates for 30,000 shares of founders' stock of the company were sold yesterday at auction by Adrian Muller & Co. at $6 a share. The last previous sale on the New York Curb Exchange was at 6¾. There are 300,000 shares of founders' stock outstanding, of which American Brown Boveri & Co., Ltd., own 100,000 shares. A majority of this stock is held in a voting trust.

New Texas Gas Line Half Finished.

Construction of 171 miles of pipe line by the Hope Engineering & Supply Co., under a $4,150,000 contract with the Rio Grande Valley Gas Company to supply the Rio Grande Valley in Texas with natural gas, is about half completed. Construction of distribution systems in McAllen, San Juan, Pharr, San Benito and Brownsville is under way. It is expected gas will be supplied to McAllen by Aug. 1.

AVERAGE PRICES DOWN 9¼% IN TWO YEARS

The monthly index number of average commodity prices compiled by Dun's Review shows decline in the general average of net quite nineteenths of 1 per cent. during June and of 2¼ per cent. as compared with July 1, 1926. As compared with February, 1925, when the highest monthly average since the deflation period was reached, the decline has been 9¼ per cent. The present average shows an advance of 16 per cent. as compared with the low deflation average of July, 1921, but the recovery is mostly in food products. It shows a decline of 29¾ per cent. from the high price of May, 1920, and an advance of 53¾ per cent. since August, 1914.

Of the seven groups of commodities, three declined during June, comprising breadstuffs, dairy and garden products and other foods; four advanced, including meat, clothing material, metals and miscellaneous.

SCRIPPS DENY CLAIM IN SUIT

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 6 (AP).—Dismissal of the suit filed by Mrs. Josephine Scripps of Miramar, Cal., against Robert Paine Scripps, executor of the will of Edward W. Scripps, former head of a newspaper chain, and trustee of a trust agreement between Edward W. and Robert Paine Scripps entered into Nov. 23, 1922, was asked in three separate answers filed in court today.

Mrs. Scripps seeks an accounting under an agreement alleged to have been entered into between her deceased husband and Edward W. Scripps twenty years ago, providing for the distribution of profits of their newspaper syndicate.

Robert Paine Scripps and the E. W. Scripps Company deny the existence of an agreement between James G. and Edward W. Scripps. They further allege that if Mrs. Josephine Scripps ever had a valid claim against the estate it is now old and inequitable.

WITH GOOD BUYING WHEAT HOLDS FIRM

Weather News and Lack of Interest by Millers and Exporters Lead to Early Decline.

THRESHING RETURNS POOR

Liquidation of September Corn Leads to Price Recession—Rye and Oats Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Favorable weather reports from the entire wheat belt, with a lack of interest in new crop grain on the part of the milling and export trade, led to selling of futures early, but on the decline there was a good class of buying and the finish was ¾ cent lower to ⅞ cent higher, the latter on December. Houses with Northwestern connections were buyers, while the Southwest was selling, and there was little pressure regarded as against purchases of cash grain. Aggregate trade was not large and mainly of a professional character.

Export demand shows no improvement and there were no sales of consequence. The decrease in supplies on ocean passage and the relatively small shipments from the Southern Hemisphere are resulting in a belief that before long foreigners will have to take hold on a liberal scale, especially as the known requirements abroad are large. Liverpool closed ¾d lower to ⅛d higher. Further rains were reported in Argentina and Australia.

Disappointing threshing returns are now being received in sufficient numbers from Illinois, Indiana and parts of Kansas to have some effect on local sentiment and there was a disposition shown during the day to take the buying side on the sharp recessions.

Primary arrivals today, 1,244,000 bushels; week ago, 1,188,000 bushels; last year, 2,000,000 bushels. Shipments, 1,565,000 bushels; week ago, 815,000 bushels; last year, 1,195,000 bushels.

Liquidation of a line of long September corn estimated at 2,500,000 bushels, through a local house, was largely responsible for a lower range of value, and the finish was 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents lower.

Primary arrivals today, 731,000 bushels; week ago, 734,000 bushels; last year, 489,000 bushels. Shipments, 510,000 bushels; week ago, 598,000 bushels; last year, 383,000 bushels.

Oats closed ⅛ to ⅛ cent lower on scattered liquidation. The Northwest was on the selling side of rye, and the finish was ¾ to 1¼ cents lower. Charters were made during the day for 130,000 bushels of wheat to Buffalo and 300,000 bushels of corn to Buffalo and Georgian Bay.

NEW YORK GRAIN MARKETS.

Wheat Declines Fractionally in Active Market—Oats Easier.

Weakness in corn induced some selling in wheat, but scattered absorption uncovered an oversold condition, prices rallying on smaller yields in the Southwest than expected and covering by shorts. Realizing caused a reaction from the highs, with final prices ⅛ to ⅛ cent net lower.

Oats averaged easier on good weather, with the other grains, scattered selling, and limited cash demand.

Differ on Trade Outlook.

There seems to be some difference of opinion here as to cotton goods prospects during the remainder of this year. Jobbing buyers point out that it is hardly to be expected that their sales during this period can be as satisfactory as those of the half-year just closed, inasmuch as retail stocks were very low at the beginning of the year and prices were very attractive. As a result, sales to retailers were made not only to cover actual wants, but also to fill up incomplete lines. Sellers contend that, while this is true to some extent, it can hardly have been a factor in the buying of the last five or six weeks, during which stocks in buyers' hands have probably not been mounting. Consequently, there is a disposition on the part of first hands to expect good buying during the next several weeks, despite the large orders now on the books of the mills.

RUBBER PRICES DEPRESSED.

Bears Dominate Local Market—Trading More Active.

The bear element dominated the crude rubber market on the Rubber Exchange and forced the list down 10 to 40 points under Tuesday's final figures. The first trading showed a slight advantage in some of the positions, but this was dropped before noon. Total sales aggregated 461 contracts, as against 199 lots done on Tuesday, with twenty-one transfer notices issued.

Switching from October to March was done at a premium of 50 points, and from July to September, 7.

The London market was quiet, a decline of ¼d being noted in all positions.

COTTON PRICES UP ON WEEVIL REPORT

Fairly Favorable Crop Progress Indicated So Far as Crop Is Concerned.

FINAL TONE IS STEADY

Some Selling Occurs at Opening on Favorable Weather News Throughout the Belt.

The Government report on boll weevil emergence prior to June 16 made an evidently bullish impression on sentiment in the cotton market here yesterday. The weather reports, however, suggested fairly favorable crop progress so far as the plant was concerned, and moderate advances from an early decline were followed by partial reactions in the late trading. December contracts, which had sold up from 17.17 to 17.38 on the increased apprehension of boll weevil damage during the Summer, closed at 17.32, or 6 points off from the best. The general market closed at net advances of 6 to 9 points, but the final tone was barely steady.

There was some selling at the start on the favorable early weather news, and prices showed net losses of about 6 to 7 points during the early trading, with October working just below the 17-cent level. At 16.97 for that position, however, a little better demand was noted with some trade pricing reported, and after the publication of the boll weevil report there was a spurt of covering. As has been the case on most recent bulges, contracts seemed comparatively scarce when wanted and while the buying stimulated by the fear of insect damage was not general or aggressive, it proved sufficient to send active months 10 to 15 points net higher. The demand tapered off after a few stop orders had been executed on the advance to 17.18 for October, and trading later was quiet with the close showing reactions of several points from the best.

On the whole, the trade seemed to be more impressed by the bullish view of the boll weevil report than by the favorable interpretation of the weather reports, so far as related to the progress of the plant in most sections. Probably the prevailing sentiment is that the beginning of July finds the crop in a pretty fair condition, but with the condition modified by certain features which threaten to pull down the ultimate yield per acre.

Private cables reported a more encouraging inquiry for cotton goods in Manchester, but a very quiet and featureless market in Liverpool. Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to 13 points higher. Sales were reported of 4,596 bales, against 4,725 for the same day last year.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Oct.	17.05	17.18	16.97	17.10-12	17.04

WEEK'S GRAIN EXPORT DOWN

Shipments 1,647,000 Bushels Under Those of Preceding Week.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP).—Grain exports last week from the United States were 1,555,000 bushels as compared with 3,202,000 bushels the previous week and 2,352,000 in the same week of 1926.

Commerce Department figures gave the following comparisons: Wheat, 1,002,000 bushels against 1,535,000 a week ago and 1,710,000 a year ago; rye, 95,000 against 553,000; oats, 78,000 against 742,000; corn, 241,000 against 212,000; barley, 139,000 against 160,000.

Canadian grain exported last week through United States ports amounted to 811,000 bushels against 1,105,000 the previous week, while last week's exports of North American wheat flour were 283,000 barrels against 138,000 barrels.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4½ per cent. for the best names. Tuesday—4½ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Sales Light.

Business in gray goods here yesterday was even smaller than on Tuesday, from all accounts. Sales of printcloths included spot 39-inch 60-squares at 10¾ cents, and there was trading in spot Southern 38½-inch 64-60s at 7¼ cents. Spot sales of Eastern 38½-inch 44-60s took place at 5¼ cents. Buyers of sheetings paid 6 and 5¾ cents, respectively, for 36-inch 5.50 and 6.15-yard goods, the deliveries being spot in both cases. Drills were quiet and featureless, but in the specialties trading took place in 37½-inch 4.70-yard sateens at 10 cents. For 4.37-yard sateens of that width the spot asking price ranged from 10¾ to 11 cents. Among sales of the fine-yarn goods were 90-60 broadcloths at 10 cents.

Neckwear Turnover Is Good.

Retail turnover of men's neckwear is reported as quite active. Consumer buying last week was good and led to a fair volume of reorder business. Foulards are receiving much attention in the better-grade merchandise. Stripes and figured patterns are selling well, with growing interest reported in shepherd check effects. Nearly all interest centres in cut silk merchandise, a trend that is also expected to be true of the Fall season.

Await Stimulus in Fall Buying.

The demand for women's wear Fall fabrics is still quiet. The mills are awaiting the impetus to trading that the arrival of many buyers here for Fall garments is expected to give. It is figured that about the middle of the month will see the largest number here, with consequent active ordering of finished garments and the need of replenishing piece-goods stocks. Prices are being firmly held by the mills, with the most popular cloths either withdrawn or selling at an advance.

Raw Silk Situation.

The Japanese raw silk market is still unsettled, although it had been expected that favorable factors would serve to strengthen it. One explanation is that reelers having bought cocoons at reasonably low levels and able to realize a profit at present levels are naturally anxious to sell. The reelers are also affected by the generally poor financial position of the industry in Japan. Crack XX was quoted yesterday at $5.80 and XX at $5.30, according to E. Gerli & Co., Inc. Trading in Canton silks is fair, with price levels of $4.10 for 14-16s and $3.60 for 20-22s. Steam filatures are nominally held at $5.55 for the "three dancers" grade and $5.40 for the "billiken." Tussahs sold yesterday at $3.05.

This Lighter Has a Windshield.

What is contended by its makers to be the simplest, lightest and most reliable automatic lighter yet produced has lately been put on the market here. It is further said to be the only lighter of its type that is made with a cover, which is hinged and which serves several purposes. It not only acts as a windshield, but protects the wick, flint and wheel. In addition to this it prevents parts that are exposed on other types of lighters from catching in pockets, key rings, &c. This feature is said to appeal to women smokers particularly, as the lighter can be carried in a handbag or vanity case without damaging its contents. It comes in a variety of styles. Prices of the plated silver lighters range at wholesale from $30 a dozen for the plain polished type to $45 a dozen for a leather-covered style set off with floral enamel in white and green. The price range of similar styles in sterling silver is from $54 to $72 a dozen.

Some Reports Not Optimistic.

Although the proportion of the Fall production of carpets and rugs that has so far been sold is in most cases up to normal, reports from several important out-of-town trade centres do not augur particularly well for the remainder of the season. Many of the big stores throughout the Middle and Far West are said to be dissatisfied with the business they are doing, and are governing their buying accordingly. From other parts of the country somewhat similar reports are heard. Whether these are the backwardness of the weather which retarded general consumer buying, or whether it is one of the periodic spells of consumer apathy that make themselves felt every so often, is a question. The fact remains, however, that the outlook is not as bright at the moment as it might be. The trade is hoping that a marked change for the better will come about this month and during next, so that the way may be cleared for good rug and carpet buying along toward Sept. 1.

Silk Consumption Drops.

Deliveries of raw silk to American mills slumped during June, according to figures issued yesterday by the Silk Association of America. The total was 41,312 bales, which compared with 45,486 bales in May. Slackening of seasonal production and the slow start of Fall buying of finished goods are reasons for the drop. Imports during June also declined, the total receipts being 42,809 bales, as against 49,264 bales in the preceding month. Storage stocks on hand July 1 showed an increase amounting to 37,024 bales. The quantity on hand June 1 was 35,527 bales.

Tropical Openings Next Week.

Several leading lines of men's wear tropicals and Summer specialty cloths for 1928 will be opened next week, according to selling agents here. Some houses are and have been showing their new lines quietly, but the general market is displaying no haste in making offerings. In the case of some leading producers it may be the week after next before their lines are ready. Prices are expected to be about the same as last year or slightly higher. Interest in the new cloths has not developed actively, owing to the slow turnover of Summer suits at retail because of the cool weather which has prevailed.

Hard Surface Goods Fairly Sold.

The passing of the Fourth of July found the hard surface section of the floor coverings trade with a volume of Fall business on the books which compared very favorably with that of a year ago. Sales of linoleum, other than printed goods and linoleum rugs, have been good. Novelty patterns in inlaid goods have sold quite freely, but the more staple designs have been noticeably neglected. Sales of plain and "battleship" linoleums have been better with some concerns than they were up to this time last year, despite the handicap placed on them by the uncertainties surrounding their use in new buildings of certain types in this city. Felt base rugs have moved quite well for the new season, particularly those set off by distinctive patterns and colorings.

WEATHER IS VARYING, CROPS MAKE GAINS

The weekly weather report released in Washington yesterday by the United States Department of Agriculture was as follows:

The weekly progress of cotton was fairly good to excellent in the Atlantic Coast States, with the dryer weather in Georgia permitting needed cultivation. Fair to good advances was also reported in Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, though cultivation is needed badly, with fields somewhat grassy. In Arkansas the weather was fairly favorable and cotton made excellent growth, except in flooded areas. Progress and conditions were good in Oklahoma, though there was increased infestation, with considerable damage locally.

Generally fair weather made another unusually favorable week for the harvest of Winter wheat. At its close this work had begun locally as far north as Northern Indiana, was progressing rapidly in Southern Nebraska, and the crop was nearly cut in the eastern half of Kansas. Threshing advanced well in Southern portions of the belt, under favorable conditions. In some northern districts the warmth was unfavorable for wheat and Winter crops.

Weather in Cotton and Grain States.

42D ST. PROPERTIES IN $1,000,000 DEAL

Nathan S. Goldstein Assembles Plot of 10,000 Square Feet Near Times Square.

ARE SOLD BY TWO ESTATES

Fifty-foot Frontages Running Through to 41st Street Have Been Held for Twenty Years.

A deal on West Forty-second Street, near Times Square, representing an investment of more than $1,000,000, was closed yesterday when contracts were signed for the purchase of a large plot between Seventh and Eighth Avenues. Two estates were involved in the transaction, which was negotiated by J. P. & L. A. Kissling, brokers.

Robert E. Miller and John Miller, as executors of the estate of Robert E. Miller, sold 244, 246 and 248 West Forty-second Street, a plot 50 by 98 feet, improved with a six-story loft building. The estate also sold the abutting parcel in the rear, known as 243 West Forty-first Street, a lot 25 by 98 feet, improved with a four-story building.

Aaron Coleman, as executor of the estate of Meyer Coleman, sold through the same brokers the property at 241 West Forty-first Street, a four-story building on a lot 25 by 98 feet.

The purchaser of the combined properties is Nathan S. Goldstein, who has now obtained control of a plot of about 10,000 square feet, fronting 50 feet on Forty-second Street and 50 feet on Forty-first Street, with a depth through the block of 197 feet.

Both Are Old Holdings.

The Forty-second Street frontage was originally purchased by Robert E. Miller in 1907 and was improved three years later with the present six-story business building and was occupied until 1924 by the wholesale and retail furniture business of Robert E. Miller. In 1919, Mr. Miller increased his plot by the purchase of 243 West Forty-first Street, directly in the rear.

The Coleman piece was purchased by Meyer Coleman in 1908 and has been in the Coleman family since.

The purchaser of the combined Miller and Coleman parcels said he had bought the property to hold until the completion of the Eighth Avenue subway. The subway, which runs through Forty-first Street, will have an entrance within 100 feet of the Forty-first Street frontage of the property just sold.

The property just acquired by Mr. Goldstein is well situated for light and air as it is bounded on the east by the Eltinge Theatre in Forty-second Street and the Liberty Theatre in Forty-first Street and on the west by the American Theatre in Forty-first Street and the low two-story building under lease to the Horn & Hardart Company on the Forty-second Street side, so that it has permanent light on the east and west above the third story.

This block on Forty-second Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, has twelve theatres and has been the scene in recent months of active real estate trading. Last January, the 241 West Forty-second Street Company purchased 241 West Forty-second Street and 250 to 262 West Forty-third Street, comprising more than 16,500 square feet of ground area.

Wallack's Sold Recently.

Wallack's Theatre, at 252 to 254 West Forty-second Street, on a plot 66 by 98 feet, situated 133 feet east of Eighth Avenue, was purchased by the Schulte Real Estate Company a few months ago and was resold last week. The Schulte interests also purchased the Clinton Apartments at 251 to 257 West Forty-second Street, fronting 93 feet on Forty-second Street and having an outlet of twelve and one-half feet on Forty-third Street, a plot of 10,600 feet in all. The property at 204 West Forty-second Street, 40 feet west of Seventh Avenue, has also figured in two sales since last February.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

A store in the six-story building at the northwest corner of Thirty-seventh Street and Eighth Avenue was leased yesterday for an orange drink station and lunchonette at a rental of $1,500 a front foot, according to M. K. Hamilton, broker, who negotiated the lease.

The store is 14 by 25 feet and was leased for twenty-one years by the Sil-Sil Realty Company to Nick Gentilis. The aggregate rental to be paid for the entire period of the lease will be $300,000.

AUTO FIRM SELLS BROADWAY CORNER

Operator Buys Building at 62d St. From Uppercu-Cadillac Co. —Sale on 59th St.

The four-story building at the northwest corner of Broadway and Sixty-second Street, fronting eighty-seven feet on Broadway, at present the retail salesroom and general offices of the Uppercu-Cadillac Company, has been sold by them to Irving I. Lewine, Inc. The Cadillac Company is erecting a new twelve-story building on the Columbus Avenue blockfront, Sixty-second to Sixty-third Streets, 200 by 125 feet, and has, therefore, sold the present home, taking back a net lease until the completion of the new building. About a month ago the company sold the present service building on Sixty-seventh to Sixty-eighth Street to the Alliance Realty Company in a similar deal.

The sale yesterday was made by Cross & Brown Company, who also made the service station sale. The property was held at $750,000.

Dr. Otto V. Fleischman has bought from the George Ehret Estate, Inc., the property at 543 West Fifty-ninth Street, a five-story tenement on a lot 25 by 100 feet. The property has been owned by the Ehrets for over twenty years.

Dr. Fleischman upon taking title to the property expects to move his office and research department for the exterminating of vermin to the premises. The Butler-Herrman Corporation negotiated the transaction.

Louis F. Sommer and Ryan & Co. sold for G. Landes 103 La Salle Street, adjoining the northeast corner of Broadway, a five-story flat with stores on a lot 25 by 100 feet.

R. W. Murray & Co. sold for the Honeywood Realty Company 240 East Forty-seventh Street, a five-story building with stores, 27 by 75 feet, adjoining the southwest corner of Second Avenue.

Prudence-Bonds Corporation announced a first mortgage loan of $100,000 on the five-story residence at 9 East Seventy-fourth Street, Manhattan. The property occupies a plot fronting 20 feet on East Seventy-fourth Street with a depth of 100.2 feet.

Charles C. Edwards & Co. arranged a mortgage loan of $110,000 covering the northeast corner of Brook Avenue and 157th Street and $38,000 covering 532 Wales Avenue, Bronx. The same broker also placed a loan of $80,000 at 5 per cent. on the four-story private dwelling on the northeast corner of Seventy-second Street and West End Avenue.

Guaranteed Mortgage Company of New York made a first mortgage loan of $80,000 for three years to N. Archibald Shaw, secured by the three-story and basement brick building with limestone front at 347 West Eighty-seventh Street.

Elliman Employes Share Profits.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have just declared and paid the first semi-annual profit-sharing of the year to all members and employes of the company who are not stockholders. The policy of allowing all of its associates to participate substantially in the earnings of this company has been in effect for many years, but heretofore the shares have been declared only at the close of the year. The change to a semi-annual basis was made effective in order that the funds would be available during the Summer vacation season.

Colonial House in Flushing Sold.

A six-room Colonial house on Auburndale Lane, Flushing, L. I., has been sold for the Franconia Homes Corporation by the Jaros Kraus Company, which also placed two mortgages of $6,800 each for Emil Ploetz on two English type brick and stucco houses under construction at Utopia Parkway, 100 feet north of State Street, Flushing.

TISHMANS BUY PARK AV. CORNER

WAS HELD AT $3,200,000

One of the largest and most important real estate transactions of the year on the upper east side was closed yesterday when the fourteen-story apartment house nearing completion on the northeast corner of Eighty-third Street and Park Avenue was sold by Crystal Brothers, operators and builders, to Julius Tishman & Sons, Inc.

This new structure, which is known as 983 Park Avenue, has a frontage of 77 feet on the avenue and 175 feet on the street.

It has been held at $3,200,000, and its purchase rounds out a total of approximately $15,000,000 invested in apartment buildings in the Park Avenue and adjacent sections by this concern.

More Than 60 Per Cent. Rented.

The building contains sixty apartments of six, nine and ten rooms and when fully rented will return an annual gross income of $395,000. It is now more than 60 per cent. rented and will be completed and ready for occupancy Aug. 1.

Commenting on the purchase, Mr. Tishman said:

"In adding this Park Avenue building to the properties owned and managed by us as investment builders, we are simply adhering to our established policy to not only retain the ownership and management of buildings which we build ourselves, but to purchase for investment other buildings erected by high-grade builders which appeal to us because of their quality construction and desirable location."

The Tishmans, who are among the most active builders and buyers in the Park Avenue district, are now completing two fourteen-story apartment buildings at the northeast and northwest corners of Park Avenue and Seventy-eighth Street, known as 885 Park Avenue and 888 Park Avenue, both buildings to be completed and ready for occupancy on Sept. 1.

The building at the northwest corner of Seventy-eighth Street has a frontage of 102 feet on Park Avenue and a street frontage of 157 feet, and contains forty-two apartments of ten and twelve rooms.

The improvement represents a total cost of $3,000,000.

The building at the northeast corner of Seventy-eighth Street has a frontage of 78 feet on Park Avenue and a street frontage of 165 feet and contains forty-two apartments of nine, ten and twelve rooms. This improvement represents a total cost of $2,900,000.

At 125 East Eighty-fourth Street they are also completing a nine-story apartment house, containing forty-five apartments of six and seven rooms, which will be ready for occupancy on Aug. 1, and will represent a total cost of $1,200,000.

In addition to these new buildings, the Tishmans recently bought the northeast corner of Eighty-first Street and Park Avenue and have prepared plans for the erection of a fourteen-story apartment house containing duplex apartments of eight, thirteen and fourteen rooms.

This plot has a frontage on Park Avenue of 83 feet and a street frontage of 160 feet. This building will be ready for occupancy on July 1, 1928, and will represent a total cost of $3,100,000.

They have also recently purchased a site in the Sutton Place section, including 408 to 418 East Fifty-seventh Street, having a frontage of 117 feet, on which site they are now starting a fifteen-story apartment building, containing apartments of six and seven rooms, to be completed July 1, 1928, which will represent an investment of $1,600,000.

BRONX BUILDING PLANS.

Lodge Rooms to Be Erected on 233d Street.

The following plans have been filed with the Bronx Bureau of Buildings:

University Avenue, northwest corner of Tremont Avenue, one-story brick stores, 36 by 100 feet; Weeks Avenue Construction Company, Inc., owners; Golder & Golder, architects; cost, $40,000.

Randall Avenue, north side, 50 feet west of Worthen Street, one-story brick factory, 100 by 150 feet; Albert Gerkhardt, owner and architect; cost, $15,000.

APARTMENT PLANS FILED.

Aggregate Cost of Two Houses Estimated at $2,200,000.

Plans for two de luxe apartment houses were filed yesterday.

At 408 to 418 East Fifty-seventh Street, a fifteen-story building to be erected on a plot 117 by 81 feet will cost $1,200,000, according to Schwartz & Gross, architects, who furnished the details of the Jatleon Construction Company, Inc. (Julius Tishman & Sons, Inc.).

A thirteen-story apartment house at 19 to 25 East Ninetieth Street, 100 by 100 feet, will cost $1,000,000, according to G. F. Pelham, architect, who prepared the plans for the Brislow Building Corporation.

A two-story office and ballroom building, 100 feet square, will be built at 4,941 to 4,947 Broadway by the Inwood Heights Corporation. Springsteen & Goldhammer, architects, estimate the cost at $200,000.

Brokers in Lefcourt Deal.

Frederick Southack and Allyn Ball Jr. were the brokers who leased the building at 1,415 Broadway, occupied by Lorber's restaurant, to A. E. Lefcourt for improvement.

Plans for $400,000 Office Filed by Jewish Federation

The Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies filed plans with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings yesterday for its new clubhouse and office building. The proposed structure will be erected at 67 to 71 West Forty-seventh Street, on a plot with a frontage of 63 feet and a depth of 100 feet.

The property is owned by the Federation and will be improved with a sixteen-story building. Buchman & Kahn, architects for the project, prepared the plans. They estimated the cost of the structure at $400,000.

BUILDERS BUY A SITE ON KINGSBRIDGE ROAD

As a site for apartments and stores, the plot on the southwest corner of Kingsbridge Road and Grand Avenue has been purchased by the Friedfeld-Feder Realty Corporation, builders. The site is 108 by 112 feet and was sold by the E. I. E. Holding Corporation. Louis M. Weiss & Company were the brokers in the transaction.

Charles E. Singer resold to John P. Dauth the southeast corner of Jerome Avenue and 170th Street at a profit. This is the property Mr. Singer purchased last week at the record price of $300,000 for a plot 60 by 105 feet, improved with a one-story taxpayer. Billingsley Realty Company, Inc., and Harry J. Armstrong were the brokers in the transaction.

Frank J. Armstrong, President of Frank J. Armstrong & Bros., Inc., sold for a client to an investor property on the southeast corner of Fordham Road and Loring Place. It is a two-story business building having a frontage of 70 feet on Fordham Road by 95 feet on Loring Place, containing five stores and four apartments. It has an annual rent roll of more than $10,000 and was held at $120,000.

LEXINGTON AV. LEASE IS MADE BY KEMPNERS

At a rental aggregating $1,260,000, Isidor H. Kempner & Sons have leased for eighty-four years the five-story building at the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Seventy-ninth Street from Jeanette Forsheim. The lessees also acquired an option for purchase. The building fronts 102 feet on Lexington Avenue and 20 feet on Seventy-ninth Street.

Peierls, Buhler & Co. have leased additional space comprising the south half of the fourth floor, 20,000 square feet, in the twenty-five story building under construction att 2 Park Avenue. This makes a total of over 120,000 square feet of floor space now under lease to the company. Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Voight & Co, Inc., negotiated the transaction.

Thoens & Flaunlacher, Inc., have negotiated a transaction giving to Harry Buch and Michael Wolff a controlling interest in the Irvern Realty Corporation, the deal involving a lease on the property at 2,960 Third Avenue, extending through to 651 Bergen Avenue. The plot, 25 by 190 feet, adjoins the William Bauman & Co. department store. It is occupied by two frame structures, which the Irvern corporation will replace with a two-story business building. The lease is for forty-two years, with a total rental of approximately $400,000.

Albert Grosfeld, Inc., importer of antique and period furniture, has leased for a long term from Frederick Bauer the five-story building, 50 by 100 feet, at 338 and 340 East Thirty-first Street. After alterations the tenant will occupy the building as a warehouse. P. M. Clear & Co. were the brokers.

A lease has been closed with Samuel Friedman, ladies' tailor and furrier, for space in 167 West Seventy-fourth Street, now being altered for business and one-room apartments. The property is 25 feet east of the corner of Amsterdam Avenue. The lease was negotiated by Samuel A. Mole for the owner, the Triple S. & N., Inc., Henry R. Stern President.

Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co. have leased the store at 8 East Forty-sixth Street to the Broad Street Clothiers and offices in 8 East Fifty-fourth Street to Dr. A. W. Thomasson.

Publisher Buys Cooperative.

Nelson Doubleday of Doubleday, Page & Co., publishers, has purchased through Douglas L. Elliman & Co., Inc., a special five-room apartment on the twenty-first floor of the new 100 per cent. cooperative apartment hotel known as 826 Fifth Avenue, which is being erected by Paterno Brothers from plans by J. E. R. Carpenter, Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., represented the owners as agents.

Sells Estate of 53 Acres.

Yates & Gary have sold for Robert Tompkins his property on Somerstown Road, about three miles from the village of Ossining, N. Y. The property contains fifty-three acres of rolling land, heavily wooded, through which flows a large brook, which will be made into a lake. The purchaser plans to improve the property for his own use.

Downtown Loans at 5 Per Cent.

Charles F. Noyes Company, Inc., has obtained from the Franklin Savings Bank an $85,000 loan on 109-11 Leonard Street and 2-3 Benson Place, and $85,000 on 113-15 Leonard Street. Both loans were at 5 per cent. interest.

APARTMENT HOUSE IN YONKERS IS SOLD

Locust Hill Gardens Structure Containing 102 Families Was Held at $500,000.

DEALS ON LONG ISLAND

A deal involving about $500,000 has resulted in the transfer of title to the 102-family apartment house known as Locust Hill Gardens, on Locust Hill Avenue, Yonkers, to a corporation headed by Samuel Horowitz of New York City. The building was erected three years ago by the Harmar Realty Company, representing County Judge William F. Bleakley and Jacob Harris.

Mr. Horowitz is building groups of one-family houses in two other Yonkers locations, recent purchases by him, including an entire block opposite the Gorton High School from Dr. James T. Gorton, and another block on Windsor Terrace from Arthur E. Muth.

About a year ago Mr. Horowitz left Florida and made a tour of the United States, looking for favorable locations for real estate investments. After going as far as the Pacific Coast, he concluded that Westchester County offered the best inducements.

The sale of Locust Hill Gardens was negotiated by Thomas S. Burke, Inc.

In the centre of the legal and financial section of White Plains, at 144 Main Street, adjoining the corner of Grove Street, the State Title and Mortgage Company will open a branch office on the site at present occupied by a three-story building. L. J. Phillips & Co. were the brokers in the sale of the parcel.

Rene Labre, White Plains builder, has bought a plot on Stratford Road in the Green Knolls development of the Robert E. Farley Organization at Scarsdale. On Gorham Place, Greenacres, the same organization sold a plot to Ida W. Nybum of New York City.

Mrs. Robert Hoe has leased her estate at Bedford Hills to A. J. Sheldon of New York City through Julia Beverley Higgens, in conjunction with Allaben & Co.

On Long Island, in Suffolk County, Joseph A. Eckl sold for Blanche and William Kirklewski a plot at Moriches fronting 195 feet on Merrick Road, upon which there is a large new bungalow. Bertha Schulder will operate a tea room and gasoline station on the property, which is opposite Mill Pond Lakes.

The same broker sold to I. Mages of Middletown, Pa., a 100-foot business plot on Merrick Road in Brook Haven Centre, Brook Haven, for George Vorndran. A similar plot adjoining was also sold for Mr. Vorndran to the same buyer, who will hold it for resale.

In Nassau County a one-family dwelling on Willow Street, Floral Park, held at $10,800, was sold for M. Evensen to Andrew Carl by Behr Brothers.

Two lots at the corner of Mineola and Grove Streets, Valley Stream, were sold for Joseph Ascoli to S. Caparalle, who intends to build a house for his own occupancy. The Mills-Muller Corporation, which made the sale, also arranged the transfer of four lots on Fletcher Avenue from the Hawrock Realty Company, Inc., to William P. Luch.

THE MARKET IN BROOKLYN.

Flatbush Avenue Building Is Bought by an Investor.

The two-story building at 1,362 Flatbush Avenue, between East Twenty-sixth Street and Farragut Road, was sold by S. Bernstein to a client of Ohnewald & Denlinger for investment. The property was held at $32,000 and is immediately opposite the Farragut Theatre.

Bulkley & Horton Company through its Nostrand Avenue office and through the Multiple Listing Bureau and in conjunction with M. C. O'Brien, sold the three-story and basement brick and stone dwelling, on a plot 21 by 155 feet, at 1,000 Park Place, between Brooklyn and Kingston Avenues, for Bertha B. Plock to a buyer for occupancy.

BRIDGE ATTRACTS OHIOANS.

In the vicinity of the approach to the bridge from Tottenville, S. I., to Perth Amboy, N. J., now under construction by the Port of New York Authority, J. Thomas Menken of Cincinnati, Ohio, has acquired 430 lots on Arthur Kill Road, at Rossville, S. I.

The purchase was made for several large real estate operators of the Ohio city, who anticipate a large increase in value when the bridge is completed.

At East Annadale Beach, S. I., the E. A. White Organization, Inc., has sold a plot to Edmond and Martha Simms for $2,100.

LONG ISLAND DEVELOPMENT

At Port Washington, on the north shore of Long Island, approximately 1,400 lots owned by the Woodwell Holding Corporation have been turned over to the Daniels Realty Organization, which will supervise the installation of improvements and negotiate sales.

The property has several thousand feet frontage on Little Neck Road and is near the railroad station and a public beach. The Guggenheim, Astor, Brokaw, Belmont and other large estates surround the property, with the Sands Point Golf Club adjoining on one side.

Adds to East Side Plot.

The Eleto Company, which recently acquired the blockfront on the west side of First Avenue, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth Streets, has purchased the adjoining two tenement houses at 335 and 337 East Thirty-eighth Street from the Ferg Realty Company.

Woman Sells Front Street Building.

BUILDING SITES SOLD IN LONG ISLAND CITY

Factory and Apartment Are Projected—Garage Held at $95,000 in Deal.

Sales of business, industrial and residential properties in Long Island City and adjacent sections of Queens County were reported yesterday.

A garage on a plot 102 by 95 feet at Steinway and Washington Avenues, Long Island City, held at $85,000, has been sold for Jacob Hovite by Milton Gunsberg, who also sold an industrial site of seventeen lots at Jacobus Avenue and Queens Boulevard, held at $45,000, for the Kaywill Realty Company.

The same broker sold an apartment site, 40 by 100 feet, on Locust Street, in the Sunnyside district of Long Island City, to Arthur Pincourt for development. The property was held at $10,500. A two-story brick building on Ditmars Avenue, between Second and Fourth Avenues, held at $34,000, was sold for J. Schwartz.

A three-story building, 25 by 100 feet, on the east side of Steinway Avenue, 100 feet north of Broadway, held at $65,000, was sold to a Jamaica operator by Dangler & Benioff, who also sold to the G. Z. Brodick Realty Company a three-story brick building on Polk Avenue for $35,000.

An Astoria investor bought through Dangler & Benioff a two-story brick building, 35 feet north of the corner of Northern Boulevard and Forty-eighth Street, and a Corona investor acquired the property at the southeast corner of Forty-fifth Street and Northern Boulevard through the same agency.

A two-family frame dwelling with eleven rooms and two baths, at 834 Chaffee Street, Ridgewood, was sold for Mrs. Maria Luginsland by Stehle & Thomsen Jr. to J. Kitscher, who will occupy.

Three lots on the northeast corner of Van Alst Avenue and Harris Avenue, Long Island City, sold for Milford Nathan of Cambridge, Md., by E. T. ZeHagen, will be improved by the buyer, Arnold Levien of the Neivel Realty Corporation.

In conjunction with Irving Berger, the same broker sold for Stuard Hirschman and L. Werner a plot 50 by 100 feet on Anable Avenue, opposite the Queens County Court House.

TRANSACTIONS IN ASTORIA.

Subway Corner Is Sold Three Times Within Three Days.

Opposite the new Ford factory at Astoria, L. I., soon to open and employ 2,000 persons, a corner plot which had not figured in any transaction for five years changed hands three times within three days, according to Irving Berger, who arranged the first sale and the succeeding transfer to the Retwil Realty Company. The latter, the third day, resold to William Gottfried. The property, at the northwest corner of Second Avenue and Bee Avenue, is at a station on the Astoria subway. The original holder was M. Genevose.

Investors bought through the same broker five six-family houses at 3,515 to 3,523 Clarke Street, Astoria, held by Benjamin Pfeffer. This was the second sale of the property within a month.

A block front on the south side of Skillman Avenue, from Stone to Fitting Street, 200 by 115 by 122 feet, was sold for Frohnhofer & Sibek to building clients of the Laurel Hill Estates, Inc.

The "COULDER'S" and the "DIDER'S" met here again!

In the dining room of the $2,500,000 HOTEL LIDO last Saturday, July 2nd, at the Long Beach Auction from the five boroughs, New Jersey, Westchester and Long Island that "did bid" —"did buy" and should profit—as I said before "I hope you make a million dollars."

YOU "COULDERS"

we'll be easy with you this time. You get another chance Saturday. I know the crowd was great and in spite of daylight saving, the time was short with those deliberate and bargain hunting "diders" bidding. THEY WANTED BARGAINS AND GOT 'EM.

THEY BOUGHT

Waterfront — Business — Bungalow — Apartment Lots

"COULDERS"—You Get Another Chance to become a "CHARTER MEMBER" of LONG BEACH by buying one or more of the FOUNDERS ORIGINAL LOTS in the CITY of LONG BEACH

WILLIAM H. REYNOLDS, the founder of Long Beach, has authorized me to hold a

Next Sat., July 9th, at 2.30 P. M.

In the Dining Room of the Nearly Completed $2,500,000 HOTEL LIDO

GOING ONCE!—GOING TWICE!—FAIR WARNING!

To "COULDERS" Who Wish they were "DIDERS"

This is your chance to forget the "coulders" password (I could have bought at half the price) and learn the "diders" password, which is far more nourishing, "I bought at a RIGHT PRICE and now I'll take my profit." DON'T BE A "COULDER"—BE A "DIDER." Profit Again with Reynolds.

SUCCESSFUL

depends upon the tenant owner

The tenant owner must possess an apartment in a restricted locality where values are established and future enhancement is bound to occur

¶ He must have agreeable neighbors, social advantages, clubs, opportunities for outdoor recreation, such as tennis and golf, supervised children's playgrounds, private schools, in fact, everything that is required to make home life what it should be.

The restricted garden residential section of offers all the advantages listed above, plus the best transit facilities, which include the Fifth Avenue Bus, I. R. T. and B. M. T. subways direct to Grand Central.

¶ You can purchase a co-operative apartment in Jackson Heights from 5 to 7 rooms, 2 to 3 baths, with an initial cash payment of $2000, and total payments of from $150 to $211 per month.

¶ The Queensboro Corporation has always advertised the full monthly payments in order to avoid confusion in the mind of the prospective purchaser.

¶ As maintenance costs are low at Jackson Heights due to good management by The Queensboro Corporation, when your apartment is fully paid for, your monthly maintenance cost is approximately only one-half of your total monthly payment, which shows a remarkable saving over rent.

Quality Homesites at Auction Prices
MAPLE HILL near LARCHMONT

QUALITY is the most desirable feature—No matter what you buy. Be it shoes, clothing, furniture, or any of the small odds and ends of civilized living—it should have quality. Unfortunately, though, people who want the best aren't always able to afford it—especially when it comes to a place for a home.

Mamaroneck and Larchmont Spell QUALITY

NOTICE OF SALE.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain deed of trust dated the 5th day of June, 1912, made by Atlantic and Western Railroad Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of North Carolina, to the Fidelity Trust Company, Trustee, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maryland, which deed of trust is recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Lee County, North Carolina, in Book of Mortgages number 4 at Page 244, et seq., and registered in the office of the Register of Deeds for Harnett County, North Carolina, in Book of Mortgages number 166 at Page 534, et seq., default having been made in payment of interest on the bonded indebtedness secured by said deed of trust, and owners of more than fifty per cent. of said bonds having filed request in writing that foreclosure be had, and due notice of said default having been given by the undersigned to the Atlantic and Western Railroad Company, the undersigned, the Fidelity Trust Company, Trustee, will on Monday, August 15, 1927, at the hour of 12 (12) o'clock noon, at the County Court House door in Lee County, North Carolina, offer and sell, at public auction, to the highest bidder, cash, property in said deed of trust described and conveyed to the undersigned Trustee, the same being situate in the Counties of Lee and Harnett, State of North Carolina, as follows:

All the railroad of the Atlantic and Western Railroad Company, beginning at the Town of Sanford, North Carolina, in the County of Lee, running thence in a southeastern direction to Lillington, in the County of Harnett, State of North Carolina, including side tracks connected therewith; and all of the rights of way and land now occupied and used by said railroad, side tracks, shops, station buildings, terminals, used in the operation of and for the purpose of maintenance of said railroad, and the extensions and branches and all rails, bridges, culverts, side tracks, depot grounds, stations, machine shops, buildings and other structures, locomotives, engines, tenders, cars, motive power, rolling stock and equipment of every kind, and all machinery, wood, coal, fuel, oil, and other supplies in possession of said railroad on the day of sale, and all of the rights, powers, privileges, immunities and franchises or franchises owned by and connected with said Atlantic and Western Railroad; and all grants, leaseholds, leases, terms, tracage, or other agreements, contracts, easements, tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances held by or appertaining to said Atlantic and Western Railroad Company on the day of sale; and all tolls, rents, issues, profits, and any and all income of every kind and character from the property herein described in possession of Atlantic and Western Railroad Company on the day of sale; and all real property and tangible personal property of whatever name, character or nature; now used and in use on the day of sale by the Atlantic and Western Railroad Company in conducting a line of railroad and maintaining offices, and generally in the conduct of its business in railroading in the Counties of Lee and Harnett, State of North Carolina.

Purchaser at said sale will be required to deposit with the Trustee a sum of money equivalent to ten per cent. of the amount bid for said property, as an evidence of good faith; such deposit to be returned in the event of re-sale being made by reason of an increased or upset bid; balance of purchase money to be paid at expiration of ten days from day of sale.

The sale of said property shall not be deemed to be closed, as provided by Section 2593 of the Consolidated Statutes of the State of North Carolina, within ten days of the date of holding the same; and such sale may be re-opened if the sale price is increased five per cent. within ten days of the sale, and such increase is paid to the Clerk of the Superior Court of Lee County, Sanford, North Carolina, in which event the property will be resold after re-advertisement for a period of fifteen days.

Persons interested in the purchase of said property will be given an opportunity to inspect the same at any time hereafter up to the time of sale, upon application to R. R. Williams, Attorney-at-Law, Sanford, North Carolina, or on application to Henry D. Harlan, Counsel, Fidelity Trust Company, Baltimore, Maryland.

This the 30th day of June, 1927.
FIDELITY TRUST COMPANY, Trustee,
Baltimore, Maryland.
WILLIAMS & WILLIAMS, Counsel for Trustee, Sanford, North Carolina.

BORKIN JURY HEARS POLICE TESTIMONY

Leahy Says Ecker Admitted Hiring Car Used by Bandits in Cabaret Killing.

PRISONER'S APPEAL TOLD

Detective Declares He Wanted to Know If He Could Plead to Murder in the Second Degree.

Police testimony on "confessions" alleged to have been made following the shooting and killing of Detectives Morris Borkin and Benjamin Cantor in a cabaret hold-up at 152 Forsyth Street on May 17 occupied most of yesterday's session at the trial in General Sessions of Philip Ecker, 21 years old, and Harry Vlahnitzer, 19, for the slaying of Borkin. Two first-degree murder indictments were returned against the defendants a few days after the slaying. Victor, or Anthony, Congolino, 17 years old, was alleged to be the third man in the hold-up. He died in Bellevue Hospital of a bullet wound inflicted by Detective Borkin before he fell dead.

Questioned by Assistant District Attorney James E. McDonald, Detective Lieutenant John B. Leahy told of a statement made to him by Ecker on the latter's arrest a few hours after the shooting. Leahy told Judge Nott and the jury that Ecker had admitted hiring the automobile used by the hold-up men in going to and escaping from the cabaret. Ecker, the Lieutenant added, had reported the theft of the car from himself a short time after the shooting.

When Ecker eventually admitted the car had not been stolen, but had been turned over by him to Vlahnitzer and Congolino, Leahy went on, Ecker also said that another youth, Dominick DeLuca, was one of the three who entered the cabaret with pistols. Ecker in this statement had denied he drove to the place or was present when the shooting began. Ecker was alleged to have made another statement in which he gave more detail of the robbery plot.

Cross-examination of the Lieutenant by Representative LaGuardia, one of counsel for the accused youths, developed that the police had searched for DeLuca. Ecker had told them in his first story that DeLuca was the leader of the gunmen. Detective Vito Cassetti told the jury that Ecker had made his first statement to him before being questioned by the Lieutenant.

"Ecker asked me," Cassetti testified, "if I could get him a plea to murder in the second degree. Ecker said he didn't want to be known as a rat or a squealer. I told him to tell the truth and in my presence he dictated a statement to Lieutenant Leahy in the police station."

The trial will continue this morning.

"Big Game Hunter" Held in Bail.

William Toth, 18 years old, of 275 West 114th Street, a private in Battery A, 258th Field Artillery, New York National Guard, who was found shooting at floating pieces of wood in the Hudson with an army rifle Tuesday night, was held in $500 bail yesterday for a hearing tomorrow in the West Farm Court, charged with petit larceny. Toth, a plumber's helper, admitted taking the gun, the police said, and declared he intended to go "big game hunting in the Canadian wilds" with it. He said he was "practicing" by shooting in the river.

¶ Car owners waste $52 apiece in needless repairs each year

How to avoid needless car expense

THE failure of lubricants to master deadly heat and friction needlessly costs the car-owners of this country more than a billion dollars each year in repair bills—an average of $52 for every car in this vicinity.

Needlessly—because there is one oil—Veedol—that successfully resists heat and friction, the two causes of 75% of all motor repairs. Veedol keeps a thin tough film of oil between all the whirling flying metal surfaces in your car. Not even the heat developed in the modern motor can penetrate that fighting "film of protection". Destructive friction has no chance to begin its insidious work.

In Veedol, Tide Water technologists perfected an oil which masters heat 100 degrees hotter than the hottest friction-spot in your car.

Let Veedol guard your motor against repairs—and your pocketbook against repair bills. Drive to a dealer who displays the orange and black Veedol sign. Always ask for Veedol by name.
